Superior Court, Law Division, Special Civil Part (Arts. 1 - 12) > Article 9. Proceedings Between Landlord and Tenant (§§ 2A:18-51 - 2A:18-61.67)

§ 2A:18-61.1. Grounds for removal of tenants

No lessee or tenant or the assigns, under-tenants or legal representatives of such lessee or tenant may be removed by the Superior Court from any house, building, mobile home or land in a mobile home park or tenement leased for residential purposes, other than (1) owner-occupied premises with not more than two rental units or a hotel, motel or other guest house or part thereof rented to a transient guest or seasonal tenant; (2) a dwelling unit which is held in trust on behalf of a member of the immediate family of the person or persons establishing the trust, provided that the member of the immediate family on whose behalf the trust is established permanently occupies the unit; and (3) a dwelling unit which is permanently occupied by a member of the immediate family of the owner of that unit, provided, however, that exception (2) or (3) shall apply only in cases in which the member of the immediate family has a developmental disability, except upon establishment of one of the following grounds as good cause:

a. The person fails to pay rent due and owing under the lease whether the same be oral or written; provided that, for the purposes of this section, any portion of rent unpaid by a tenant to a landlord but utilized by the tenant to continue utility service to the rental premises after receiving notice from an electric, gas, water or sewer public utility that such service was in danger of discontinuance based on nonpayment by the landlord, shall not be deemed to be unpaid rent.

b. The person has continued to be, after written notice to cease, so disorderly as to destroy the peace and quiet of the occupants or other tenants living in said house or neighborhood.

c. The person has willfully or by reason of gross negligence caused or allowed destruction, damage or injury to the premises.

d. The person has continued, after written notice to cease, to substantially violate or breach any of the landlord's rules and regulations governing said premises, provided such rules and regulations are reasonable and have been accepted in writing by the tenant or made a part of the lease at the beginning of the lease term.

(1) The person has continued, after written notice to cease, to substantially violate or breach any of the covenants or agreements contained in the lease for the premises where a right of reentry is reserved to the landlord in the lease for a violation of such covenant or agreement, provided that such covenant or agreement is reasonable and was contained in the lease at the beginning of the lease term.

(2) In public housing under the control of a public housing authority or redevelopment agency, the person has substantially violated or breached any of the covenants or agreements contained in the lease for the premises pertaining to illegal uses of controlled dangerous substances, or other illegal activities, whether or not a right of reentry is reserved to the landlord in the lease for a violation of such covenant or agreement, provided that such covenant or agreement conforms to federal guidelines regarding such lease provisions and was contained in the lease at the beginning of the lease term.

f. The person has failed to pay rent after a valid notice to quit and notice of increase of said rent, provided the increase in rent is not unconscionable and complies with any and all other laws or municipal ordinances governing rent increases.

g. The landlord or owner (1) seeks to permanently board up or demolish the premises because he has been cited by local or State housing inspectors for substantial violations affecting the health and safety of tenants and it is economically unfeasible for the owner to eliminate the violations; (2) seeks to comply with local or State housing inspectors who have cited him for substantial violations affecting the health and safety of tenants and it is unfeasible to so comply without removing the tenant; simultaneously with service of notice of eviction pursuant to this clause, the landlord shall notify the Department of Community Affairs of the intention to institute proceedings and shall provide the department with such other information as it may require pursuant to rules and regulations. The department shall inform all parties and the court of its view with respect to the feasibility of compliance without removal of the tenant and may in its discretion appear and present evidence; (3) seeks to correct an illegal occupancy because he has been cited by local or State housing inspectors or zoning officers and it is unfeasible to correct such illegal occupancy without removing the tenant; or (4) is a governmental agency which seeks to permanently retire the premises from the rental market pursuant to a redevelopment or land clearance plan in a blighted area. In those cases where the tenant is being removed for any reason specified in this subsection, no warrant for possession shall be issued until P.L.1967, c.79 (C.52:31B-1 et seq.) and P.L.1971, c.362 (C.20:4-1 et seq.) have been complied with.

h. The owner seeks to retire permanently the residential building or the mobile home park from residential use or use as a mobile home park, provided this subsection shall not apply to circumstances covered under subsection g. of this section.

i. The landlord or owner proposes, at the termination of a lease, reasonable changes of substance in the terms and conditions of the lease, including specifically any change in the term thereof, which the tenant, after written notice, refuses to accept; provided that in cases where a tenant has received a notice of termination pursuant to subsection g. of section 3 of P.L.1974, c.49 (C.2A:18-61.2), or has a protected tenancy status pursuant to the "Senior Citizens and Disabled Protected Tenancy Act," P.L.1981, c.226 (C.2A:18-61.22 et al.), or pursuant to the "Tenant Protection Act of 1992," P.L.1991, c.509 (C.2A:18-61.40 et al.), the landlord or owner shall have the burden of proving that any change in the terms and conditions of the lease, rental or regulations both is reasonable and does not substantially reduce the rights and privileges to which the tenant was entitled prior to the conversion.

j. The person, after written notice to cease, has habitually and without legal justification failed to pay rent which is due and owing.

k. The landlord or owner of the building or mobile home park is converting from the rental market to a condominium, cooperative or fee simple ownership of two or more dwelling units or park sites, except as hereinafter provided in subsection I. of this section. Where the tenant is being removed pursuant to this subsection, no warrant for possession shall be issued until this act has been complied with. No action for possession shall be brought pursuant to this subsection against a senior citizen tenant or disabled tenant with protected tenancy status pursuant to the "Senior Citizens and Disabled Protected Tenancy Act," P.L.1981, c.226 (C.2A:18-61.22 et al.), or against a qualified tenant under the "Tenant Protection Act of 1992," P.L.1991, c.509 (C.2A:18-61.40 et al.), as long as the agency has not terminated the protected tenancy status or the protected tenancy period has not expired.

I.

(1) The owner of a building or mobile home park, which is constructed as or being converted to a condominium, cooperative or fee simple ownership, seeks to evict a tenant or sublessee whose initial tenancy began after the master deed, agreement establishing the cooperative or subdivision plat was recorded, because the owner has contracted to sell the unit to a buyer who seeks to personally occupy it and the contract for sale calls for the unit to be vacant at the time of closing. However, no action shall be brought against a tenant under paragraph (1) of this subsection unless the tenant was given a statement in accordance with section 6 of P.L.1975, c.311 (C.2A:18-61.9);

(2) The owner of three or less condominium or cooperative units seeks to evict a tenant whose initial tenancy began by rental from an owner of three or less units after the master deed or agreement establishing the cooperative was recorded, because the owner seeks to personally occupy the unit, or has contracted to sell the unit to a buyer who seeks to personally occupy it and the contract for sale calls for the unit to be vacant at the time of closing;

(3) The owner of a building of three residential units or less seeks to personally occupy a unit, or has contracted to sell the residential unit to a buyer who wishes to personally occupy it and the contract for sale calls for the unit to be vacant at the time of closing.

m. The landlord or owner conditioned the tenancy upon and in consideration for the tenant's employment by the landlord or owner as superintendent, janitor or in some other capacity and such employment is being terminated.

n. The person has been convicted of or pleaded guilty to, or if a juvenile, has been adjudicated delinguent on the basis of an act which if committed by an adult would constitute an offense under the "Comprehensive Drug Reform Act of 1987," N.J.S.2C:35-1 et al., involving the use, possession, manufacture, dispensing or distribution of a controlled dangerous substance, controlled dangerous substance analog or drug paraphernalia within the meaning of that act within or upon the leased premises or the building or complex of buildings and land appurtenant thereto, or the mobile home park, in which those premises are located, and has not in connection with his sentence for that offense either (1) successfully completed or (2) been admitted to and continued upon probation while completing, a drug rehabilitation program pursuant to N.J.S.2C:35-14; or, being the tenant or lessee of such leased premises, knowingly harbors or harbored therein a person who has been so convicted or has so pleaded, or otherwise permits or permitted such a person to occupy those premises for residential purposes, whether continuously or intermittently, except that this subsection shall not apply to a person harboring or permitting a juvenile to occupy the premises if the juvenile has been adjudicated delinguent upon the basis of an act which if committed by an adult would constitute the offense of use or possession under the said act. No action for removal may be brought pursuant to this subsection more than two years after the date of the adjudication or conviction or more than two years after the person's release from incarceration whichever is the later.

o. The person has been convicted of or pleaded guilty to, or if a juvenile, has been adjudicated delinquent on the basis of an act which if committed by an adult would constitute an offense under N.J.S.2C:12-1 or N.J.S.2C:12-3 involving assault, or terroristic threats against the landlord, a member of the landlord's family or an employee of the landlord; or, being the tenant or lessee of such leased premises, knowingly harbors or harbored therein a person who has been so convicted or has so pleaded, or otherwise permits or permitted such a person to occupy those premises for residential purposes, whether continuously or intermittently. No action for removal may be brought pursuant to this subsection more than two years after the adjudication or conviction or more than two years after the person's release from incarceration whichever is the later.

p. The person has been found, by a preponderance of the evidence, liable in a civil action for removal commenced under this act for an offense under N.J.S.2C:20-1 et al. involving theft of property located on the leased premises from the landlord, the leased premises or other tenants residing in the leased premises, or N.J.S.2C:12-1 or N.J.S.2C:12-3 involving assault or terroristic threats against the landlord, a member of the landlord's family or an employee of the landlord, or under the "Comprehensive Drug Reform Act of 1987," N.J.S.2C:35-1 et al., involving the use, possession, manufacture, dispensing or distribution of a controlled dangerous substance, controlled dangerous substance analog or drug paraphernalia within the meaning of that act within or upon the leased premises or the building or complex of buildings and land appurtenant thereto, or the mobile home park, in which those premises are located, and has not in connection with his sentence for that offense either (1) successfully completed or (2) been admitted to and continued upon probation while completing a drug rehabilitation program pursuant to N.J.S.2C:35-14; or, being the tenant or lessee of such leased premises, knowingly harbors or harbored therein a person who committed such an offense, or otherwise permits or permitted such a person to occupy those premises for residential purposes, whether continuously or intermittently, except that this subsection shall not apply to a person who harbors or permits a juvenile to occupy the premises if the juvenile has been adjudicated delinquent upon the basis of an act which if committed by an adult would constitute the offense of use or possession under the said "Comprehensive Drug Reform Act of 1987."

q. The person has been convicted of or pleaded guilty to, or if a juvenile, has been adjudicated delinquent on the basis of an act which if committed by an adult would constitute an offense under N.J.S.2C:20-1 et al. involving theft of property from the landlord, the leased premises or other tenants residing in the same building or complex; or, being the tenant or lessee of such leased premises, knowingly harbors therein a person who has been so convicted or has so pleaded, or otherwise permits such a person to occupy those premises for residential purposes, whether continuously or intermittently.

r. The person is found in a civil action, by a preponderance of the evidence, to have committed a violation of the human trafficking provisions set forth in section 1 of P.L.2005, c.77 (C.2C:13-8) within or upon the leased premises or the building or complex of buildings and land appurtenant thereto, or the mobile home park, in which those premises are located; or, being the tenant or lessee of such leased premises, knowingly harbors or harbored therein a person who has been engaged in human trafficking, or otherwise permits or permitted such a person to occupy those premises for residential purposes, whether continuously or intermittently. No action for removal may be brought pursuant to this subsection more than two years after the alleged violation has terminated. A criminal conviction or a guilty plea to a crime of human trafficking under section 1 of P.L.2005, c.77 (C.2C:13-8) shall be considered prima facie evidence of civil liability under this subsection.

For purposes of this section, (1) "developmental disability" means any disability which is defined as such pursuant to section 3 of P.L.1977, c.82 (C.30:6D-3); (2) "member of the immediate family" means a person's spouse, parent, child or sibling, or a spouse, parent, child or sibling of any of them; and (3) "permanently" occupies or occupied means that the occupant maintains no other domicile at which the occupant votes, pays rent or property taxes or at which rent or property taxes are paid on the occupant's behalf.

Attorney representing a landlord in a summary dispossess action is a "debt collector" subject to the Federal Fair Debt Collection Practices Act, 15 U.S.C.S. §§ 1692-16920, 1692a(6), if the attorney regularly engages in the practice of filing summary dispossess actions. Hodges v. Feinstein, Raiss, Kelin & Booker, LLC, 383 N.J. Super. 596, 893 A.2d 21, 2006 N.J. Super. LEXIS 66 (App.Div. 2006), aff'd, 189 N.J. 210, 915 A.2d 1, 2007 N.J. LEXIS 24 (N.J. 2007).

Even though it is an in rem proceeding, a summary dispossess action is an action on a "debt" within the meaning of the Fair Debt Collection Practices Act, 15 U.S.C.S. §§ 1692-16920, 1692a(5). Hodges v. Feinstein, Raiss, Kelin & Booker, LLC, 383 N.J. Super. 596, 893 A.2d 21, 2006 N.J. Super. LEXIS 66 (App.Div. 2006), aff'd, 189 N.J. 210, 915 A.2d 1, 2007 N.J. The special notice required by N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.9, and the jurisdictional impact of such notice, applies, by its terms, to N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1(1), and, by its absence, not to N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1(2), and N.J. Admin. Code tit. 5, § 24-1.9 does not extend the notice requirement to N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1(1)(2); thus the trial court erred in dismissing plaintiff landlord's dispossession action against defendant tenant based on the landlord's failure to comply with the notice provision. 224 Jefferson St. Condo. Civil Procedure: Pleading & Practice: Pleadings: Heightened Pleading Requirements: General Overview

Tenants' motion to dismiss, based upon a failure to receive notice in Spanish of the summary action for possession of a residential unit brought by a landlord, was denied, because the landlord had no legal obligation to provide the tenants with the notices to cease or to quit in any foreign language. New York East Coast Management v. Gonzalez, 376 N.J. Super. 264, 870 A.2d 314, 2004 N.J. Super. LEXIS 468 (Law Div. 2004).

