

I. Major research and public service activities

R&D EXPENDITURES : YEAR 2005-2006

	Amount ($)
Federally Financed Academic R&D Expenditures	$239,215
Total Academic R&D Expenditures	$239,215

Note: Dollar amount as reported to the National Science Foundation (NSF) on Form #411 (Survey of Research and Development Expenditures at Colleges and Universities).

Despite the budget difficulty incurred during the 06-07 academic year, professional development activities continued to be supported by the office of the vice president for academic affairs. More than $50,000 was expended for faculty presentations and participation in national professional organizations that numbered over 80 presentations; $35,000 for SBR faculty research consisting of 7 untenured faculty award and 6 tenured faculty awards; $40,00 for faculty and staff career development; and $3,000 for mini grants awarded to faculty and staff. For AY 07-08, SBR awards have been increased to $60,000 consisting of 20 faculty awards.

In the College of Arts and Sciences, an associate professor of NJCU's English faculty, along with an alumnus, has published a book that critiques free Web-based news services, such as, National Public Radio, the New York Times, and CNN.

A presentation by a professor of Special Education was named "Best of region" by the National Academic Advising Association. The presentation was based on data collected from freshmen on what they felt were the keys to success in college, and strategies for advisors and other development personnel.

A professor and alumni from the department of media arts created a feature-length documentary about art and the influence of video games on contemporary culture. The film was named one of the top 10 films of 2006 by the associate curator of the department of media of the Museum of Modern Art.

An associate professor of English was awarded $1,500 from the Asian American Arts Alliance and $14,000 from the Andy Warhol Foundation. The former award is for the completion of a work describing feelings of displacement and the construction of identity. The latter award is for the completion of a book about Mr. Warhol.

An associate professor of literacy is the project director of a $102,000 grant awarded by the Victoria Foundation to improve literacy in Newark. The grant is in partnership with the Newark public schools and extended from the six-month period ending June 2007.

A film by an associate professor media arts was shown at the Museum of Modern Art as part of “Film makers at MacDowell: The Studio System Reconsidered” a touring series celebrating the MacDowell Colony—the oldest artists residency program in the United States.

An associate professor, and faculty member of English since 1994 at New Jersey City University, has been awarded a National Endowment for the Humanities Fellowship for College Teachers and Independent Scholars. One of only 62 individuals from throughout the United States to receive the NEH Fellowship, she received the $40,000 award for her project, “Scrapbooks Remake 19th-Century Print Culture.” Her project was also one of only 58 of 288 NEH-funded projects to be designated a “We the People” project, a special recognition by the Endowment for model projects that advance the study, teaching, and understanding of American history and culture. She will use her grant to complete a book, Book Paper, Scissors: Scrapbooks Remake 19th Century Print Culture.

Additionally, she is the author of The Adman in the Parlor: Magazines and the Gendering of Consumer Culture, winner of the Society for the History of Authorship, Reading and Publishing’s prize for the best book of 1996 on the history of the book, and, with Sharon Harris, helped edit Blue Pencils and Hidden Hands: Women Editing Periodicals.

This professor has written and lectured extensively throughout Europe and the United States on topics including scrapbooks and women’s bicycling and billboards and stories about slave ships.

She is a past president of the New York Metro American Studies Association and the Research Society for American Periodicals. She has held the Fulbright Walt Whitman Distinguished Lecturing Chair in American Literature in the Netherlands and has been the recipient of numerous fellowships.

She also teaches women’s studies courses.

In the College of Professional Studies, one of the nursing faculty was busy writing and presenting on the phenomenon of “ethical drift”—when good people do bad things.

Also in the College of Professional Studies, a faculty member in fire science created an educational DVD entitled “Turn-out For Life”. It focused on the enhancement of firefighter health, safety, work performance and the reduction of job-related injury, illness and death. Produced and directed by Metamedia Productions and financed by a National Fallen Firefighters Foundation, it was distributed to every fire department in the United States.

In the year 2006-07, the College of Education was able to fully implement approved new degree programs including a BA in Early Childhood/Special Education, an MA in Early Childhood/Special Education, a BA Special Education/Elementary, an MAT Special Education, and a BA Elementary Education with Middle School Subject endorsement. Through the dean's office, a preliminary agreement is being developed with the Township of Irvington and Irvington Board of Education to provide professional development in Irvington for teachers and municipal employees.

College of Education was officially designated as the ACTFL (American Council for the Teaching of Foreign Languages) Regional Testing Center in July of 2006. Since that time, the College has tested over 750 candidates seeking Bilingual, English as a Second Language, and World Language teaching certification in New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Connecticut, and even as far as Maryland and Virginia..

NJ LEAD Institute, a pilot accelerated program for school administrators, ended a successful year with the completion of its first cohort of newly licensed school leaders and full approval from the New Jersey Department of Education.

The university's librarians have acted as reviewers for books and have presented nationally and internationally.

Awarded a fellowship to participate in the January 2008 Key West Literary Seminar. Since 1983 the Key West Literary Seminar has been dedicated to the support of American writers, and since the 1920s, the island from which the seminar takes its name has been one of America's most important literary gathering places. Writers Ernest Hemingway, Tennessee Williams, Elizabeth Bishop, and Robert Frost have called Key West home; the Literary Seminar continues to attract a sophisticated and international audience. During the week-long seminar, fellows attend lectures by and receive criticism of their work from celebrated poets. Fellows also participate in readings and in panel presentations of their own work. The theme of the 2008 Seminar is New Voices.

Shiraz, a novel by Dr. Robert Hamburger of New York City, a professor of English at New Jersey City University, has been published by XOXOX Press. The 188-page paperback, Dr. Hamburger’s sixth book and first work of non-fiction, follows the lives of three Americans living in mid-1970s Iran in the waning days of the Shah’s reign, a decisive turning point for Iran and for the United States in the Middle East.

A powerful book, Shiraz reveals the cracks and shadows that have since deepened and widened, providing a vivid back story to present disasters, and examines the problematic nature of intervention on several overlapping levels, including political, cultural, and personal.

Dr. Hamburger is also the author of A Stranger in the House, a book featured on “The Oprah Winfrey Show”; Two Rooms: The Life of Charles Erskine Scott Wood, a finalist for The Western Writers’ Prize for Biography; A Passage Through India; All The Lonely People: Life in a Single Room Occupancy Hotel, winner of a New York Foundation of the Arts Award in Creative Nonfiction and a finalist for the Robert F. Kennedy Book Award; and Our Portion of Hell: An Oral History of the Civil Rights Movement in Fayette County, Tennessee.

Dr. Hamburger, who will serve as a Fulbright Senior Specialist through 2009, has served as a Fulbright lecturer in India, France, and Morocco. He has been a member of P.E.N. since 1979 and was a writer-in-residence at the MacDowell Colony in 1990, 1979, and 1977.

Dr. Hamburger, who has served on the NJCU faculty since 1993, teaches creative writing and American literature.
