South Jersey Regional Human Trafficking Conference

Empowering Communities to Combat Human Trafficking

Time 9:00 – 4:00 (tentative)
Rutgers University, Camden, NJ Campus Center

Human Traffickers are predators who lurk in our neighborhoods seeking persons whom they can exploit for labor or sex. The purpose of this conference is to empower our communities to prevent and combat Human Trafficking in their backyard. Presentations will help identify and examine various risk factors, and discuss State and local strategies for assisting victims and survivors. This is a regional conference focusing on Southern New Jersey as well as Philadelphia, PA. Future regional conferences will focus on Central and Northern New Jersey.

Who Should Attend:

Victim service providers, law enforcement, legal service providers, immigration advocates, social workers, mental health professionals, faith-based leaders and organizations, local business owners, school administrators, teachers, guidance counselors, and resource officers, clinicians, nurses, and survivors of human trafficking.
