

BOROUGH OF SEA GIRT
MONMOUTH COUNTY NEW JERSEY

MUNICIPAL CODE: 1344

Note to the Reader:

Since the initial sections of this survey were completed, determinations of eligibility have been modified for certain properties. In order to find the most recent determination of eligibility, consult the "Sites List and Municipal Maps" section of the introductory narrative (Vol. 1). The determinations of eligibility on the survey forms are superceded by those on the list.

SITES LISTS AND MAPS

Below is a list of all sites included in the Monmouth County Historic Sites Inventory. Sites location maps are also provided for each municipality. The sites lists are arranged by municipality and then alphabetically by street address or geographical location. Next to each site is a determination of its eligibility to the National Register of Historic Places. Eligibility is notated by the following symbols:

Y = Yes
N = No
P = Possible
D = District

Sites which are located within eligible districts but which are also individually eligible are labeled "Y" instead of "D". The "Possible" category is limited to those properties which require additional research on construction date, quality of the interior (interiors generally were not examined), ownership history, and/or degree of alteration in order to determine eligibility.

The survey project followed federal standards for National Register eligibility which are set forth in "How to Apply the National Register Criteria for Evaluation" (National Park Service, Department of the Interior, 1982). National Register eligibility is subject to review and final approval by the Office of New Jersey Heritage and the New Jersey State Review Board of Historic Sites. Eligibility may change due to building alterations made subsequent to this survey. Since the initial field work for this project was completed during 1980-1982, determinations of eligibility on the survey forms are superceded by those on the below updated lists.

The National Register is the official list of properties significant in American history, architecture, archeology, engineering, and culture. The National Register was established by the Historic Sites Act of 1935 and the National Historic Preservation Act of 1966, as amended. It is maintained and expanded by the National Park Service on behalf of the Secretary of the Interior. Properties listed on the National Register receive a limited form of protection and certain benefits. For information concerning the effects of listing, contact the Office of New Jersey Heritage in Trenton (609-292-2023).

Adjacent to railroad tracks

SIGNIFICANCE:

This pumping station replaced an earlier pumping station that was located on the site of the Commodore Robert Stockton Farm (a.k.a. the "Cottage") on Crescent Avenue. The building is a good example of the use of Mission Style elements on a Colonial Revival building, a common combination of motifs along the Monmouth shore.

Located one block from boardwalk and ocean

SIGNIFICANCE:

This is representative of the smaller boarding houses that were once numerous along the Monmouth shore. While still found in the area at present, they are rapidly being replaced by year-round residences, particularly in Sea Girt. This building retains late Victorian details in the roof, windows and porch trim. J. Long owned the building in 1889.

SIGNIFICANCE:

This is a prominent example of the Colonial Revival Style along the Monmouth shore. Unlike the examples of the Colonial Revival in the interior of the county (Colts Neck, Holmdel, Freehold, Marlboro, etc.) which use design motifs which are very closely related to Colonial period buildings in the county, the Colonial Revival buildings on the shore are more exaggerated and complex in design, such as this building.

SIGNIFICANCE:

This hotel was built by Thomas Devlin in 1880, a short time after active development of Sea Girt as a shore resort began, following the extension of the New York and Long Branch Railroad in 1876. The building is well maintained and retains much of its original detail. Sea shore boarding houses and hotels are declining in number in Monmouth County and are being replaced by year-round residences. Thomas Devlin operated the hotel until his death in 1894. Mrs. Dorothy Arnold opened the hotel as "The Arnold" in 1925 and did some remodeling of the building.

Roof/Chimneys: Gambrel; internal chimney

Additional Architectural Description:

The expansive, 2 story roof is the dominant feature of the house; the end wall forms the front facade which faces south toward the road. The front facade is composed of: a third floor oriel window with three sets of double hung sash; two smaller oriel windows on the second floor with two sets of sash each which flank paired windows that open on to a small balcony; and a central doorway with sidelights, flanked by a sash window on each side. The upper sash of all the windows are diamond paned as are the sidelights on the doorway. A shed roof porch supported by paired Doric order columns covers two bays of the south facade and extends to the east wall. The east wall has a two story porch that looks out on to the ocean, a view which now appears to be obscured by later construction.

Additional Architectural Description:

This is a simple yet graceful building. It includes Stick Style elements in the collar beam and knee braces on the gable ends, and in the knee braces on the cross gable and canopy. A punched curvilinear pattern is in the cross gable pediment. The projecting stationmaster's office is flanked by doors and six-light windows. The building was originally larger with a two-story block with a pyramidal roof and Stick Style design, connected by a canopy to the existing section. The natural wood shingle siding is probably not original.

Across Ocean Avenue from beach

SIGNIFICANCE:

This is one of several lighthouses built along the Monmouth County shore. The large volume of shipping and rather treacherous waters made the Monmouth coast area a pioneer in maritime navigational aids and lifesaving services (see William Nelson, ed., The New Jersey Coast in Three Centuries, New York, 1902, p.474. for a history of the U.S. Lifesaving Service). The light has brass fittings made in Tompkinsville, Staten Island and a French lens. In 1921, this light became one of the first three radio beacons to be placed in regular operation by the light-house service. The light was closed in 1928.

Additional Architectural Description:

The original section of this church has a steeply pitched roof with overhanging eaves, gable returns and slender pilasters at the corners. A bell tower projects slightly from the west wall. It has a modillion cornice and a pilastered belfry. A low pyramidal roof has replaced the original steeple which was destroyed by fire in 1922. Stained glass windows have small ogee cornices; the windows of the west facade have paneled upper sections; doorways enter on the south wall beneath classical porticos. The building has been expanded several times. The additions are in keeping with the main section, being 1 to 1½ stories high with natural wood shingle siding and Colonial Revival details.

SIGNIFICANCE:

This is a notable example of Colonial Revival church architecture on the Monmouth County shore. The building utilizes a variety of Colonial Revival details on an essentially symmetrical form. Picturesque elements are added to the building through the use of a large foyer perpendicular to the main block and two side wall doorways. The subsequent expansion has been in keeping with the main section, both in design and overall shape. Land for the church was donated by the Sea Girt Land Improvement Company and the first service was held on Easter of 1903.
