Situated on the edge of the New Jersey Pine Barrens, Parvin State Park has forests typical to the area but also a hardwood forest swamp. The park features over 200 flowering plant species including flowering dogwood, mountain laurel, American holly, magnolia and wild azalea. Thundergust Lake, Parvin Lake and Muddy Run are popular destinations for fishing and boating. Within the park, nine different trails totaling more than 15 miles allow visitors to explore Parvin.

The trail turns northwest and continues parallel to Morton Avenue ending near the park boundary and Centerton Road. Black Oak Trail varies in width from single to double-track as it travels through flat pine and oak forest.

Flat Trail

Parvin Lake Trail

Green • 3 miles • Multiuse
Easy • Loop trail around Parvin Lake

Trailhead Parvin Grove Day Use Area.
Parvin Lake Trail follows the perimeter of Parvin Lake. Beginning at the day use area, the trail heads east or west. Heading east, the trail is flat gravel as it curves along the eastern side of the lake. After crossing a small bridge, the trail turns west and follows the southern lake shore, passing the group campsites. Parvin Lake Trail follows Campground Road for a short distance before returning to the lake's edge. The trail continues beyond the lake and into Muddy Run creek basin. Parvin Lake Trail intersects with Flat Trail, then turns north at the intersection of Knoll Trail to cross a bridge over Muddy Run. At a small pavilion on the north side of Muddy Run, the trail meets with Nature and Long Trails where it turns east again. About 0.75 miles west of Parvin Grove Day Use Area, the trail passes the site of the Civilian Conservation Corp camp. Companies 1225 and 2227V were housed at Parvin State Park from 1933 to 1941.

Thundergust Lake Trail
