

Rockingham, a New Jersey State Historic Site, served as a home and headquarters to General George Washington and his wife Martha for two and a half months in 1783. It was here that he composed his “Farewell Orders to the Armies of the United States”.