Gina Rosar	I have asked this question in writing for the last 3 or so meetings and have yet to receive a response. I want to know if the commission has released the standards for the Workplace Impairment Recognition Expert (WIRE) certification. If so where can we find the standards. How does someone obtain certification. Is it thru the state? A private company? How much would it cost? Does the state have a list of companies that meet the standards? Employers need this information.
Chris Ziegler	Do you see D9 regulations raising mg levels over the 10mg limit in the future?
Gina Rosar	When will the commission have the standards of certification of a Workplace Impairment Recognition Expert ("WIRE")? Will there be companies certified by the commission to provide training?
Kenneth M. Berry	Legalize homegrow.
Richard Neale	Please have someone look into my Compliance Officer contacting me, It's been over a month since I received my state license from the board. I was told when one becomes available. I've been paying rent for over 6 months and need to try to start my build out asap. Ive been working on this for over 3 years I hope you can understand my concerns and urgency I need, in order to become successful. Im a small business trying to weather the waiting storm. You guys are all doing a great job I been watching since day one the CRC create something out of nothing. I need some help tho please, all of my friends with licenses said it didn't take them this long. Thank you for your time.
