

Holocaust: Never forget – Justin May

Freedom, Justice, Equality, qualities that are attained at birth,

For most individuals worth, however, what occurs if this is taken away or captured?,

Where your soul is in purgatory, and you write these sentimental stories, not knowing the pain, sound all you hear is the echoing sound of laughter,

Victims subjected to euphemisms, liquidated and exterminated,

Asking God, “Why are you letting our people being castigated”,

Decimated, eliminated, and terminated,

Survival of the fittest, persistent, struggling, for your existence,

Where even reading a book is considered some form of resistance,

Belligerent, Ignorant views evaporate you into a category,

Knowing Death is inevitable, well the sense of relief is in these allegories,

Yearly abuse, Most German youths, are fed the misleading truth,

Left to starvation, pleading for hunger,

Where some in most cases are subjugated to a number,

This is the Holocaust, There are honestly no words to describe analyze, recognize,

This tragic case of genocide, but, their stories has shown us that no one should live under these standards, so it is up to us individual to become the up stander’s

To make sure nothing as cataclysmic is equivalent,

Where your people are persecuted by stereotypes as terrified to live as citizens,

Free the negative chakras/energy and judge someone based on their character,

Not by the past, but by the present to create their vernacular,

To teach the generation, portray the methods, of love, freedom, justice, and peace,

So the innocent do not ever perish ruthlessly or become deceased,

The tears of the lost spirits to prevent that thought of regret,

A lesson learned, as the horror of the Holocaust we will never forget.