Prior caselaw precedent holding that a landlord is required to provide notices to cease and to quit in summary eviction actions in the language presumed known to the tenant are held out-dated as overly burdensome, impractical, and subject to abuse by tenants who feign illiteracy to avoid eviction. A landlord is not required to provide the notices in any foreign language. New York East Coast Management v. Gonzalez, 376 N.J. Super. 264, 870 A.2d 314, 2004 N.J. Super. LEXIS 468 (Law Div. 2004).

Trial judge erred by trying a summary dispossess action against a tenant in the absence of the tenant's guardian. As the judge knew the tenant did not satisfy the "sound mind" requirement of N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:15-1, the judge should have appointed a guardian ad litem for the tenant under N.J. Ct. R. 4:26-2; because the judge did not, the court lacked personal jurisdiction over the tenant. Village Apartments of Cherry Hill, N.J. v. Novack, 383 N.J. Super. 574, 893 A.2d 8, 2006 N.J. Where a tenant successfully defended a state court summary dispossess proceeding, and where the tenant then filed a civil rights action against a landlord and attacked New Jersey's statutory procedure for the summary dispossession of tenants, and where the tenant and the State of New Jersey filed summary judgment motions, the court granted summary judgment in favor of the state and against the tenant. Crocker v. Where a resident who had formerly been a record owner of certain property disputed the right of a mortgage company to proceed in an eviction action, pursuant to N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1, because both parties presented evidence that, if believed, supported their positions as to title of the property, the matter was required to be dismissed so that either party could be allowed to commence or continue an appropriate action that would not be contrary to N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-52. Chase Manhattan Mortg. Corp. v. Hunt, 364 N.J. Super. 587, 837 A.2d 451, 2003 N.J. Super. LEXIS 374 (Law Div. 2003).

Civil Procedure: Remedies: Writs: General Overview

Tenant's complaint in lieu of prerogative writs was properly dismissed by a trial court with regard to her challenge of her landlord's eviction of her from a building that was converted to an owner-occupied, four-family dwelling that was previously a rent controlled premises as the conversion exempted the building under the language of the local rent leveling ordinance. The ordinance provided the tenant protections that were at least coextensive with the protections of New Jersey's Anti-Eviction Act, N.J. Stat. Ann. §§ 2A:18-61.1 to -61.12, but neither the ordinance nor the Anti-Eviction Act implicitly created vested rights of a pre-conversion tenant beyond its explicit terms and, as to the latter point, the Superior Court of New Jersey disagreed with the contrary holding of Surace v. Papachristou, 244 N.J. Super. 70 (App. Div. 1990), and disapproved of the contrary holding in Chambers v. Nunez, 217 N.J. Super. 202 (Law Div. 1986).Osoria v. Civil Procedure: Appeals: Standards of Review: Plain Error: General Overview

Public housing agency's noncompliance with controlling federal requirements on termination of a tenancy, and the resulting lack of specificity required by N.J.S.A. 2A:18-61.2, deprived the trial court of jurisdiction over a summary dispossess action to terminate a public housing tenancy pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2A:18-61.1(p), and thus the trial court's failure to resolve the notice issue constituted plain error under N.J. Ct. R. 2:10-2; the notice failed to advise the tenant that she was not entitled to a grievance hearing; failed to identify the judicial court in which the eviction process was to occur; and failed to advise the tenant that the United States Department of Housing and Urban Development had determined that the judicial eviction procedure to be used by the public housing agency provided the opportunity for a hearing that afforded the basic elements of due process. Housing Auth. v. Raindrop, 287 N.J. Super. 222, 670 A.2d 1087, 1996 N.J. Super. LEXIS 49 (App.Div. 1996).

Constitutional Law: Congressional Duties & Powers: Contracts Clause: General Overview

In an action by plaintiff property owners seeking declaratory and injunctive relief as to retroactive enforcement of the New Jersey Senior Citizens and Disabled Protected Tenancy Act (Tenancy Act), because § 14 of the Tenancy Act, N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.11(d), simply enlarged the terms of a statutory tenancy already created by the New Jersey Anti-Eviction Act, the property owners failed to satisfy the threshold requirement under the contracts clause, U.S. Const. art. I, § 10, of showing a substantial impairment of a contractual relationship. Troy, Ltd. v. Renna, 727 F.2d 287, 1984 U.S. App. LEXIS 25937 (3d Cir. N.J. 1984).

One of the evictions authorized by the New Jersey Anti-Eviction Act was a conversion by an owner from rental housing to condominium form of ownership, N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1(k), but eviction for that purpose required that the owner satisfy several conditions, including that the owner must have served a notice of termination three years before the institution of any action for eviction, and, pursuant to N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.2(g), no action could be instituted until the existing lease expired; combined with N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.11(a), (c), the grace period before eviction could, in effect, be extended from three to eight years. Troy, Ltd. v. Renna, 727 F.2d 287, 1984 U.S. App. LEXIS 25937 (3d Cir. N.J. 1984).

Constitutional Law: Supremacy Clause: General Overview

Preemption by the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) of control of the minimum rents chargeable by a landlord whose apartment complex was financed by a HUD mortgage did not prohibit the state court from a consideration of whether such rent increases were unconscionable, therefore precluding dispossession by reason of nonpayment under N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1(f); although the percentage of the increase was large, the resulting rent was not so great as to shock the conscience of a reasonable person and was not effected for the purpose of compelling the tenant to vacate. Edgemere at Somerset v. Johnson, 143 N.J. Super. 222, 362 A.2d 1250, 1976 N.J. Super. LEXIS 1143 (Cty. Ct. 1976).

Constitutional Law: Supremacy Clause: Federal Preemption

In a summary dispossess action involving tenants who received Section 8 federal housing assistance the trial court properly found that federal HUD regulations preempted New Jersey's Anti-Eviction Act under the Supremacy Clause because the landlord was a Section 8 participant and had entered into a HAP contract classified as a subsidized insured project that was governed by the HUD regulations, and thus, HUD-approved rent increases were not reviewable in summary dispossess proceedings. Summit Plaza Associates v. Kolta, 462 N.J. Super. 401, 227 A.3d 291, 2020 N.J. Super. LEXIS 20 (App.Div.), certif. denied, 244 N.J. 145, 237 A.3d 281, 2020 N.J. LEXIS 984 (N.J. 2020).

Constitutional Law: Supremacy Clause: Supreme Law of the Land

Where 100 percent of a tenant's rent was paid by a Section 8 housing subsidy, she could not be evicted for failure to pay water and sewage bills, which were defined as "rent" in the lease. Under $42 U.S.C.S. \\ 1437f(0)(2)(A)$ and 24 C.F.R. 982.451(b), which preempted New Jersey law, the landlord could not use the terms of her lease to broaden the definition of rent to include utility charges, and then use this broader definition of rent as a basis for eviction for non-payment of rent under N.J. Stat. Ann. \\ 2A:18-61.1(a). Sudersan v. Royal, 386 N.J. Super. 246, 900 A.2d 320, 2005 N.J. Super. LEXIS 405 (App.Div. 2005).

Constitutional Law: Equal Protection: Scope of Protection

Where a tenant successfully defended a state court summary dispossess proceeding, and where the tenant then filed a civil rights action against a landlord and attacked New Jersey's statutory procedure for the summary dispossession of tenants, and where the tenant and the State of New Jersey filed summary judgment motions, the court granted summary judgment in favor of the state and against the tenant. Crocker v. First Hudson Associates, 583 F. Supp. 21, 1983 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 14933 (D.N.J. 1983), aff'd, 738 F.2d 421 (3d Cir. N.J. 1984), aff'd, 738 F.2d 421, 1984 U.S. App. LEXIS 21335 (3d Cir. N.J. 1984).

Contracts Law: Consideration: Detrimental Reliance

Reviewing court reversed a judgment for possession for a landlord who evicted tenants at the end of their lease term because they did not get rid of their pet; the reviewing court held that the tenants purchase of a pet based on the landlord's approval of the pet was sufficient detriment to bind the landlord to this separate agreement where they had resided in the unit for an 11-year period with the pet dog giving no cause for complaint to the landlord or from neighbors. *Royal Associates v. In a summary dispossession action initiated by a landlord of Section 8 housing against a deceased tenant's estate and the surviving daughter of the tenant, who resided in the apartment, the daughter was found to be a functional co-tenant, namely one who could show that she had been continuously in residence; had been a substantial contributor toward satisfaction of the tenancy's financial obligations; and that her contribution had been acknowledged and acquiesced to by her landlord. As a result, the daughter was entitled invoke the protections of New Jersey's Anti-Eviction Act. Maglies v. Estate of Guy, 193 N.J. 108, 936 A.2d 414, 2007 N.J. LEXIS 1436 (N.J. 2007).

In distinguishing between "the owner of a building" and "the owner of three or less units" in N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1 (1)(1) and (2) of the Anti-Eviction Act, N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.12, the Legislature established a different requirement for the latter by mandating less stringent standards for eviction, which were based on the number of units owned or extant in the building. N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1(1)(2) and (3), which refer to owners of three or less condominium units and owners of buildings with three or less residential units, respectively, are both silent as to the statutory notice requirement of N.J. Landlord who sought to evict a tenant of an apartment, which was originally constructed as an intended condominium unit, through a summary dispossess action and to convey the condominium unit under a contract of sale to a third party failed to comply with the requirements of the Anti-Eviction Act, N.J.S.A. 2A:18-61.1 et seq., by failing to provide written notice in the form required by N.J.S.A. 2A:18-61.9; by failing to demonstrate that the condominium would be sold to an owner-occupant; and by failing to present evidence that the apartment building was a condominium or evidence of when the master deed was filed. Vander Sterre Bros. Landlord who sought to evict a tenant of an apartment, which was originally constructed as an intended condominium unit, through a summary dispossess action and to convey the condominium unit under a contract of sale to a third party could not obtain a judgment for possession under N.J.S.A. 2A:18-61.1(l)(1) on only sixty-days' notice because the landlord failed to give the tenant the notice required by N.J.S.A. 2A:18-61.9 at the inception of the tenancy; failure to give the tenant the required notice barred the court from entering a judgment for dispossession under N.J.S.A. 2A:18-61.1(l)(1) and N.J.S.A.

Trial court properly dismissed an action brought by a cooperative apartment association seeking summary dispossession of a member-occupant under N.J. Stat. The Legislature did not intend the Anti-Eviction Act (act), N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1 et seq., to affect the rights of a mortgagee unless the mortgagee's relationship to the occupant became one of landlord-tenant; a foreclosing mortgagee of a residential apartment building was therefore entitled to evict tenants without complying with the act. Guttenberg Sav. & Loan Assoc. v. Holding in Chase Manhattan Bank v. Josephson, 135 N.J. 209, 638 A.2d 1301 (1994), that the Anti-Eviction Act, N.J. Stat. Ann. §§ 2A:18-61.1 to 2A:18-61.12, protects tenants from eviction regardless of whether the tenancy was established before or after execution of the mortgage, applies only to residential tenancies that are subject to the Anti-Eviction Act and leaves undisturbed the basic principle that a lessee whose leasehold interest predates the mortgage must be joined in the foreclosure proceeding. Davin, L.L.C. v. Daham, 329 N.J. Super. 54, 746 A.2d 1034, 2000 N.J. Super. LEXIS 92 (App.Div. 2000).

The Anti-Eviction Act, N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1, must be interpreted with a view toward its legislative purpose: a recognition that tenants are frequently unfairly and arbitrarily ousted without reasonable grounds or suitable notice and are placed at a grave disadvantage because of existing critical housing shortages. Surace v. Pappachristou, 244 N.J. Super. 70, 581 A.2d 875, 1990 N.J. Super. LEXIS 373 (App.Div. 1990), abrogated, Osoria v. West New York Rent Control Bd., 410 N.J. Super. 437, 982 A.2d 1185, 2009 N.J. Super. LEXIS 238 (App.Div. 2009).

Landlords could not take title to building and delete just enough units from the rental market to render the premises exempt from the "good cause" provisions of the Anti-Eviction Act, N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1, and then evict tenant. Surace v. Pappachristou, 244 N.J. Super. 70, 581 A.2d 875, 1990 N.J. Super. LEXIS 373 (App.Div. 1990), abrogated, Osoria v. West New York Rent Control Bd., 410 N.J. Super. 437, 982 A.2d 1185, 2009 N.J. Super. LEXIS 238 (App.Div. 2009).

In a case in which the tenants argued that the landlords violated New Jersey's Anti-Eviction Statute by initiating an eviction action before the end of the lease and by failing to provide proper notices to them, that argument was insufficient to show that the landlords breached the lease agreement. If anything, they failed to comply with the procedures contemplated in the statute. N'Jie v. Mei Cheung, 504 Fed. Appx. 108, 2012 U.S. App. LEXIS 23853 (3d Cir. N.J. 2012).

Trial court properly dismissed a landlord's action in lieu of prerogative writs challenging a township's ordinance imposing certain registration obligations and other regulatory requirements on landlords within the township as the ordinance was not preempted by the Hotel and Multiple Dwelling Law, N.J. Stat. Ann. §§ 55:13A-1 to -28, and no invalid purpose was shown by the landlord, thus, the presumption of the ordinance's validity remained. Lake Valley Associates, LLC v. In a summary dispossession action initiated by a landlord of Section 8 housing against a deceased tenant's estate and the surviving daughter of the tenant, who resided in the apartment, the daughter was found to be a functional co-tenant, namely one who could show that she had been continuously in residence; had been a substantial contributor toward satisfaction of the tenancy's financial obligations; and that her contribution had been acknowledged and acquiesced to by her landlord. As a result, the daughter was entitled invoke the protections of New Jersey's Anti-Eviction Act. Maglies v. Estate of Guy, 193 N.J. 108, 936 A.2d 414, 2007 N.J. LEXIS 1436 (N.J. 2007).

That five unauthorized persons vacated a tenant's federally subsidized apartment two days before an eviction trial began was not grounds for dismissing a housing authority's complaint under New Jersey Anti-Eviction Act, N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1 et seq.; any cure had to address and remediate the lengthy period of unauthorized lodging. Housing and Redevelopment Authority of the Tp. of Franklin v. Mayo, 390 N.J. Super. 425, 915 A.2d 1063, 2007 N.J. Super. LEXIS 16 (App.Div. 2007).

