New Jersey Division of Gaming Enforcement Approves Delaware Lottery's Use Of Online Gaming Content Hosted on Atlantic City Server

ATLANTIC CITY – Following regulatory approval by New Jersey's Division of Gaming Enforcement, the Delaware State Lottery, Scientific Games and Caesars Interactive Entertainment (Caesars) today announced an agreement that will permit SG Interactive, a division of Scientific Games, to provide game content from servers located in Caesars' data center in Atlantic City to the Delaware Lottery's online gaming platform. Those games will only be available to Delaware online gaming patrons. This is the first such agreement regarding casino game content between states with authorized Internet gaming.

"This arrangement exemplifies a great collaborative effort between the Delaware Lottery, the New Jersey Division of Gaming Enforcement, Scientific Games, and Caesars Interactive Entertainment," said David Rebuck, Director of the New Jersey Division of Gaming Enforcement.

Marco Ceccarelli, Senior Vice President and Chief Information Officer, Caesars Interactive Entertainment, said "We are happy to do our part assisting regulators in New Jersey and Delaware and appreciate their progressive and innovative work to help continue to grow and push the regulated online gaming market forward in the United States."

"The Delaware Lottery commends the cooperation of all parties involved in this endeavor and compliments the New Jersey Division of Gaming Enforcement for their professionalism and diligence throughout their administrative and regulatory process," said Vernon Kirk, Director of the Delaware Lottery.
