The New Jersey State Council on the Arts is proud to cosponsor this exhibition, highlighting the work of fellowship winners from fiscal years 1987 and 1988.

That our state is rich in creative resources is evident in the paintings, sculpture, photography, graphics, and experimental work presented. The Council remains committed to providing financial support to individual creative artists for professional development and pursuit of artistic excellence.

We commend the Monmouth Museum and its director, Dorothy Morehouse, for coordinating this exhibition and for the important contributions it continues to make to New Jersey's cultural environment.

Celeste S. Penney
Chairman
New Jersey State Council on the Arts

This exhibition provides an opportunity to publicly highlight the work of New Jersey State Council on the Arts visual arts and crafts fellowship recipients, to celebrate their individual commitment and vision, and to acknowledge their considerable contributions to the lives of us all.

We salute the accomplishments of these artists who live and work in our state and are pleased to be cosponsors in this presentation of their works at the Monmouth Museum. The range and quality of their work provide us with ample evidence of the variety, spirit and innovation ongoing in our state's vital arts community.

As the whole of the arts in New Jersey depends on particular persons with their own dreams, their own work, so the New Jersey State Council on the Arts depends upon dedicated individuals. Thanks to our crafts coordinator, Hortense Green, and to our visual arts coordinator, Tom Moran, for their continuing resourcefulness, insights, and labor toward expanding opportunities for New Jersey artists and generally enhancing the environment for both traditional and innovative artists here. It is a privilege to participate in the support of these artists and this environment.

Jeffrey A. Kesper
Executive Director
New Jersey State Council on the Arts

Fellowships, as awarded by the New Jersey State Council on the Arts, go not only to those artists of recognized stature but also, and perhaps most importantly, to young emerging artists.

It is this philosophy of distribution that has resulted in the dramatic and continuing growth of the arts in our state.

After four years of fellowship exhibitions in which crafts were shown separately from the other visual arts, this exhibition presents all the visual arts regardless of media. It simply reaffirms that Art is Art.

My warmest congratulations to all of the exhibiting artists and my thanks to Dorothy Morehouse for her enthusiastic response to this exhibition.

Hortense Green
Crafts Coordinator
New Jersey State Council on the Arts

Individual artists play a vital role in shaping our cultural legacy. Their works mirror the humanness of a contemporary society caught up in an accelerated world of information and technology. Worldwide, attendance at art exhibitions and museums is at an all time high. Certainly, this points to the need people feel to experience art and to the importance of the arts producer.

It is in the demanding, high velocity environment of our world that artists must strive, facing great difficulty, to find studio time in order for their creativity to thrive. The far reaching impact of receiving a fellowship helps ensure that such creative time is attainable. With the time to make artistic decisions, experiment with new materials and techniques, and participate in exhibitions, artists can advance their visions and careers with the monetary resource and honor of having received a fellowship award.

We are especially proud of the artists as presented by the 1987-88 fellowship exhibition at the Monmouth Museum. We look forward to a bright future ahead for the exhibiting artists and are proud to have had an opportunity to contribute to their continuing development.

Tom Moran
Visual Arts Coordinator
New Jersey State Council on the Arts

Fellowship Exhibition

New Jersey fosters many fine artists. This exhibition of works by those visual artists and craftsmen who received grants in the two grant cycles, FY 87 and FY 88, offers excellent examples of the high quality of the work currently being produced here. Through this funding selected emerging and experienced artists are given an opportunity to spend the period working, experimenting and developing their exceptional skills.

The Monmouth Museum is delighted to have this opportunity to display these outstanding works. Its location in the central coastal area of New Jersey allows easy access statewide. In addition because this is the first time that the Museum will host a State Arts Council cosponsored exhibition our audience will be given a unique chance to view the sculpture, paintings, graphics, and crafts by New Jersey artists considered the most promising.

It has been a rewarding experience working with Tom Moran, Hortense Green and the staff at the State Council on the Arts. We look forward to many other cooperative ventures in the future.
