Note to the Reader:

Since the initial sections of this survey were completed, determinations of eligibility have been modified for certain properties. In order to find the most recent determination of eligibility, consult the "Sites List and Municipal Maps" section of the introductory narrative (Vol. I). The determinations of eligibility on the survey forms are superceded by those on the list.
SITES LISTS AND MAPS

Below is a list of all sites included in the Monmouth County Historic Sites Inventory. Sites location maps are also provided for each municipality. The sites lists are arranged by municipality and then alphabetically by street address or geographical location. Next to each site is a determination of its eligibility to the National Register of Historic Places. Eligibility is noted by the following symbols:

- Y = Yes
- N = No
- P = Possible
- D = District

Sites which are located within eligible districts but which are also individually eligible are labeled "Y" instead of "D". The "Possible" category is limited to those properties which require additional research on construction date, quality of the interior (interiors generally were not examined), ownership history, and/or degree of alteration in order to determine eligibility.

The survey project followed federal standards for National Register eligibility which are set forth in "How to Apply the National Register Criteria for Evaluation" (National Park Service, Department of the Interior, 1982). National Register eligibility is subject to review and final approval by the Office of New Jersey Heritage and the New Jersey State Review Board of Historic Sites. Eligibility may change due to building alterations made subsequent to this survey. Since the initial field work for this project was completed during 1980-1982, determinations of eligibility on the survey forms are superceded by those on the below updated lists.

The National Register is the official list of properties significant in American history, architecture, archeology, engineering, and culture. The National Register was established by the Historic Sites Act of 1935 and the National Historic Preservation Act of 1966, as amended. It is maintained and expanded by the National Park Service on behalf of the Secretary of the Interior. Properties listed on the National Register receive a limited form of protection and certain benefits. For information concerning the effects of listing, contact the Office of New Jersey Heritage in Trenton (609-292-2023).

DESCRIPTION: (General description of district as a whole and boundaries)

The Farmingdale District is a village district of approximately 70 structures, located along Main St. and intersecting Asbury Ave.; though several of the properties are contiguous by back lot borders and have addresses on Academy St. and Goodeough Rd. The district is made up of predominantly residential construction, as the buildings in the small commercial center of the village to the south have been extensively altered or replaced.

The district is characterized primarily by 1½ and 2 story frame residential buildings, most of which date from the second half of the 19th century. Notable exceptions to this general pattern in size are the Methodist Church (1314-1-6), a large Victorian Gothic building; 2 Main St. (1314-1-5) a large, 3 story, Queen Anne residence, Red Men Hall (1314-1-11) a 3 story meeting hall; and Farmingdale School, a two story, brick, Georgian Revival school building. Four of the surveyed buildings date from before 1866, the date of the incorporation of the Squanum and Freehold Marl Co. and Railroad. They are the Goodenough House (1314-1-4) which is composed of an 18th century wing and a 1840 Greek Revival main block; the Wainwright House (1314-1-12), a 1½ story, traditionally styled building dating from 1805; 25 Main St. (1314-1-9), a 1½ story cottage built c. 1837; and the north section of 12-14 Main St. (1314-1-7). The remainder of buildings exhibit vernacular examples of Victorian styles, particularly the Italianate style. The J. Sanford house at 17 Main St. (1314-1-8) is a good example. Several early 20th century buildings, primarily bungalows are also in the district. The buildings are evenly spaced along the streets, having small, regular setbacks. Many have picket fences or low hedges along the side walk. Many of the buildings have been altered to their detriment, primarily through the use of inappropriate siding, such as stucco, aluminum, or vinyl.

Six of the buildings in the district are intrusions, and two others are outside the district through boundary manipulations, but still impact on the visual character of the streetscapes. The most damaging intrusion is the service station located at the northeast corner of Main St. and Asbury Ave., the former location of the Goodenough House which was moved in 1957. It is incompatible in scale, material, setback, and design, and is visible from most points in the district.