In a landlord-tenant case, a judgment for possession based on habitual late payment of rent was reversed on appeal where the evidence showed that the tenant had a very limited income, serious health problems, and a son who was developmentally disabled; had lived in the apartment for about 30 years; and had produced evidence that her rent had always been due on the 18th of the month. The appellate court found that the new landlord wrongfully accelerated the rent due date to the first of the month without serving a notice to quit and offering a new tenancy with a new rent-due date and that the trial court, under the circumstances presented, erred by limiting itself to choosing between evicting the tenant and dismissing the case since the rent-due date should have been determined and the tenant should have been permitted to assert a Marini defense to a claim of habitual late payment of rent, provided that the late payments were due to withholding of rent because of habitability problems in the apartment. 279 4th Ave. Management, L.L.C. v. Summary dispossess proceeding against a person declared incompetent or incapacitated may not proceed in the absence of the person's guardian. Village Apartments of Cherry Hill, N.J. v. Novack, 383 N.J. Super. 574, 893 A.2d 8, 2006 N.J. Super. LEXIS 63 (App.Div. 2006).

Attorney representing a landlord in a summary dispossess action is a "debt collector" subject to the Federal Fair Debt Collection Practices Act, 15 U.S.C.S. §§ 1692-16920, 1692a(6), if the attorney regularly engages in the practice of filing summary dispossess actions. Hodges v. Even though it is an in rem proceeding, a summary dispossess action is an action on a "debt" within the meaning of the Fair Debt Collection Practices Act, 15 U.S.C.S. §§ 1692-16920, 1692a(5). Hodges v. Where 100 percent of a tenant's rent was paid by a Section 8 housing subsidy, she could not be evicted for failure to pay water and sewage bills, which were defined as "rent" in the lease. Under 42 U.S.C.S. § 1437f(o)(2)(A) and 24 C.F.R. 982.451(b), which preempted New Jersey law, the landlord could not use the terms of her lease to broaden the definition of rent to include utility charges, and then use this broader definition of rent as a basis for eviction for non-payment of rent under N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1(a). Sudersan v. Royal, 386 N.J. Super. 246, 900 A.2d 320, 2005 N.J. Super. LEXIS 405 (App.Div. 2005).

Where a tenant receives a Section 8 housing subsidy, the landlord may not use the terms of its lease to broaden the definition of rent to include utility charges, and to then use this broader definition of rent as a basis for eviction under N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1(a). Sudersan v. Royal, 386 N.J. Super. 246, 900 A.2d 320, 2005 N.J. Super. LEXIS 405 (App.Div. 2005).

Landlord's action for summary eviction should not have been dismissed because, although the language of the lease, which was a model lease for federally subsidized housing, did not contain the words "right of re-entry," as required by N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1, the lease was sufficient to reserve a right of re-entry as required by the statute in that the language of the lease adequately advised the tenant of the landlord's right of re-entry in practical and understandable terms. Kuzuri Kijiji, Inc. v. Despite properly serving tenants with a notice to quit, pursuant to N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.2, and subsequently, a notice to cease, pursuant to N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1, a landlord's failure to properly advise the tenants that their continued failure to timely make rent payments would result in their eviction mandated that the tenants were entitled to continuing notice of the status of events. Ivy Hill Park, Section III, Inc. v. Abutidze, 371 N.J. Super. 103, 852 A.2d 217, 2004 N.J. Super. LEXIS 259 (App.Div. 2004).

Since the purpose of the tenant relocation assistance statute was to help tenants in moving from the city's many apartments that were in violation of the city's zoning ordinances, the court's reading of that statute as directing the landlord to pay six times the tenant's monthly rent to the tenant five days before evicting the tenant rather than the appellate court's reading of the statute's language to require the landlord to pay actual relocation costs not to exceed six times the monthly rent, was more in line with the legislative intent and would be followed. Miah v. Ahmed, 179 N.J. 511, 846 A.2d 1244, 2004 N.J. LEXIS 470 (N.J. 2004).

Municipalities had the authority to require that a landlord pay an "additional fine" for a zoning code violation for an illegal occupancy "up to" an amount equal to six times the monthly rental rate paid by the displaced person, pursuant to N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.19; the legislature's use of the phrase "up to" in that statutory section and deletion of it from N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1h showed that the legislature meant tenant relocation assistance payments in N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1h "equal to" an amount six times the tenant's rent was a non-discretionary sum and not ceiling amount. Miah v. Ahmed, 179 N.J. 511, 846 A.2d 1244, 2004 N.J. LEXIS 470 (N.J. 2004).

Landlord's action seeking possession of premises it leased to a tenant was dismissed, where the tenant was not willfully or grossly negligent when one of its clients destroyed the premises, the landlord failed to prove that the tenant knew that the client would destroy the apartment, the client was not named in the lease as the tenant, and the client no longer resided at the premises. Korman Suites at Willow Shores v. Hybrid tenancy, where subtenants were caretakers of historic state-owned property and assigned housekeeping and maintenance duties but also paid rent, was not one intended by the legislature for protection under the Anti-Eviction Act, N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1 to -61.12; enforcement under the Act would probably not survive constitutional scrutiny because of the absence of sufficient public necessity to warrant interference with a landlord's common law rights, and because it would have the effect of compelling donation of the use of public property to private parties without sufficient offset consideration. The Meadows Foundation, Inc. v. Williamson, 368 N.J. Super. 416, 846 A.2d 653, 2004 N.J. Super. LEXIS 162 (App.Div. 2004).

Word "employment" as used in N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1(m) is broad enough to contemplate the services of an independent contractor whose tenancy is incidental to the employment of his or her services; therefore the caretaker and maintenance services required of tenants of a historical foundation fulfilled the legislative intention captured in the words "or in some other capacity". The Meadows Foundation, Inc. v. Williamson, 368 N.J. Super. 416, 846 A.2d 653, 2004 N.J. Super. LEXIS 162 (App.Div. 2004).

Effect of Anti-Eviction Act, N.J. Stat. Being in derogation of a landlord's common-law right of ownership, the Anti-Eviction Act, N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1 to -61.12, must be strictly construed. J.M.J. To preclude a landlord from receiving a rent increase during the 18-month notification period would not foster the purposes of the Anti-Eviction Act, N.J. Stat. Adverse effect to the human senses was not in the contemplation of the legislature as damage or destruction under N.J. Stat. Notice to cease a violation of a lease provision that required the occupants to move their residences within a fiveday period did not comply with the spirit of the Anti-Eviction Act; thus, a landlord's eviction complaint was dismissed without prejudice. Brunswick Street Assocs. v. In distinguishing between "the owner of a building" and "the owner of three or less units" in N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1 (1)(1) and (2) of the Anti-Eviction Act, N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1 to N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1, the

Ann. § 2A:18-61.1(I)(2) and (3), which refer to owners of three or less condominium units and owners of buildings with three or less residential units, respectively, are both silent as to the statutory notice requirement of N.J. Ownership of three or less condominium or residential units is substantially different from ownership of a larger and more expansive development, and this is the basis of the distinction between N.J. Under the New Jersey Anti-Eviction Act, N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1(1), when an owner of a building of not more than two rental units maintains and personally occupies his or her own unit on a part-time basis in good faith, the unit qualifies as an owner-occupied premises under the exception to the good cause requirement in the Anti-Eviction Act; there is no exact numerical formula for making that determination, but if it can be demonstrated that an owner of such a small building does not reside on the premises at all, but maintains his or her unit only to preserve his or her eviction rights under the exemption, in that circumstance the unit will not qualify for the owner-occupied exemption. McQueen v. Where a tenant's lease contained a no-pet provision but she had maintained a cat for eleven years and a dog for two years, the landlord's attempt to repossess tenant's unit because of her cat was an unreasonable application of the lease provision pursuant to N.J. Stat. Aim of the Anti-Eviction Act, N.J. Stat. N.J. Stat. The Act reflects the public policy that landlord rights must, in the interest of general welfare, defer to the needs of the tenant population. Franklin Tower One, L.L.C. v. N.M., 304 N.J. Landlords should be prepared to prove that an intended rent increase is not unconscionable under N.J. Stat. In determining the unconscionability of a rent increase under N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1(f), the trial court may consider the amount of the proposed rent increase; the landlord's expenses and profitability; how the existing and proposed rents compare to rents charged at similar rental properties in the area; the relative bargaining position of the parties; and, based on the judge's general knowledge, whether the rent increase would shock the conscience of a reasonable person. Fromet Props. v. Public housing agency's noncompliance with controlling federal requirements on termination of a tenancy, and the resulting lack of specificity required by N.J.S.A. 2A:18-61.2, deprived the trial court of jurisdiction over a summary dispossess action to terminate a public housing tenancy pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2A:18-61.1(p), and thus the trial court's failure to resolve the notice issue constituted plain error under N.J. Plaintiff occupant enjoyed permanent status as a tenant of a hotel under the Anti-Eviction Act, N.J. Stat. Judgment of possession granted in landlord's favor in a dispossess action was proper because tenant had to sign a lease with landlord containing a termination upon death clause or be dispossessed, but tenant's signing was without prejudice to a determination at the time of tenant's death of the legal effect, if any, of that clause. Riverview Realty *v. Action by plaintiff landlord for possession of an apartment that was rented to defendant, landlord's terminated employee, was dismissed because the Summary Dispossess Statute, N.J. Stat. Notice to cease and notice to quit delivered to a Hispanic tenant who was illiterate in English and who was being evicted for having a pet in his apartment were legally insufficient and void because they were not in the Spanish language and were therefore not suitable notice as required by N.J. Trial court properly dismissed tenant's complaint for damages based upon the landlord's alleged violations of the Anti-Eviction Statute, N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1, because such statute was not applicable to tenant who had a week-to-week tenancy. 1991 N.J. Super. LEXIS 270.

Dismissal of landlord's dispossess actions against tenants was proper because mandatory notices to governmental agencies filed 19 months late did not meet the strict standard of compliance prescribed by N.J. In view of the stated purpose of the anti-eviction act, N.J. Stat. Ann. 2A:18-61.1, it cannot be said the legislature intended that a tenant could be evicted because of an increase in the size of the family; technically, the rule limiting the number of occupants has been violated, but a family cannot be limited to any particular size, house rules cannot restrict a family from having children. This is not a substantial violation; even though a rule or regulation limits the occupancy of a residential unit, tenants are not bound to that limitation when the family unit is increased by natural means. Diaz v. Landlord could not evict tenants, who violated the terms of a written lease by permitting persons not named in the lease to occupy the apartment, because by the time the landlord had filed the action to dispossess the residential tenants, only the named tenants remained in the apartment; therefore, under N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1, the alleged violation of the lease had been abated and the landlord lost its authority to evict the tenants. Jijon v. Custodio, 251 N.J. When a landlord sought to evict a residential tenant for the purpose of expanding his business into the residential unit, he failed to demonstrate good cause for eviction pursuant to N.J. Stat. Trial court erred in granting the landlord possession of the apartment complex in which the tenant lived because at the time the dispossess action was filed the tenant did not owe the landlord any rent; the tenant was protected by the Anti-Eviction Act, N.J. In a landlord's action for possession under N.J. Stat. Owner that held a 3.5 percent ownership interest in the owner-occupied premises with not more than two rental units was not disqualified from the exemption under N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1; when a bona fide percentage of ownership existed, the person possessing it qualified for owner-occupier status, and an owner-occupier did not have to hold a certain percentage of ownership, as the statutory language did not qualify the word "owner." Dempsey v. Language of N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61 does not suggest, in any way, that an owner must have a certain percentage of ownership before that person qualifies for the owner-occupier exemption; rather the word "owner" conveys a meaning of nothing more than the emoluments of title and such emoluments may rest in more than one person. Dempsey v. Mastropasqua, 242 N.J. Super. 234, 576 A.2d 335, 1990 N.J. Super. LEXIS 248 (App.Div. 1990), certif. denied, 126 N.J. 330, 598 A.2d 889, 1991 N.J. LEXIS 475 (N.J. 1991).

Plain language of N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1 does not limit the exemption to buildings with two residential units; rather the words "two rental units" refer to two units capable of being rented or actually rented and thus such language identifies the use to which the two units are put and not the number of units in the structure. Dempsey v. Mastropasqua, 242 N.J. Landlord who had sought eviction of a tenant who did not sign a renewal lease after many years, likely because of a change in parking, was required under N.J. Stat. Where plaintiff sub-lessor had entered into a purchase agreement with the building owner that granted him the option to purchase a condominium unit within the building, and the sub-lessor in turn rented the condominium unit to defendant subtenant, after the owner of the building notified the sub-lessor that he needed to occupy the condominium so the purchase agreement was not violated and the subtenant did not pay the full rent due, it was found that the sub-lessor was the "owner," of the condominium unit rented to the subtenant, and as such the sub-lessor had the power to invoke the provisions of N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1 for eviction; to have granted the subtenant the protection of § 2A:18-61.1 would have been meaningless if the sub-tenant's lessor, sub-lessor, did not have the authority to act under the statute and to be bound by the restrictions of that law. *Marino v. In plaintiff landlord's eviction action against defendant tenant, occupation by plaintiff of a portion of premises for solely commercial purposes rendered the premises "owner-occupied," and thus, not subject to the Good Cause for Eviction Act, N.J. Landlord, an owner of a duplex, was not subject to the Good Cause for Eviction Act (Act), on the ground that the building was owner-occupied for purposes of the Act because the landlord was constantly present and working in her beauty salon; the landlord's notice of eviction to the tenant was adequate under N.J. Under N.J. Stat. If a landlord had a right to possession pursuant to any of the grounds stated in N.J. Stat. owners could evict the tenant from such a unit without cause, or keep the tenant and raise the rent with impunity. Couey v. Sterling, 224 N.J. Super. 581, 540 A.2d 1359, 1988 N.J. Super. LEXIS 142 (Law Div. 1988).

