Daniel's Law for Redactors

In November 2020, Governor Murphy signed Daniel's Law, which amended the Open Public Records Act (OPRA) and other statutes protecting personal information for certain persons in public service. Specifically, Daniel's Law is designed to expand protections from public exposure for personal information about active and retired judges, law enforcement officers, and prosecutors, and their immediate family members. Redactors appointed at state, county and municipal government levels are responsible for carrying out these protections.

Daniel's Law Website Search Assistant:

Aids Redactors in locating OIP-approved Covered Persons' information on their public facing websites.

Redactor enters into the system a web address where their posted data appears. The Search Assistant then continuously searches those web addresses for Covered Persons' names and residence information identified in their redaction requests and provides those results to the Redactor.

If you are no longer an appointed Redactor, advise the OIP. Be sure an active redactor remains in place to address redaction requests.

OIP needs current and correct data to assure it is sending redaction notices to the right person.