The boundaries are delineated on the district map. The east side of the district is bounded by woodland and recent subdivision; the south is bounded by the commercial district; the west and north borders are bounded by recent residential construction.
SIGNIFICANCE:

The Farmingdale District is a rural village that had its greatest period of growth following the discovery and exploitation of the marl beds along the Manasquan River and Mingamahone Creek, beginning in the 1830's. The establishment of the Squankum and Freehold Marl Co. and Railroad in 1866, making Farmingdale an important railroad junction, spurred the major period of growth in the town. The addition of the New Jersey Southern Railroad, and the Farmingdale and Squan River Railroad (later Penna. RR.) further increased its importance as a transportation center. In addition to the marl business and the marketing of farm produce, Farmingdale developed several small industries including a foundry, several saw mills (both water and steam powered), lumber yards, a tannery and a cider mill. The small industries kept Farmingdale economically active well into the 20th century, after the marl business had diminished.

The district itself comprises the residential section of this village, since little of historical significance remains in the commercial or industrial section of the village. The residential architecture of the district reflects the period of growth in the town, as only four of the sites date from before the Squankum and Freehold Marl Co. and Railroad. The wing of the Goodenough House (1314-1-4) dates from the 18th century, when the town was known as Marsh's Bog, and amounted to little more than an intersection of roads and a tavern. The Wainwright House (1314-1-12) is another important building from this early period. With the establishment of a post office in 1819 the town was known as Upper Squankum, though it had grown little, having only two taverns, two stores, and a dozen dwellings in 1834. The village name was changed again in the 1860's to Farmingdale, apparently because the stigma of "poverty and ignorance" that was associated with the name of Squankum was not appropriate to the newly prosperous community. This prosperity is reflected in the larger size and fancier design of the buildings from that period. The J. Sanford House built c. 1867 (1314-1-8), the Methodist Parsonage built c. 1868 (1314-1-3), and 51 Main St. (1314-1-13) illustrate this. Institutional buildings also reflected the new prosperity, particularly the Methodist Church, built 1894 (1314-1-6) and Red Men Hall, built 1895 (1514-1-11).

The Farmingdale District, in its residential construction, reflects the prosperity that came to Farmingdale, and Monmouth County in general, during the second half of the 19th century, and includes its 18th and early 19th century antecedents. See Continuation Sheet

When compared to the Adelphia District (1319-1) in Howell, a village with a similar 18th and early 19th century development, it makes a striking statement of the importance of the railroads in 19th century community development. Because of the serious intrusions in the center of the district, and the fact that two key buildings (1314-1-3 and 1314-1-4) have been moved from their original location, make the district not eligible for the National Register.

Section A is the earliest part of the building; it may have been built in two sections. It is 1½ stories, with 6/3 knee wall windows in the second floor, and small 6/6 sash windows in the first floor. A shed lean-to is on the end, and a shed roof porch extends the full length of the section. Section B is more highly designed. The gable roof has a denticulated cornice with gable returns. Windows have 6/6 sash. The four panel door has a Classical enframent with transom and side lights and a Doric order portico. The building was moved to this location from the northeast corner of Asbury Avenue and Main Street in 1957.

This is the earliest building now standing in the Borough of Farmingdale. The 1½ story section is a good example of one of the dominant 18th century house types found in Monmouth County. The main block of the Wainwright House (1314-1-12) has a similar form. The Greek Revival main section is one of the more notable examples of that style in the county, and particularly in the Farmingdale-Howell area. The house has been in the Goodenough Family since the 18th century. William and Joseph Goodenough owned it, in addition to a considerable amount of property in and around Farmingdale, throughout the second half of the 19th century.