Landlord was not required to produce the testimony of another tenant in order to establish that occupants of an apartment were subject to summary dispossession action under N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1 where the circumstantial proof of violence, namely the arrests of the occupant's daughters for stabbings and assaults inside the apartment building, was sufficient. Housing Authority of Newark v. In plaintiff landlord's action for possession against defendant tenant, defendant's habitual late payment of rent, in order to constitute a ground for removal of defendant under N.J. Stat. Ann. 2A:18-61.1(j), required more than one late payment following a written notice to cease. 534 Hawthorne Ave. Corp. v. Barnes, 204 N.J. Super. 144, 497 A.2d 1265, 1985 N.J. Super. LEXIS 1471 (App.Div. 1985).

Reviewing court reversed a judgment for possession for a landlord who evicted tenants at the end of their lease term because they did not get rid of their pet; the reviewing court held that the tenants purchase of a pet based on the landlord's approval of the pet was sufficient detriment to bind the landlord to this separate agreement where they had resided in the unit for an 11-year period with the pet dog giving no cause for complaint to the landlord or from neighbors. Royal Associates v. Concannon, 200 N.J. Super. 84, 490 A.2d 357, 1985 N.J. Super. LEXIS 1224 (App.Div. 1985).

In an action by plaintiff property owners seeking declaratory and injunctive relief as to retroactive enforcement of the New Jersey Senior Citizens and Disabled Protected Tenancy Act (Tenancy Act), because § 14 of the Tenancy Act, N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.11(d), simply enlarged the terms of a statutory tenancy already created by the New Jersey Anti-Eviction Act, the property owners failed to satisfy the threshold requirement under the contracts clause, U.S. Const. art. I, § 10, of showing a substantial impairment of a contractual relationship. Troy, Ltd. v. Renna, 727 F.2d 287, 1984 U.S. App. LEXIS 25937 (3d Cir. N.J. 1984).

One of the evictions authorized by the New Jersey Anti-Eviction Act was a conversion by an owner from rental housing to condominium form of ownership, N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1(k), but eviction for that purpose required that the owner satisfy several conditions, including that the owner must have served a notice of termination three years before the institution of any action for eviction, and, pursuant to N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.2(g), no action could be instituted until the existing lease expired; combined with N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.11(a), (c), the grace period before eviction could, in effect, be extended from three to eight years. Troy, Ltd. v. Renna, 727 F.2d 287, 1984 U.S. App. LEXIS 25937 (3d Cir. N.J. 1984).

In addition to the New Jersey Anti-Eviction Act, N.J. Stat. Ann. § 46:8B-4 and N.J. Stat. Ann. § 46:8B-8, provisions of the New Jersey Condominium Act, and N.J. Stat. Ann. § 45:22A-28, N.J. Stat. Ann. § 45:22A-29, and N.J. Stat. Ann. § 45:22A-29, and N.J. Stat. Ann. § 45:22A-30, provisions of the Planned Real Estate Development Full Disclosure Act, governed the conversion of real property to the condominium form of ownership. Troy, Ltd. v. Renna, 727 F.2d 287, 1984 U.S. App. LEXIS 25937 (3d Cir. N.J. 1984).

The Anti-Eviction Act, N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1 et seq., which applied to leases whose purpose was fundamentally and primarily residential, was not applicable to a hospital's tenancy of apartments for its transient students and residents, which served, to a substantial degree, nonresidential purpose of aiding the staffing of the hospital. Morristown Memorial Hospital v. Wokem Mortg. & Realty Co., 192 N.J. Super. 182, 469 A.2d 515, 1983 N.J. Super. LEXIS 1025 (App.Div. 1983).

Where a tenant successfully defended a state court summary dispossess proceeding, and where the tenant then filed a civil rights action against a landlord and attacked New Jersey's statutory procedure for the summary dispossession of tenants, and where the tenant and the State of New Jersey filed summary judgment motions, the court granted summary judgment in favor of the state and against the tenant. Crocker v. Right to trial by jury in summary dispossess cases is still in force as N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1 Crocker v. First Hudson Associates, 583 F. Supp. 21, 1983 U.S. Dist. The landlords could not evict the tenants on two months' notice under the Anti-Eviction Act, N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1 et seq., because the total effect of N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1(k) and (I), and the corresponding notice requirements of N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.2(f) and (g), created a three-year notice protection to pre-conversion tenants. Kabakian v. Kobert, 188 N.J. Super. 517, 457 A.2d 1229, 1983 N.J. Super. Landlord was permitted to rely on the owner-occupied premises exception and evict tenant without proof of good cause for removal; landlord lived in a single family house and the leasehold was an unattached outbuilding in the rear which the court determined to be on the same "premises." Fresco v. Policastro, 186 N.J. Super. 204, 451 A.2d 1341, 1982 N.J. Super. LEXIS 801 (Cty. Ct. 1982).

Where the tenant committed no acts that would have constituted good cause for removal, the landlord was not entitled to evict the tenant from a cottage situated on the same plot of land as the home in which the landlord resided because the "owner-occupied premises" exception to the Anti-Eviction Act, N. J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1, applied only to landlords and tenants who resided under the same roof and did not include separate dwellings on the same tract of land. Reggiori v. The Legislature did not intend the Anti-Eviction Act (act), N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1 et seq., to affect the rights of a mortgagee unless the mortgagee's relationship to the occupant became one of landlord-tenant; a foreclosing mortgagee of a residential apartment building was therefore entitled to evict tenants without complying with the act. Guttenberg Sav. & Loan Assoc. v. Rivera, 85 N.J. 617, 428 A.2d 1289, 1981 N.J. LEXIS 1611 (N.J. 1981).

Anti-Eviction Act had not barred tenant's eviction from a 100 acre farm, which contained one barn and two dwelling houses, because the premises were not leased solely for tenant's residential purposes. Harden v. Although a migrant farmworker was not a tenant or otherwise included in N.J. Stat. Ann. 2A:18-61.1(m), which pertained to the dispossession of certain residential tenants, a farm labor service could not use self-help but was required to proceed in a judicial action to dispossess a farmworker who remained in possession of his living quarters after termination of his employment. Vasquez v. Under N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1(I)(3), a landlord may evict a tenant if he is the owner of a building of three residential units or less and seeks to personally occupy a unit. Puttrich v. Smith, 170 N.J. Super. 572, 407 A.2d 842, 1979 N.J. Super. LEXIS 945 (App.Div. 1979).

Landlord's summary dispossess action was dismissed, because under N.J. Stat. Legal rights of a tenant who is already living in an apartment house are controlled, when conversion to condominiums occurs, by the provisions of the New Jersey Eviction for Cause Law, N.J. Stat. N.J. Stat. The court found that N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1(f) merely required a finding that the increase in rents charged by the landlord is not "unconscionable" as a prerequisite to summary eviction and that the federal regulations provided that the owners of subsidized insured projects were excused from complying with state and local laws which conditioned the remedy of eviction upon adherence to rent control provisions. Hill Manor Apartments v. Where landlord chose to bring an action to dispossess defendant tenants under N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1(i), he was required to comply with the notice provisions of N.J. Stat. Anti-Eviction Act, N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1(c) did not authorize the removal of a residential tenant who held over; the liability of the lessee to pay double rent under N.J. Stat. Preemption by the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) of control of the minimum rents chargeable by a landlord whose apartment complex was financed by a HUD mortgage did not prohibit the state court from a consideration of whether such rent increases were unconscionable, therefore precluding dispossession by reason of nonpayment under N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1(f); although the percentage of the increase was large, the resulting rent was not so great as to shock the conscience of a reasonable person and was not effected for the purpose of compelling the tenant to vacate. Edgemere at Somerset v. Fair Eviction Notice Act, N.J. Stat. Tenant was properly removed from possession of the premises since the landlord provided effective notice of the quit and increase in rent as required by the former N.J. Rev. Real Property Law: Landlord & Tenant: Landlord's Remedies & Rights: Eviction Actions: Forcible Entry & Detainer

Trial court erred by granting a landlord a judgment of possession because he failed to demonstrate that, after receipt of the notice to cease, the tenant habitually paid her rent in an untimely fashion since she had paid her rent timely in nine of the next 11 months prior to the trial. N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1(j) required a continuing course of conduct and the appellate court disagreed that the tenant's conduct, under the facts and circumstances presented, constituted such activity under the statute. Matthew G. Carter Apartments v. Richardson, 417 N.J. Super. 60, 8 A.3d 788, 2010 N.J. Super. LEXIS 222 (App.Div. 2010).

No judgment for possession may be entered unless the landlord demonstrates strict compliance with the Anti-Eviction Act, N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1, et seq. Ashley Court Enterprises v. Whittaker, 249 N.J. Super. 552, 592 A.2d 1228, 1991 N.J. Super. LEXIS 251 (App.Div. 1991).

Four statutory preconditions must be satisfied before a dispossess action can be filed for a tenant's failure to comply with the landlord's rules and regulations or for violation of the lease covenant and agreement: (1) the tenant must violate the landlord's rules and regulations or lease provisions; (2) the landlord must give the tenant a notice to cease those violations; (3) the tenant must continue to violate the rules and regulation or lease provisions after receiving the notice to cease; and (4) landlord must give the tenant a notice of termination one month before filing suit. Ashley Court Enterprises v. Whittaker, 249 N.J. Super. 552, 592 A.2d 1228, 1991 N.J. Super. LEXIS 251 (App.Div. 1991).

Notice to quit advising the tenant that the tenant's lease was terminated which stated "You have violated N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-53 by allowing unauthorized individuals to reside in your apartment " as the reason for termination was fatally defective because: (1) by the express language of N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-53, the removal grounds therein cannot be used as the basis for removal of residential tenants pursuant to N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1; (2) the notice did not list or describe the unauthorized individual residing in defendant's apartment; and (3) even if the claim for removal was based upon violation of a breach of any of the landlord's rules and regulations or a substantial violation of a breach of the lease covenants or agreements, the tenant was entitled to at least a onemonth notice to quit the premises and the notice did not specify in detail the cause of termination of the tenancy as required by N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.2. Ashley Court Enterprises v. Whittaker, 249 N.J. Super. 552, 592 A.2d 1228, 1991 N.J. Super. LEXIS 251 (App.Div. 1991).

It was improper for the trial judge to terminate the tenant's possession of an apartment based on violation of a lease provision prohibiting guests from reoccurring visits or one continuous visit of seven or more days and nights in a 30-day period where the trial judge made no findings that the tenant's guest was an unauthorized occupant of the apartment in violation of the lease and the reason for termination given in the notices to the tenant, in the landlord's complaint, and at trial was the violation of N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-53 by allowing unauthorized individuals to reside in the apartment, and not a violation of the lease provision. Ashley Court Enterprises v. Whittaker, 249 N.J. Super. 552, 592 A.2d 1228, 1991 N.J. Super. LEXIS 251 (App.Div. 1991).

Violation of a lease covenant or agreement may be the basis for removal of a residential tenant provided that such covenant or agreement is reasonable; however, a lease provision stating that adult persons or children making reoccurring visits or one continuous visit of seven or more days and nights in a 30-day period would be considered a violation of the lease and cause for termination was not a reasonable lease provision because it interfered with the covenant of quiet enjoyment and the ban on reoccurring visits by adult persons or children would disallow such regular visitors as babysitters and visiting care providers for the elderly or disabled and would prohibit a tenant from having the same guest on continuous weekends, entertaining a relative or friend for eight continuous days or exercising a two-week visitation or regular weekend visitation with the tenant's child pursuant to a shared custody or visitation arrangement. Ashley Court Enterprises v. Whittaker, 249 N.J. Super. 552, 592 A.2d 1228, 1991 N.J. Super. LEXIS 251 (App.Div. 1991).

Real Property Law: Landlord & Tenant: Landlord's Remedies & Rights: Eviction Actions: Summary Eviction

Though damages may not be awarded in a summary dispossess action, it is a powerful debt collection mechanism. Therefore, attorneys who regularly file such actions for nonpayment of rent are "debt collectors" under 15 U.S.C.S. § 1692a(6) and may be sued for violating the Fair Debt Collection Practices Act, 15 U.S.C.S. §§ 1692 to 1692o. Hodges v. Sasil Corp., 189 N.J. 210, 915 A.2d 1, 2007 N.J. LEXIS 24 (N.J. 2007).

As attorneys who regularly filed summary dispossess actions for nonpayment of rent were "debt collectors" under 15 U.S.C.S. § 1692a(6) of the Fair Debt Collection Practices Act (FDCPA), 15 U.S.C.S. §§ 1692 to 1692o, a trial court erred in dismissing on summary judgment two Section 8 tenants' suit against a law firm for violating the FDCPA. Hodges v. Sasil Corp., 189 N.J. 210, 915 A.2d 1, 2007 N.J. LEXIS 24 (N.J. 2007).

Until guidance is received from the New Jersey Supreme Court's Special Civil Part Practice Committee and adopted by the supreme court, complaints that initiate summary dispossess proceedings must be verified under N.J. Ct. R. 1:4-7; must prominently declare that only the payment of rent, as determined by federal law for Section 8 tenants, or by the lease for other tenants, is required to prevent eviction; and must expressly state the amount of debt owed, the creditor's identity, and that the amount must be paid to the landlord or the clerk before 4:30 p.m. on the day of trial for the case to be dismissed. These requirements apply to all landlords, represented or pro se, and regardless of their counsel's status as a "debt collector" under the Fair Debt Collection Practices Act, 15 U.S.C.S. §§ 1692 to 16920. Hodges v. Sasil Corp., 189 N.J. 210, 915 A.2d 1, 2007 N.J. LEXIS 24 (N.J. 2007).

