Pursuant to L.2013, c. 263, the Board of Public Utilities, in consultation with the Division of Consumer Affairs in the Department of Law and Public Safety, is required to adopt “interim advertising and marketing standards for electric power suppliers, gas suppliers, brokers, energy agents, marketers, private aggregators, sales representatives, and telemarketers (‘interested entities’) applicable to potential residential customers.” These standards must include, but are not limited to, “prohibiting the interested entities from making false or misleading advertising claims to a potential residential customer; or contacting a potential residential customer by telephone for the purpose of making an unsolicited advertisement if the interested entity does not have an existing business relationship with the potential residential customer and the residential customer’s telephone number appears on the no telemarketing call list established and maintained by the Division of Consumer Affairs[.]”

Further, Board Staff is conducting a review of the consumer protection-related provisions in the Board’s rules at N.J.A.C. 14:4-7.

Accordingly, Staff invites all interested entities and members of the public to a stakeholder meeting on proposed advertising and marketing standards; methods to educate current and potential customers about the provision of gas and/or electric service by third party suppliers; and consumers’ rights under federal and state laws.