House, view to S.W.
The house is composed of a large, square main block, with a three story turret on the south west corner, a one-story rear ell, and a full front porch and porte-cochere. A large, central dormer has the form of a Palladian window. Other windows have 1/1 and 2/2 sash. The large door is located in the center of the main block, and is slightly recessed. A triangular pediment is formed in the porch roof above it. The house may have been altered in the late 19th-early 20th century, with the additions of a Colonial Revival porch.
SITING, BOUNDARY DESCRIPTION, AND RELATED STRUCTURES:

The house faces west on a large, irregularly shaped lot. Tall conifers surround the house, and a low hedge parallels the road on the front of the lot.

This is an unusually large house for Farmingdale or surrounding Howell Township. It is an example of the later expression of the Queen Anne Style in Monmouth County and is more typical of the houses found along the shore. A house was on the site as early as 1860, though this house appears to have been built between the ownership of Mrs. Howland in 1878 and Mrs. C. Cully in 1889.

This is a notable example of Victorian Gothic church architecture in Monmouth County. The First Baptist Church of Freehold is a similarly designed church. This is the second building erected by the Farmingdale Methodist congregation; the first was built in 1849-1850, a short time after they were first organized. The former parsonage is now located at 22 Asbury Ave. (1314-1-3). It was built in 1868, and was formerly located on the lot north of the church. The original parsonage was built in 1844.

The north section (A) of this house is an unusual example of the Greek Revival in Monmouth County, as the temple form with flush siding is rarely used. The recent addition of aluminum siding (since photo) is unfortunate. This was the post office, and Halsted H. Wainwright's (1831-1922) undertaker shop in 1860. He was son of Halsted H. Wainwright (1798-1849, see #1314-1-12). He continued to own the shop in 1873 and 1878, and may have added the southern section (B). S.A. and Dr. Y.M. Disbrow owned the building in 1889. The north section (A) continued to be used as an office as late as 1923.

This is a good example of the Italianate Style in Monmouth County, with notable features including bracketed eaves, French doors, and an unusual recessed end bay on the front facade. The house is well maintained and the aluminum siding does not detract in any major way, having left most of the design elements intact. The house was probably built for J. Small, traditional cottages such as this were built in Monmouth County during the 18th century and well into the 19th century. Similar buildings include the Hall House in Adelphia, Howell Township (1319-10), the original section of the Elisha Corlies Price House in Oceanport (1338-8), and the center portion of the nearby Wainwright House (1314-1-12). This house may have been owned by C.G. Vonde in 1851 (the map is ambiguous), by J. Bowde (later spelled Boud) in 1860, by Mrs. J. Allaire in 1873, and by W. Emmons in 1878 and 1889.

Additional Architectural Description:
The house is composed of three sections. Stylistically, either section A or B could be the original house. The main block (A) is 1 1/2 stories, with two simple gabled dormers. The two doors are flanked by two windows each. All of the first floor windows have 1/1 sash. A smaller 1 story wing is to the north of the main block (B) and also has a door flanked by two windows. Both of these sections have a high knee wall above the first floor, and an even eave line. The third section (C) has two windows, a false front and narrower clapboard. A porch supported by smooth classical columns extends across the two main sections.

SIGNIFICANCE: See Farmingdale District form #1314-1.

The Wainwright house is one of the earliest houses in Farmingdale (only the Goodenough House, 1314-1-4, is older) and is particularly important because it utilizes examples of two of the major 18th to early 19th century house forms in Monmouth County. The larger section, one and a half stories, with a deep plan, is similar to the early ell on the Goodenough House, while the central section has the small cottage plan of the 25 Main St. House (1314-1-9) and others. The house was built by Halsted Wainwright (1771-1818) and his descendants continued to own it well into the 20th century. His son, Halsted H. Wainwright (1798-1849) who occupied the house after him, was Farmingdale's (then Upper Squankum) postmaster from 1826 until his death, when he was succeeded by Joseph Goodenough (1314-1-4). His widow Catherine Little Wainwright, continued to occupy the house until her death in 1867, when it was acquired by their son Benjamin Franklin Wainwright (1838-1929). His older brother Halsted H. Wainwright (1831-1922) was an undertaker and kept shop in 12-14 Main St. (1314-1-7).