Landlord who sought to evict a tenant of an apartment, which was originally constructed as an intended condominium unit, through a summary dispossess action and to convey the condominium unit under a contract of sale to a third party failed to comply with the requirements of the Anti-Eviction Act, N.J.S.A. 2A:18-61.1 et seq., by failing to provide written notice in the form required by N.J.S.A. 2A:18-61.9; by failing to demonstrate that the condominium would be sold to an owner-occupant; and by failing to present evidence that the apartment building was a condominium or evidence of when the master deed was filed. Vander Sterre Bros. Landlord who sought to evict a tenant of an apartment, which was originally constructed as an intended condominium unit, through a summary dispossess action and to convey the condominium unit under a contract of sale to a third party could not obtain a judgment for possession under N.J.S.A. 2A:18-61.1(I)(1) on only sixty-days' notice because the landlord failed to give the tenant the notice required by N.J.S.A. 2A:18-61.9 at the inception of the tenancy; failure to give the tenant the required notice barred the court from entering a judgment for dispossession under the provisions for sixty-day notice of eviction under N.J.S.A. 2A:18-61.1(I)(1) and N.J.S.A. 2A:18-61.1(I)(1) and N.J.S.A. 2A:18-61.2(f), and the three-year notice described in N.J.S.A. 2A:18-61.1(k) and N.J.S.A. 2A:18-61.2(g), and made applicable to the circumstances of the case by N.J.A.C. 5:24-1.9(b). Vander Sterre Bros. New Jersey Legislature's use of the word building, in its singular form, is both deliberate and dispositive under the Anti-Eviction Act, N.J. Stat. Ann. §§ 2A:18-61.1 to 2A:18-61.12, and the term designates a discreet physical structure, not a number of such structures connected by nothing more than the ownership of the land on which they sit. Cashin v. Bello, 223 N.J. 328, 123 A.3d 1042, 2015 N.J. LEXIS 964 (N.J. 2015).

Plaintiff was within her rights as a landowner to remove defendant from the detached garage that served as a rental apartment because it was a separate building with fewer than three residential units, and plaintiff owner sought to occupy the unit that defendant was renting in that building, therefore, plaintiff could evict defendant under the Anti-Eviction Act, N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1(I)(3). Cashin v. Bello, 223 N.J. 328, 123 A.3d 1042, 2015 N.J. LEXIS 964 (N.J. 2015).

In federally subsidized public housing, the commission of a disorderly persons offense justifies eviction of the tenant when the tenant's conduct threatens the health or safety of other tenants, or their right to peaceful enjoyment of the public housing premises. Housing & Redevelopment Authority of Tp. of Franklin v. Tenant in public housing that is under the control of a public housing agency may be removed from the leased premises, pursuant to N.J. Stat. Federal law permits a tenant to be evicted from public housing when a member of the household or guest engages in drug-related criminal activity in the leased premises, regardless of whether the tenant knew or should have known of the illegal activity. Long Branch Housing Authority v. Villano, 396 N.J. Super. 185, 933 A.2d 607, 2007 N.J. Super. LEXIS 320 (App.Div. 2007).

Trial court erred by dismissing a public housing authority's complaint to evict a tenant as the trial court had to consider the criteria set forth in N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1(e)(2), regardless of whether the tenant had knowledge of the alleged illegal drug activity going on in her apartment. On remand, the trial judge was directed to determine whether the tenant substantially breached or violated any covenant or agreement in the lease pertaining to the illegal use of controlled dangerous substances and whether the lease terms conformed to applicable federal guidelines, with the tenant permitted to be heard on any defense she may have to eviction under § 2A:18-61.1(e)(2). Real Property Law: Landlord & Tenant: Landlord's Remedies & Rights: Rent Recovery

Trial court erred by granting a landlord a judgment of possession because he failed to demonstrate that, after receipt of the notice to cease, the tenant habitually paid her rent in an untimely fashion since she had paid her rent timely in nine of the next 11 months prior to the trial. N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1(j) required a continuing course of conduct and the appellate court disagreed that the tenant's conduct, under the facts and circumstances presented, constituted such activity under the statute. Matthew G. Carter Apartments v. Richardson, 417 N.J. Super. 60, 8 A.3d 788, 2010 N.J. Super. LEXIS 222 (App.Div. 2010).

In a landlord-tenant case, a judgment for possession based on habitual late payment of rent was reversed on appeal where the evidence showed that the tenant had a very limited income, serious health problems, and a son who was developmentally disabled; had lived in the apartment for about 30 years; and had produced evidence that her rent had always been due on the 18th of the month. The appellate court found that the new landlord wrongfully accelerated the rent due date to the first of the month without serving a notice to quit and offering a new tenancy with a new rent-due date and that the trial court, under the circumstances presented, erred by limiting itself to choosing between evicting the tenant and dismissing the case since the rent-due date should have been determined and the tenant should have been permitted to assert a Marini defense to a claim of habitual late payment of rent, provided that the late payments were due to withholding of rent because of habitability problems in the apartment. 279 4th Ave. Management, L.L.C. v. Where a tenant receives a Section 8 housing subsidy, the landlord may not use the terms of its lease to broaden the definition of rent to include utility charges, and to then use this broader definition of rent as a basis for eviction under N.J. Public housing authority was entitled to maintain summary dispossess actions against tenants who did not sign addendums prohibiting drug use on federally subsidized property because N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1(i) permitted

What is "reasonable" within the meaning of N.J. Stat. Real Property Law: Landlord & Tenant: Rent Regulation: General Overview

The Anti-Eviction Act, N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1, must be interpreted with a view toward its legislative purpose: a recognition that tenants are frequently unfairly and arbitrarily ousted without reasonable grounds or suitable notice and are placed at a grave disadvantage because of existing critical housing shortages. Surace v. Pappachristou, 244 N.J. Super. 70, 581 A.2d 875, 1990 N.J. Super. LEXIS 373 (App.Div. 1990), abrogated, Osoria v. West New York Rent Control Bd., 410 N.J. Landlords could not take title to building and delete just enough units from the rental market to render the premises exempt from the "good cause" provisions of the Anti-Eviction Act, N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1, and then evict tenant. Surace v. Pappachristou, 244 N.J. Super. 70, 581 A.2d 875, 1990 N.J. Super. LEXIS 373 (App.Div. 1990), abrogated, Osoria v. N.J. Stat. Requirement in a municipal rent control ordinance for 60 days notice of a rent increase was not preempted by the provision of the Anti-Eviction Act, N.J. Stat. Ann. §§ 2A:18-61.1 and 2A:18-61.2, requiring only 30 days notice of a rent increase and notice to quit because the Act had an entirely different purpose from that of the ordinance. Harrison Associates v. The court found that N.J. Stat. conditioned the remedy of eviction upon adherence to rent control provisions. Hill Manor Apartments v. Brome, 164 N.J. Super. 295, 395 A.2d 1307, 1978 N.J. Super. LEXIS 1361 (Cty. Ct. 1978).

Preemption by the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) of control of the minimum rents chargeable by a landlord whose apartment complex was financed by a HUD mortgage did not prohibit the state court from a consideration of whether such rent increases were unconscionable, therefore precluding dispossession by reason of nonpayment under N.J. In an eviction action wherein the trial court found that the landlord had established grounds for eviction but also found that the action was retaliatory, in violation of the Tenant Reprisal Act (TRA), N.J. Stat. Ann. 2A:42-10.10 to - 10.14, it was error for the trial judge to have determined that the TRA was preempted by federal law governing public housing authorities. Real Property Law: Landlord & Tenant: Rent Regulation: Rent Control Statutes

Tenant's complaint in lieu of prerogative writs was properly dismissed by a trial court with regard to her challenge of her landlord's eviction of her from a building that was converted to an owner-occupied, four-family dwelling that was previously a rent controlled premises as the conversion exempted the building under the language of the local rent leveling ordinance. The ordinance provided the tenant protections that were at least coextensive with the protections of New Jersey's Anti-Eviction Act, N.J. Stat. Ann. §§ 2A:18-61.1 to -61.12, but neither the ordinance nor the Anti-Eviction Act implicitly created vested rights of a pre-conversion tenant beyond its explicit terms and, as to the latter point, the Superior Court of New Jersey disagreed with the contrary holding of Surace v. Papachristou, 244 N.J. Super. 70 (App. Div. 1990) and disapproved of the contrary holding in Chambers v. Nunez, 217 N.J. Super. 202 (Law Div. 1986). Osoria v. Real Property Law: Landlord & Tenant: Tenant's Remedies & Rights: General Overview

New Jersey Legislature's use of the word building, in its singular form, is both deliberate and dispositive under the Anti-Eviction Act, N.J. Stat. Ann. §§ 2A:18-61.1 to 2A:18-61.12, and the term designates a discreet physical structure, not a number of such structures connected by nothing more than the ownership of the land on which they sit. Cashin v. Bello, 223 N.J. 328, 123 A.3d 1042, 2015 N.J. LEXIS 964 (N.J. 2015).

Plaintiff was within her rights as a landowner to remove defendant from the detached garage that served as a rental apartment because it was a separate building with fewer than three residential units, and plaintiff owner sought to occupy the unit that defendant was renting in that building, therefore, plaintiff could evict defendant under the Anti-Eviction Act, N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1(I)(3). Cashin v. Bello, 223 N.J. 328, 123 A.3d 1042, 2015 N.J. LEXIS 964 (N.J. 2015).

For purposes of the New Jersey Anti-Eviction Act, N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1, a tenancy existed at the time that plaintiff was locked out of his room at a hotel. Plaintiff had lived in the hotel for over two years with his family members, who attended school and registered to vote as a result of their residence at the premises, and while plaintiff had an intention to ultimately leave the premises and find a more suitable residence for his family, he had no present intention or ability to do so within any particular time or fixed duration. Williams v. Alexander Hamilton Hotel, 249 N.J. Super. 481, 592 A.2d 644, 1991 N.J. Super. LEXIS 233 (App.Div. 1991).

Tax increases resulting from the conversion of apartments to a cooperative cannot be passed through to tenants who are protected by the Senior Citizens and Disabled Protection Act, N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.22 et seq., or by N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1(k) and N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.2(g), in part because N.J. Admin. Code tit. 5, § 24-1.12(c) prohibits any rent increases which reflect increased costs attributable, directly or indirectly, to the conversion which do not add services or amenities not previously provided. Berkley Arms Apartment Corp. v. Real Property Law: Landlord & Tenant: Tenant's Remedies & Rights: Fair Debt Collection Practices Act

Though damages may not be awarded in a summary dispossess action, it is a powerful debt collection mechanism. Therefore, attorneys who regularly file such actions for nonpayment of rent are "debt collectors" under 15 U.S.C.S. § 1692a(6) and may be sued for violating the Fair Debt Collection Practices Act, 15 U.S.C.S. §§ 1692 to 16920. Hodges v. Sasil Corp., 189 N.J. 210, 915 A.2d 1, 2007 N.J. LEXIS 24 (N.J. 2007).

As attorneys who regularly filed summary dispossess actions for nonpayment of rent were "debt collectors" under 15 U.S.C.S. § 1692a(6) of the Fair Debt Collection Practices Act (FDCPA), 15 U.S.C.S. §§ 1692 to 1692o, a trial court erred in dismissing on summary judgment two Section 8 tenants' suit against a law firm for violating the FDCPA. Hodges v. Sasil Corp., 189 N.J. 210, 915 A.2d 1, 2007 N.J. LEXIS 24 (N.J. 2007).

Until guidance is received from the New Jersey Supreme Court's Special Civil Part Practice Committee and adopted by the supreme court, complaints that initiate summary dispossess proceedings must be verified under N.J. Ct. R. 1:4-7; must prominently declare that only the payment of rent, as determined by federal law for Section 8 tenants, or by the lease for other tenants, is required to prevent eviction; and must expressly state the amount of debt owed, the creditor's identity, and that the amount must be paid to the landlord or the clerk before 4:30 p.m. on the day of trial for the case to be dismissed. These requirements apply to all landlords, represented or pro se, and regardless of their counsel's status as a "debt collector" under the Fair Debt Collection Practices Act, 15 U.S.C.S. §§ 1692 to 16920. Hodges v. Sasil Corp., 189 N.J. 210, 915 A.2d 1, 2007 N.J. LEXIS 24 (N.J. 2007).

Real Property Law: Landlord & Tenant: Tenant's Remedies & Rights: Termination & Retaliatory Eviction

In an eviction action wherein the trial court found that the landlord had established grounds for eviction but also found that the action was retaliatory, in violation of the Tenant Reprisal Act (TRA), N.J. Real Property Law: Landlord & Tenant: Tenant's Remedies & Rights: Remedies: General Overview

Because plaintiff was wrongfully dispossessed from his hotel room without proper adherence to the New Jersey Anti-Eviction Act, N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1, he was entitled to prove the resulting damages under N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:39-8. The appellate court had denied a stay pending appeal in the case and therefore could not direct repossession of the premises. Williams v. Alexander Hamilton Hotel, 249 N.J. Super. 481, 592 A.2d 644, 1991 N.J. Super. LEXIS 233 (App.Div. 1991).

Real Property Law: Landlord & Tenant: Tenant's Remedies & Rights: Warranty of Habitability

In a landlord-tenant case, a judgment for possession based on habitual late payment of rent was reversed on appeal where the evidence showed that the tenant had a very limited income, serious health problems, and a son who was developmentally disabled; had lived in the apartment for about 30 years; and had produced evidence that her rent had always been due on the 18th of the month. The appellate court found that the new landlord wrongfully accelerated the rent due date to the first of the month without serving a notice to quit and offering a new tenancy with a new rent-due date and that the trial court, under the circumstances presented, erred by limiting itself to choosing between evicting the tenant and dismissing the case since the rent-due date should have been determined and the tenant should have been permitted to assert a Marini defense to a claim of habitual late payment of rent, provided that the late payments were due to withholding of rent because of habitability problems in the apartment. 279 4th Ave. Management, L.L.C. v. Real Property Law: Property Valuation

Statutes creating an encumbrance or cloud upon title by limiting a developer's right to obtain possession of a tenant-occupied condominium unit resulting from the conversion of a multi-family rental complex create rights in the tenant that adversely impact the developer's ability to sell tenant-occupied condominium units; the effect of the encumbrance created by these statutes must be considered in arriving at the fair market value of the subject property. *Briskin v. For local property tax assessment purposes, the fair market value of property is determined as though the property were unencumbered, and the totality of all of the interests in the property is to be valued, as the law requires that the assessed value of the land represents the value of all interests therein; while the requirement of unanimous consent of the unit owner may inhibit alienation, such requirement affects the title only, not the use that can be made of the property. Briskin v. Real Property Law: Zoning & Land Use: Ordinances

Trial court properly dismissed a landlord's action in lieu of prerogative writs challenging a township's ordinance imposing certain registration obligations and other regulatory requirements on landlords within the township as the ordinance was not preempted by the Hotel and Multiple Dwelling Law, N.J. Stat. Ann. §§ 55:13A-1 to -28, and no invalid purpose was shown by the landlord, thus, the presumption of the ordinance's validity remained. Lake Valley Associates, LLC v. Property tax assessment was discriminatory, under N.J. Stat. Ann. § 54:51A-6, because the borough had erred in using the property conversion approach; the evidence did not establish that a prudent investor would have paid a premium to attempt to convert the property and due to the fact that the property was income-producing, the capitalization of income technique was more reliable. The court recognized that conversion projects faced many potential administrative and statutory requirements that could complicate and prolong the project, including those found in N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1 et seq. Little Ferry v. Vecchiotti, 7 N.J. Tax 389, 1985 N.J. Tax LEXIS 35 (Tax Ct. May 1, 1985).

Private residential landlord had a duty to take reasonable measures to protect a tenant's invitee from harm where a vicious dog, which was owned by another tenant, injured the invitee child in a common backyard area shared by the tenants; pursuant to N.J. § 2A:18-61.1a. Findings

The Legislature finds that:

a. Acute State and local shortages of supply and high levels of demand for residential dwellings have motivated removal of blameless tenants in order to directly or indirectly profit from conversion to higher income rental or ownership interest residential use.

b. This has resulted in unfortunate attempts to displace tenants employing pretexts, stratagems or means other than those provided pursuant to the intent of State eviction laws designated to fairly balance and protect rights of tenants and landlords.

c. These devices have circumvented the intent of current State eviction laws by failing to utilize available means to avoid displacement, such as: protected tenancies; rights to purchase; rent affordability protection; full disclosures relevant to eviction challenges; and stays of eviction where relocation is lacking.

d. It is in the public interest of the State to maintain for citizens the broadest protections available under State eviction laws to avoid such displacement and resultant loss of affordable housing, which, due to housing's uniqueness as the most costly and difficult to change necessity of life, causes overcrowding, unsafe and unsanitary conditions, blight, burdens on community services, wasted resources, homelessness, emigration from the State and personal hardship, which is particularly severe for vulnerable seniors, the disabled, the frail, minorities, large families and single parents.

e. Such personal hardship includes, but is not limited to: economic loss, time loss, physical and emotional stress, and in some cases severe emotional trauma, illness, homelessness or other irreparable harm resulting from strain of eviction controversy; relocation search and moving difficulties; anxiety caused by lack of information, uncertainty, and resultant planning difficulty; employment, education, family and social disruption; relocation and empty unit security hazards; relocation to premises of less affordability, capacity, accessibility and physical or environmental quality; and relocation adjustment problems, particularly of the blind or other disabled citizens.

f. It is appropriate to take legislative notice of relevant legislative findings adopted pursuant to section 2 of the "Senior Citizens and Disabled Protected Tenancy Act," P.L. 1981, c. 226 (C. 2A:18-61.23) and section 2 of the "Prevention of Homelessness Act (1984)," P.L. 1984, c. 180 (C. 52:27D-281), which, with the findings of this section, have relevance to this 1986 amendatory and supplementary act and P.L. 1974, c. 49 (C. 2A:18-61.1 et seq.).

g. This 1986 amendatory and supplementary act is adopted in order to protect the public health, safety and welfare of the citizens of New Jersey.

In a summary dispossession action initiated by a landlord of Section 8 housing against a deceased tenant's estate and the surviving daughter of the tenant, who resided in the apartment, the daughter was found to be a functional co-tenant, namely one who could show that she had been continuously in residence; had been a substantial contributor toward satisfaction of the tenancy's financial obligations; and that her contribution had been acknowledged and acquiesced to by her landlord. As a result, the daughter was entitled to invoke the protections of New Jersey's Anti-Eviction Act. Maglies v. Estate of Guy, 193 N.J. 108, 936 A.2d 414, 2007 N.J. LEXIS 1436 (N.J. 2007).

Landlord who sought to evict a tenant of an apartment, which was originally constructed as an intended condominium unit, through a summary dispossess action and to convey the condominium unit under a contract of sale to a third party could not obtain a judgment for possession on only sixty-days' notice because the landlord failed to give the tenant the notice required by N.J.S.A. 2A:18-61.9 at the inception of the tenancy; failure to give the tenant the required notice barred the court from entering a judgment for dispossession under the provisions for sixty-day notice of eviction. Vander Sterre Bros. Real Property Law: Landlord & Tenant: Landlord's Remedies & Rights: Eviction Actions: General Overview

In a summary dispossession action initiated by a landlord of Section 8 housing against a deceased tenant's estate and the surviving daughter of the tenant, who resided in the apartment, the daughter was found to be a functional co-tenant, namely one who could show that she had been continuously in residence; had been a substantial contributor toward satisfaction of the tenancy's financial obligations; and that her contribution had been acknowledged and acquiesced to by her landlord. As a result, the daughter was entitled to invoke the protections of New Jersey's Anti-Eviction Act. Maglies v. Estate of Guy, 193 N.J. 108, 936 A.2d 414, 2007 N.J. LEXIS 1436 (N.J. 2007).

Relationship of landlord-tenant was not the dominant relationship where plaintiff agreed to buy the realty to save it from foreclosure and lease it back to the defendants with an option to buy it back within a year, the defendants exercised their option to renew the lease without the option to repurchase having been exercised, and the plaintiff never recorded the quitclaim deed received from the defendant; accordingly, the parties contemplated that their transaction was a method of temporary refinancing and that both parties contemplated that defendants would repurchase the property, the relationship of landlord and tenant was incidental to that mutual and dominant contemplation, and, as such, jurisdiction did not exist for the entry of a judgment for possession in the instant summary dispossession action. *Essex Property Services, Inc. v. Real Property Law: Landlord & Tenant: Landlord's Remedies & Rights: Eviction Actions: Summary Eviction

Landlord who sought to evict a tenant of an apartment, which was originally constructed as an intended condominium unit, through a summary dispossess action and to convey the condominium unit under a contract of sale to a third party could not obtain a judgment for possession on only sixty-days' notice because the landlord failed to give the tenant the notice required by N.J.S.A. 2A:18-61.9 at the inception of the tenancy; failure to give the tenant the required notice barred the court from entering a judgment for dispossession under the provisions for sixty-day notice of eviction. Vander Sterre Bros. If an owner seeks an eviction alleging permanent retirement of the premises from residential use pursuant to subsection h. of section 2 of P.L. 1974, c. 49 (C. 2A:18-61.1) and if, pursuant to land use law, nonresidential use of the premises is not permitted as a principal permitted use or is limited to accessory, conditional or public use, a rebuttable presumption is created that the premises are not and will not be permanently retired from residential use. No tenant shall be evicted pursuant to subsection h. of section 2 of P.L. 1974, c. 49 (C. 2A:18-61.1) if any State or local permit or approval required by law for the nonresidential use is not obtained. Nothing contained in this section shall be deemed to require obtaining a certificate of occupancy for the proposed use prior to an eviction. The detail specified in notice given pursuant to subsection d. of section 3 of P.L. 1974, c. 49 (C. 2A:18-61.2) shall disclose the proposed nonresidential use to which the premises are to be permanently retired.

§ 2A:18-61.1d. Maximum authorized rent

In a municipality which has an ordinance regulating rents in effect, if a dwelling unit in the premises becomes vacated after notice has been given that the owner seeks to permanently board up or demolish the premises or seeks to retire permanently the premises from residential use pursuant to subsection g.(1) or h. of section 2 of P.L. 1974, c. 49 (C. 2A:18-61.1) and if any time thereafter an owner permits the personal occupancy of the premises, the maximum rent authorized for a unit in the premises shall not exceed the rent that would have been authorized for that unit if there had been no vacancy or change of tenancy for the unit. Increased costs which occur during the period of vacancy, which are solely the result of the premises being vacated, closed and reoccupied and which do not add services or amenities not previously provided, or which add new services or amenities whose costs significantly reduce the affordability of the premises, shall not be used as a basis for any rent increase pursuant to any municipal rent regulation provision, fair return or hardship hearing before a municipal rent board or any appeal from such determination. Increased costs of new services and amenities create a rebuttable presumption that they significantly reduce the affordability of the premises, if they result in a doubling of the rent increases otherwise permitted by law during the period of vacancy. Within five days of the date on which any owner provides notice of termination to a tenant pursuant to subsection g.(1) or h. of section 2 of P.L. 1974, c. 49 (C. 2A:18-61.1), the owner shall provide a copy of the notice to the municipal agency responsible for administering the regulation of rents in the municipality. The owner's notice to the municipal agency shall also include a listing of the current tenants and rents for each dwelling unit in the premises, unless the owner has previously submitted to the municipal agency a listing which is still current.

§ 2A:18-61.1e. Rights of former tenants

If a dwelling unit becomes vacated after notice has been given that the owner seeks to permanently board up or demolish the premises or seeks to retire permanently the premises from residential use pursuant to paragraph (1) of subsection g. or subsection h. of section 2 of P.L.1974, c.49 (C.2A:18-61.1) and if at any time thereafter an owner instead seeks to return the premises to residential use, the owner shall provide the former tenant:

a. Written notice 90 days in advance of any return to residential use or any agreement for possession of the unit by any other party, which notice discloses the owner's intention to return the unit to residential use and all appropriate specifics;

b. The right to return to possession of the vacated unit or, if return is not available, the right to possession of affordable housing relocation in accord with the standards and criteria set forth for comparable housing as defined by section 4 of P.L.1975, c.311 (C.2A:18-61.7); and

c. In the case of a conversion, the right to a protected tenancy pursuant to the "Senior Citizens and Disabled Protected Tenancy Act," P.L.1981, c.226 ($\underline{C.2A:18-61.22}$ et seq.), or pursuant to the "Tenant Protection Act of 1992," P.L.1991, c.509 ($\underline{C.2A:18-61.40}$ et al.), if the former tenant would have at the time of the conversion been eligible for a protected tenancy under either of those acts, had the former tenant not vacated the premises.

The 90-day notice shall disclose the tenant's rights pursuant to this section and the method for the tenant's response to exercise these rights. A duplicate of the notice shall be transmitted within the first five days of the 90-day period to the rent board in the municipality or the municipal clerk, if there is no board. Notwithstanding the provisions of subsection c. of section 3 of P.L.1975, c.311 (C.2A:18-61.6), damages awarded shall not be trebled where possession has been returned in accord with this section; nor shall any damages be awarded as provided for in subsection e. of section 3 of P.L.1975, c.311 (C.2A:18-61.6). An owner who fails to provide a former tenant a notice of intention to return to residential use pursuant to this section is liable to a civil penalty of not less than $2,500.00 or more than $10,000.00 for each offense, and shall also be liable in treble damages, plus attorney fees and costs of suit, for any loss or expenses incurred by a former tenant as a result of that failure. The penalty prescribed in this section shall be collected and enforced by summary proceedings pursuant to "the penalty enforcement law" (N.J.S. 2A:58-1 et seq.). The Superior Court, Law Division, Special Civil Part, in the county in which the rental premises are located shall have jurisdiction over such proceedings. Process shall be in the nature of a summons or warrant, shall issue upon the complaint of the Commissioner of the Department of Community Affairs, the Attorney General, or any other person. No owner shall be liable for a penalty pursuant to this section if the unit is returned to residential use more than five years after the date the premises are vacated or if the owner made every reasonable effort to locate the former tenant and provide the notice, including, but not limited to, the employment of a qualified professional locator service, where no return receipt is obtained from the former tenant.

In any action under this section the court shall, in addition to damages, award any other appropriate legal or equitable relief.

Real Property Law: Landlord & Tenant: Landlord's Remedies & Rights: Eviction Actions: General Overview

Even though the lease had been substantially breached by the unauthorized occupancy of two occupants, the landlord's complaint against the tenants was dismissed without prejudice because of the unreasonably short period between the notice to cease and the notice to quit; a notice that required occupants to move their residences within a five-day period did not comply with the spirit of the Anti-Eviction Act. Brunswick Street Assocs. v. § 2A:18-61.1g. Relocation of displaced tenant; violations, penalty.

a. A municipality may enact an ordinance providing that any tenant who receives a notice of eviction pursuant to section 3 of P.L. 1974, c. 49 (C. 2A:18-61.2) that results from zoning or code enforcement activity for an illegal occupancy, as set forth in paragraph (3) of subsection g. of section 2 of P.L. 1974, c. 49 (C. 2A:18-61.1), shall be considered a displaced person and shall be entitled to relocation assistance in an amount equal to six times the monthly rental paid by the displaced person. The owner-landlord of the structure shall be liable for the payment of relocation assistance pursuant to this section.

b. A municipality that has enacted an ordinance pursuant to subsection a. of this section may pay relocation assistance to any displaced person who has not received the required payment from the owner-landlord of the structure at the time of eviction pursuant to subsection a. of this section from a revolving relocation assistance fund established pursuant to section 2 of P.L. 1987, c. 98 (C. 20:4-4.1a). All relocation assistance costs incurred by a municipality pursuant to this subsection shall be repaid by the owner-landlord of the structure to the municipality in the same manner as relocation costs are billed and collected under section 1 of P.L. 1983, c. 536 (C. 20:4-4.1) and section 1 of P.L. 1984, c. 30 (C. 20:4-4.2). These repayments shall be deposited into the municipality's revolving relocation assistance fund.

c. A municipality that has enacted an ordinance pursuant to subsection a. of this section, in addition to requiring reimbursement from the owner-landlord of the structure for relocation assistance paid to a displaced tenant, may require that an additional fine for zoning or housing code violation for an illegal occupancy, up to an amount equal to six times the monthly rental paid by the displaced person, be paid to the municipality by the owner-landlord of the structure.

In addition to this penalty, a municipality, after affording the owner-landlord an opportunity for a hearing on the matter, may impose upon the owner-landlord, for a second or subsequent violation for an illegal occupancy, a fine equal to the annual tuition cost of any resident of the illegally occupied unit attending a public school, which fine shall be recovered in a civil action by a summary proceeding in the name of the municipality pursuant to "The Penalty Enforcement Law of 1999," P.L. 1999, c. 274 (C. 2A:58-10 et seq.). The municipal court and the Superior Court shall have jurisdiction of proceedings for the enforcement of the penalty provided by this section. The tuition cost shall be determined in the manner prescribed for nonresident pupils pursuant to N.J.S. 18A:38-19 and the payment of the fine shall be remitted to the appropriate school district.

d. For the purposes of this section, the owner-landlord of a structure shall exclude mortgagees in possession of a structure through foreclosure.

For the purposes of this section, a "second or subsequent violation for an illegal occupancy" shall be limited to those violations that are new and are a result of distinct and separate zoning or code enforcement activities, and shall not include any continuing violations for which citations are issued by a zoning or code enforcement agent during the time period required for summary dispossession proceedings to conclude if the owner has initiated eviction proceedings in a court of proper jurisdiction.

Tenant's complaint in lieu of prerogative writs was properly dismissed by a trial court with regard to her challenge of her landlord's eviction of her from a building that was converted to an owner-occupied, four-family dwelling that was previously a rent controlled premises as the conversion exempted the building under the language of the local rent leveling ordinance. The ordinance provided the tenant protections that were at least coextensive with the protections of New Jersey's Anti-Eviction Act, N.J. Stat. Ann. §§ 2A:18-61.1 to -61.12, but neither the ordinance nor the Anti-Eviction Act implicitly created vested rights of a pre-conversion tenant beyond its explicit terms and, as to the latter point, the Superior Court of New Jersey disagreed with the contrary holding of Surace v. Papachristou, 244 N.J. Super. 70 (App. Div. 1990), and disapproved of the contrary holding in Chambers v. Nunez, 217 N.J. Super. 202 (Law Div. 1986).Osoria v. Real Property Law: Common Interest Communities: Condominiums: Leases

Landlord who sought to evict a tenant of an apartment, which was originally constructed as an intended condominium unit, through a summary dispossess action and to convey the condominium unit under a contract of sale to a third party could not obtain a judgment for possession on only sixty-days' notice because the landlord failed to give the tenant the notice required by N.J.S.A. 2A:18-61.9 at the inception of the tenancy; failure to give the tenant the required notice barred the court from entering a judgment for dispossession under the provisions for sixty-day notice of eviction under N.J.S.A. 2A:18-61.1(l)(1) and N.J.S.A. 2A:18-61.2(f), and the three-year notice described in N.J.S.A. 2A:18-61.1(k) and N.J.S.A. 2A:18-61.2(g), and made applicable to the circumstances of the case by N.J.A.C. 5:24-1.9(b). Vander Sterre Bros. Real Property Law: Landlord & Tenant: Landlord's Remedies & Rights: Eviction Actions: General Overview

In a case in which the tenants argued that the landlords violated New Jersey's Anti-Eviction Statute by initiating an eviction action before the end of the lease and by failing to provide proper notices to them, that argument was insufficient to show that the landlords breached the lease agreement. If anything, they failed to comply with the procedures contemplated in the statute. N'Jie v. Mei Cheung, 504 Fed. Appx. 108, 2012 U.S. App. LEXIS 23853 (3d Cir. N.J. 2012).

Despite properly serving tenants with a notice to quit, pursuant to N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.2, and subsequently, a notice to cease, pursuant to N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1, a landlord's failure to properly advise the tenants that their continued failure to timely make rent payments would result in their eviction mandated that the tenants were entitled to continuing notice of the status of events. Ivy Hill Park, Section III, Inc. v. Abutidze, 371 N.J. Super. 103, 852 A.2d 217, 2004 N.J. Super. LEXIS 259 (App.Div. 2004).

Landlord was not required to provide a new 18 month notice of his intent to retire his apartment building from residential use under N.J. Stat. Ann. §§ 2A:18-61.1(h), 2A:18-61.2(d), the Anti-Eviction Act, where notice had already been provided; a second notice to increase rent did not effect the original notice as it restated the 18 month limitation. J.M.J. New Jersey Properties, Inc. v. Khuzam, 365 N.J. Super. 325, 839 A.2d 102, 2004 N.J. Super. LEXIS 14 (App.Div. 2004).

Rent increase effected by a landlord after the giving of a notice of eviction created a new tenancy, but the Anti-Eviction Act, N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1 to -61.12, did not require a new eviction notice, and the new tenancy was not therefore of 18-months duration as ordinarily required by N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.2d, but only until the date stated in the eviction notice. J.M.J. New Jersey Properties, Inc. v. Khuzam, 365 N.J. Super. 325, 839 A.2d 102, 2004 N.J. Super. LEXIS 14 (App.Div. 2004).

Public housing agency's noncompliance with controlling federal requirements on termination of a tenancy, and the resulting lack of specificity required by N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.2, deprived the trial court of jurisdiction over a summary dispossess action to terminate a public housing tenancy pursuant to N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1(p); the notice failed to advise the tenant that she was not entitled to a grievance hearing, failed to identify the judicial court in which the eviction process was to occur, and failed to advise the tenant that the United States Department of Housing and Urban Development had determined that the judicial eviction procedure to be used by the public housing agency provided the opportunity for a hearing that afforded the basic elements of due process. Housing Auth. v. All notices to quit must strictly comply with the statutory provisions of the Anti-Eviction Act, N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.2; even substantial compliance, without prejudice to defendants and without offense to public policy, does not render the notice to quit effective. Aspep Corp. v. Giuca, 269 N.J. Super. 98, 634 A.2d 582, 1993 N.J. Super. LEXIS 859 (Law Div. 1993).

Where the landlord's notice of eviction was served in April 1987 and the complaint for summary dispossession was filed on May 1, 1990, the landlord complied with N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.2(g), which required three-years notice; the landlord's complaint was not filed prematurely where the tenancy terminated precisely at midnight of the day the complaint was filed. 809-811 Washington Street Assoc. v. Grego, 253 N.J. Super. 34, 600 A.2d 1222, 1992 N.J. Super. LEXIS 3 (App.Div. 1992).

Dismissal of landlord's dispossess actions against tenants was proper because mandatory notices to governmental agencies filed 19 months late did not meet the strict standard of compliance prescribed by N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.2(d), and landlord was strictly required to comply with all statutory eviction procedures. Sacks Realty Co. v. Batch, 248 N.J. Super. 424, 591 A.2d 660, 1991 N.J. Super. LEXIS 167 (App.Div. 1991).

Trial court properly dismissed summary eviction actions brought by a property owner against two tenants because the demand and notice required by N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.2(g) were not given. Sibig & Co. v. Santos, 244 N.J. Super. 366, 582 A.2d 840, 1990 N.J. Super. LEXIS 406 (App.Div. 1990).

One month notice of proposed lease changes under N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1 was insufficient to evict a tenant who rejected the changes, and the landlord was then required to give another full month's notice under N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.2(e). terminating the month-to-month tenancy before bringing action. Lowenstein v. Murray, 229 N.J. Super. 616, 552 A.2d 245, 1988 N.J. Super. LEXIS 471 (Law Div. 1988).

Requirement of N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.2 that the Notice to Quit, when sent by certified mail that was not claimed, should then be sent by regular mail, did not preclude the practice of sending the notice by certified mail and by regular mail simultaneously. Tower Management Corp. v. Podesta, 226 N.J. Super. 300, 544 A.2d 389, 1988 N.J. Super. LEXIS 259 (App.Div. 1988).

One of the evictions authorized by the New Jersey Anti-Eviction Act was a conversion by an owner from rental housing to condominium form of ownership, N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1(k), but eviction for that purpose required that the owner satisfy several conditions, including that the owner must have served a notice of termination three years before the institution of any action for eviction, and, pursuant to N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.2(g), no action could be instituted until the existing lease expired; combined with N.J. Stat. The landlords could not evict the tenants on two months' notice under the Anti-Eviction Act, N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1 et seq., because the total effect of N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1(k) and (I), and the corresponding notice requirements of 2A:18-61.2(f) and (g), created a three-year notice protection to pre-conversion tenants. Kabakian v. Kobert, 188 N.J. The N.J. Stat. Tenant's complaint in lieu of prerogative writs was properly dismissed by a trial court with regard to her challenge of her landlord's eviction of her from a building that was converted to an owner-occupied, four-family dwelling that was previously a rent controlled premises as the conversion exempted the building under the language of the local rent leveling ordinance. The ordinance provided the tenant protections that were at least coextensive with the protections of New Jersey's Anti-Eviction Act, N.J. Stat. Ann. §§ 2A:18-61.1 to -61.12, but neither the ordinance nor the Anti-Eviction Act implicitly created vested rights of a pre-conversion tenant beyond its explicit terms and, as to the latter point, the Superior Court of New Jersey disagreed with the contrary holding of Surace v. Papachristou, 244 N.J. Super. 70 (App. Div. 1990) and disapproved of the contrary holding in *Chambers v. Nunez, 217 N.J. Super. 202 (Law Div. 1986). Osoria v. § 2A:18-61.6. Owner liability for wrongful evictions

a. Where a tenant vacates the premises after being given a notice alleging the owner seeks to personally occupy the premises under subsection L. of section 2 of P.L. 1974, c. 49 (C. 2A:18-61.1) and the owner thereafter arbitrarily fails to personally occupy the premises for a total of at least six months, or arbitrarily fails to execute the contract for sale, but instead permits personal occupancy of the premises by another tenant or instead permits registration of conversion of the premises by the Department of Community Affairs pursuant to "The Planned Real Estate Development Full Disclosure Act," P.L. 1977, c. 419 (C. 45:22A-21 et seq.), such owner shall be liable to the former tenant in a civil action for three times the damages plus the tenant's attorney fees and costs.

b. If an owner purchases the premises pursuant to a contract requiring the tenant to vacate in accordance with subsection I. of section 2 of P.L. 1974, c. 49 (C. 2A:18-61.1) and thereafter arbitrarily fails to personally occupy the premises for a total of at least six months, but instead permits personal occupancy of the premises by another tenant or instead permits registration of conversion of the premises by the Department of Community Affairs pursuant to P.L. 1977, c. 419 (C. 45:22A-21 et seq.), such owner-purchaser shall be liable to the former tenant in a civil action for three times the damages plus the tenant's attorney fees and costs.

c. If a tenant vacates a dwelling unit after notice has been given alleging that the owner seeks to permanently board up or demolish the premises or to retire permanently the premises from residential use pursuant to subsection g.(1) or h. of section 2 of P.L. 1974, c. 49 (C. 2A:18-61.1) and instead, within five years following the date on which the dwelling unit or the premises become vacant, an owner permits residential use of the vacated premises, the owner shall be liable to the former tenant in a civil action for three times the damages plus the tenant's attorney fees and costs of suit.

An owner of any premises where notice has been given pursuant to subsection g.(1) or h. of section 2 of P.L. 1974, c. 49 (C. 2A:18-61.1), who subsequently seeks to sell, lease or convey the property to another, shall, before executing any lease, deed or contract for such conveyance, advise in writing the prospective owner that such notice was given and that the owners of the property are subject to the liabilities provided in this subsection and sections 3 and 4 of this 1986 amendatory and supplementary act. Whoever fails to so advise a prospective owner prior to the execution of the contract of sale, lease or conveyance is liable to a civil penalty of not less than $2,500.00 or more than $10,000.00 for each offense, and shall also be liable in treble damages, plus attorney fees and costs of suit, for any loss or expenses incurred by a new owner of the property as a result of that failure. The civil penalty prescribed in this subsection shall be collected and enforced by summary proceedings pursuant to "the penalty enforcement law" (N.J.S. 2A:58-1 et seq.). The Superior Court, Law Division, Special Civil Part, in the county in which the rental premises are located shall have jurisdiction over such proceedings. Process shall be in the nature of a summons or warrant, and shall issue upon the complaint of the Commissioner of the Department of Community Affairs, the Attorney General, or any other person.

d. If a tenant vacates a dwelling unit after receiving from an owner an eviction notice (1) purporting to compel by law the tenant to vacate the premises for cause or purporting that if the tenant does not vacate the premises, the tenant shall be compelled by law to vacate the premises for cause; and (2) using a cause that is clearly not provided by law or using a cause that is based upon a lease clause which is contrary to law pursuant to section 6 of P.L. 1975, c. 310 (C. 46:8-48); and (3) misrepresenting that, under the facts alleged, the tenant would be subject to eviction, the owner shall be liable to the former tenant in a civil action for three times the damages plus the tenant's attorney fees and costs. An owner shall not be liable under this subsection for alleging any cause for eviction which, if proven, would subject the tenant to eviction pursuant to N.J.S. 2A:18-53 et seq. or P.L. 1974, c. 49 (C. 2A:18-61.1 et seq.).

In any action under this section the court shall, in addition to damages, award any other appropriate legal or equitable relief. For the purposes of P.L. 1974, c. 49 (C. 2A:18-61.1 et seq.), the term "owner" includes, but is not limited to, lessee, successor owner and lessee, and other successors in interest.

e. An owner shall not be liable for damages pursuant to this section or section 6 of this 1986 amendatory and supplementary act or subject to a more restrictive local ordinance adopted pursuant to section 8 of this 1986 amendatory and supplementary act if:

(1) Title to the premises was transferred to that owner by means of a foreclosure sale, execution sale or bankruptcy sale; and

(2) Prior to the foreclosure sale, execution sale or bankruptcy sale, the former tenant vacated the premises after receiving eviction notice from the former owner pursuant to subsection g.(1) or h. of section 2 of P.L. 1974, c. 49 ($\underline{C. 2A:18-61.1}$); and

(3) The former owner retains no financial interest, direct or indirect, in the premises. The term "former owner" shall include, but not be limited to, any officer or board member of a corporation which was the former owner and any holder of more than 5% equity interest in any incorporated or unincorporated business entity that was the former owner; and

(4) The former tenant is provided notice and rights in accordance with the provisions of section 6 of this 1986 amendatory and supplementary act.

Because nothing in N.J. Stat. Trial court properly dismissed the landlords' complaint for summary dispossession on the ground that the landlords had failed to give the tenant a copy of their condominium conversion plan in accordance with N.J. In distinguishing between "the owner of a building" and "the owner of three or less units" in N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1 (1)(1) and (2) of the Anti-Eviction Act, N.J. Stat. Ownership of three or less condominium or residential units is substantially different from ownership of a larger and more expansive development, and this is the basis of the distinction between N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1(I)(1) and (2) of the Anti-Eviction Act, N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1 to N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.12, regarding notice of eviction under N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.9. This treatment of lesser and greater owners is consistent with similar treatments under the Truth in Renting Law, N.J. Stat. Ann. § 46:8-44, and the Landlord Registration Act, N.J. Stat. Ann. § 46:8-27. 224 Jefferson St. Condo. Ass'n v. Paige, 346 N.J. Super. 379, 788 A.2d 296, 2002 N.J. Super. Owner of an apartment originally constructed as an intended condominium unit is required to give a new tenant the formal notice specified in N.J.S.A. 2A:18-61.9 even though the apartment building is not a conversion from a preexisting apartment use. Vander Sterre Bros. Real Property Law: Landlord & Tenant: Landlord's Remedies & Rights: Eviction Actions: Summary Eviction

Landlord who sought to evict a tenant of an apartment, which was originally constructed as an intended condominium unit, through a summary dispossess action and to convey the condominium unit under a contract of sale to a third party failed to comply with the requirements of the Anti-Eviction Act, N.J.S.A. 2A:18-61.1, et seq., by failing to provide written notice in the form required by N.J.S.A. 2A:18-61.9; by failing to demonstrate that the condominium would be sold to an owner-occupant; and by failing to present evidence that the apartment building was a condominium or evidence of when the master deed was filed. Vander Sterre Bros. Constr. v. Keating, 284 N.J. Super. 433, 665 A.2d 779, 1995 N.J. Super. LEXIS 497 (App.Div. 1995).

Landlord who sought to evict a tenant of an apartment, which was originally constructed as an intended condominium unit, through a summary dispossess action and to convey the condominium unit under a contract of sale to a third party could not obtain a judgment for possession on only sixty-days' notice because the landlord failed to give the tenant the notice required by N.J.S.A. 2A:18-61.9 at the inception of the tenancy; failure to give the tenant the required notice barred the court from entering a judgment for dispossession under the provisions for sixty-day notice of eviction. Vander Sterre Bros. Civil Procedure: Remedies: Writs: General Overview

Tenant's complaint in lieu of prerogative writs was properly dismissed by a trial court with regard to her challenge of her landlord's eviction of her from a building that was converted to an owner-occupied, four-family dwelling that was previously a rent controlled premises as the conversion exempted the building under the language of the local rent leveling ordinance. The ordinance provided the tenant protections that were at least coextensive with the protections of New Jersey's Anti-Eviction Act, N.J. Stat. § 2A:18-61.11. Comparable housing; offer of rental; stay of eviction; alternative compensation; senior citizens and disabled protected tenancy period

a. Tenants receiving notice under section 3 g. of P.L.1974, c. 49 may request of the landlord within 18 full months after receipt of such notice, and the landlord shall offer to the tenant, personally or through an agent, the rental of comparable housing or park site and a reasonable opportunity to examine and rent such comparable housing or park site. In any proceeding under subsection 2 k. of P.L.1974, c. 49 instituted following the expiration of notice required under section 3 g. of P.L.1974, c. 49, the owner shall prove that a tenant was offered such comparable housing or park site as requested pursuant to this section. The court shall authorize 1-year stays of eviction with reasonable rent increases until such time as the court is satisfied that the tenant has been offered comparable housing or park site and provided a reasonable opportunity to examine and rent such housing or park site as requested pursuant to this section. However, in no case shall more than five such stays be granted.

b. The court shall automatically renew any 1-year stay of eviction in any case where the landlord failed to allege to the court within 1 year of a prior stay that the tenant was offered a reasonable opportunity to examine and rent comparable housing or park site within such prior year.

c. However the court shall not authorize any further stays at any time after one such stay has been authorized when the owner has also provided a tenant with hardship relocation compensation of waiver of payment of 5 months' rent.

d. On or after the effective date of the "Senior Citizens and Disabled Protected Tenancy Act," P.L. 1981, c. 226 (C. 2A:18-61.22 et seq.), notwithstanding the provisions of subsection a. of this section, where the court has jurisdiction pursuant to that subsection, whether by virtue of the authorization by the court of a stay of eviction or by virtue of any other proceedings required or instituted pursuant to P.L.1974, c. 49 (C. 2A:18-61.1 et seq.) or P.L.1975, c. 311 (C. 2A:18-61.6 et seq.), or in any action for declaratory judgment, the court may invoke some or all of the provisions of the "Senior Citizens and Disabled Protected Tenancy Act" and grant to a tenant, pursuant to that amendatory and supplementary act, a protected tenancy period upon the court's determination that:

(1) The tenant would otherwise qualify as a senior citizen tenant or disabled tenant pursuant to that amendatory and supplementary act, except that the building or structure in which the dwelling unit is located was converted prior to the effective date of that amendatory and supplementary act; and

(2) The granting of the protected tenancy period as applied to the tenant, giving particular consideration to whether a unit was sold on or before the date that the amendatory and supplementary act takes effect to a bona fide individual purchaser who intended personally to occupy the unit, would not be violative of concepts of fundamental fairness or due process. Where a court declines to grant a protected tenancy status, it shall nevertheless order such hardships stays as authorized by subsections a. and b. of this section until comparable relocation housing is provided. The hardship relocation compensation alternative of subsection c. of this section shall not be applicable in this situation.

Constitutional Law: Congressional Duties & Powers: Contracts Clause: General Overview

In an action by plaintiff property owners seeking declaratory and injunctive relief as to retroactive enforcement of the New Jersey Senior Citizens and Disabled Protected Tenancy Act (Tenancy Act), because § 14 of the Tenancy Act, N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.11(d), simply enlarged the terms of a statutory tenancy already created by the New Jersey Anti-Eviction Act, the property owners failed to satisfy the threshold requirement under the contracts clause, U.S. Const. art. I, § 10, of showing a substantial impairment of a contractual relationship. Troy, Ltd. v. Renna, 727 F.2d 287, 1984 U.S. App. LEXIS 25937 (3d Cir. N.J. 1984).

One of the evictions authorized by the New Jersey Anti-Eviction Act was a conversion by an owner from rental housing to condominium form of ownership, N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1(k), but eviction for that purpose required that the owner satisfy several conditions, including that the owner must have served a notice of termination three years before the institution of any action for eviction, and, pursuant to N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.2(g), no action could be instituted until the existing lease expired; combined with N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.11(a), (c), the grace period before eviction could, in effect, be extended from three to eight years. Troy, Ltd. v. Renna, 727 F.2d 287, 1984 U.S. App. LEXIS 25937 (3d Cir. N.J. 1984).

Even if plaintiff property owners seeking declaratory and injunctive relief as to retroactive enforcement of § 14 of the New Jersey Senior Citizens and Disabled Protected Tenancy Act, N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.11(d), had shown a substantial impairment of a contractual relationship, the threshold requirement under the contracts clause, U.S. Const. art. I, § 10, the State of New Jersey had justified it by showing a broad, reasonable, remedial purpose in protecting the mental and physical health of citizens who could suffer greatly by evictions. Troy, Ltd. v. Renna, 727 F.2d 287, 1984 U.S. App. LEXIS 25937 (3d Cir. N.J. 1984).

Contracts Law: Defenses: Public Policy Violations

Agreement and consent judgment that contravened public policy by including a waiver of some of the tenant conversion protections granted by the N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1 were void and unenforceable as against public policy where tenant had waived the notice requirements of N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.2 and the right to automatic renewals pursuant to N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.11(b). Sacks Realty Co. v. Shore, 317 N.J. Super. 258, 721 A.2d 1011, 1998 N.J. Governments: State & Territorial Governments: Police Power

Retroactive application of the statutory scheme of the Senior Citizens and Disabled Protected Tenancy Act, N.J. Stat. Ann. 2A:18-61.11(d), was a reasonable exercise of the State's police powers and was not violative of the owners' freedom of contract. Edgewater Inv. Associates v. Edgewater, 201 N.J. In a landlord's action for possession under N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1 for the purpose of converting an apartment building into a condominium complex, the tenants' one-year stay of eviction on a warrant of removal was continued because the landlord failed to grant the tenants a proper hardship relocation compensation or give them adequate notice of waiver of rent as required by both N.J. Tenant's rent-controlled apartment was being converted to a condominium, and the landlord provided proper notices to defendant of his right to purchase the unit; pursuant to N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.11(c), the landlord notified the tenant that in lieu of providing comparable housing, it had elected to provide the tenant with hardship relocation compensation of waiver of payment of 5 months' rent; the court held that no more than one stay of eviction was allowed when the tenant provided hardship relocation compensation. Mountain Management Corp. v. Hinnant, 200 N.J. Senior Citizens and Disabled Protected Tenancy Act, N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.11(d), was intended to protect senior citizens on fixed limited incomes who would not be able to afford to live elsewhere should they be evicted from their rental units as a result of a conversion of said unit to a condominium or cooperative, and where the senior citizen sought to be evicted was 82-years of age, had been widowed for the past 26 years, and at the time that the apartment was being converted to condominiums, the senior citizen had in excess of $ 200,000 in assets, but the senior citizen was not, interested in buying the apartment as offered by the plan for $ 26,000, the senior citizen was not within the class of persons the statute sought to protect. Radin v. Bartolomei, 195 N.J. Super. 626, 481 A.2d 313, 1984 N.J. Super. LEXIS 1111 (Law Div. 1984).

I, § 10, of showing a substantial impairment of a contractual relationship. Troy, Ltd. v. Renna, 727 F.2d 287, 1984 U.S. App. LEXIS 25937 (3d Cir. N.J. 1984).

One of the evictions authorized by the New Jersey Anti-Eviction Act was a conversion by an owner from rental housing to condominium form of ownership, N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1(k), but eviction for that purpose required that the owner satisfy several conditions, including that the owner must have served a notice of termination three years before the institution of any action for eviction, and, pursuant to N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.2(g), no action could be instituted until the existing lease expired; combined with N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.11(a), (c), the grace period before eviction could, in effect, be extended from three to eight years. Troy, Ltd. v. Renna, 727 F.2d 287, 1984 U.S. App. LEXIS 25937 (3d Cir. N.J. 1984).

Even if plaintiff property owners seeking declaratory and injunctive relief as to retroactive enforcement of § 14 of the New Jersey Senior Citizens and Disabled Protected Tenancy Act, N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.11(d), had shown a substantial impairment of a contractual relationship, the threshold requirement under the contracts clause, U.S. Const. art. I, § 10, the State of New Jersey had justified it by showing a broad, reasonable, remedial purpose in protecting the mental and physical health of citizens who could suffer greatly by evictions. Troy, Ltd. v. Renna, 727 F.2d 287, 1984 U.S. App. LEXIS 25937 (3d Cir. N.J. 1984).

In a landlord's action for possession under N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.1 for the purpose of converting an apartment building into a condominium complex, the tenants' one-year stay of eviction on a warrant of removal was continued because the landlord failed to grant the tenants a proper hardship relocation compensation or give them adequate notice of waiver of rent as required by both N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.11(c) and N.J. Admin. Code tit. 5, § 24-1.7(c). Daskel Investors, Inc. v. Rosenbloom, 244 N.J. Super. 393, 582 A.2d 854, 1990 N.J. Super. LEXIS 397 (Law Div. 1990).

Retroactive provision of the Senior Citizens and Disabled Protected Tenancy Act, N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.11(d)(1), did not violate the impairment contract provisions of the U.S. Const. art. 1, § 10 and was not a taking of property for public use without just compensation under U.S. Const. amend. XIV. Edgewater Inv. Associates v. Edgewater, 201 N.J. Super. 286, 493 A.2d 21, 1984 N.J. Super. LEXIS 1327 (Ch.Div. 1984), aff'd in part and rev'd in part, 201 N.J. Real Property Law: Landlord & Tenant: Rent Regulation: Rent Control Statutes

Tenant's complaint in lieu of prerogative writs was properly dismissed by a trial court with regard to her challenge of her landlord's eviction of her from a building that was converted to an owner-occupied, four-family dwelling that was previously a rent controlled premises as the conversion exempted the building under the language of the local rent leveling ordinance. The ordinance provided the tenant protections that were at least coextensive with the protections of New Jersey's Anti-Eviction Act, N.J. Stat. Ann. §§ 2A:18-61.1 to -61.12, but neither the ordinance nor the Anti-Eviction Act implicitly created vested rights of a pre-conversion tenant beyond its explicit terms and, as to the latter point, the Superior Court of New Jersey disagreed with the contrary holding of Surace v. Papachristou, 244 N.J. Super. 70 (App. Div. 1990) and disapproved of the contrary holding in Chambers v. Nunez, 217 N.J. Super. 202 (Law Div. 1986). Osoria v. Tax Law: State & Local Taxes: Real Property Tax: Assessment & Valuation: Assessment Methods & Timing

In an action contesting assessments under the New Jersey Condominium Act on apartments converted to condominiums, the value of each unit was to be determined by using cash equivalency principles using a 10 percent interest rate offered to buyers who were not tenants, pursuant to N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.2 and N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:18-61.12, at conversion; the court ordered the parties to submit computations showing the true value of each property and views on the applicability of N.J. Stat. Ann. § 54:51A-6 to each unit. Presidential Towers v. Passaic, 6 N.J. Tax 406, 1984 N.J. Tax LEXIS 46 (Tax Ct. Apr. 4, 1984), aff'd, 7 N.J. Tax 655, 1985 N.J.
