

Public Availability Session for Pompton Lakes Residents

DATE: Thursday, April 28, 2011

TIME: 6-9 PM

WHERE: St. Mary's Carnevale Center – 10 Lenox Avenue, Pompton Lakes, NJ

The New Jersey Department of Health and Senior Services (NJDHSS) and the federal Agency for Toxic Substances and Disease Registry (ATSDR) will be hosting an Availability Session for residents of Pompton Lakes, NJ.

Physicians and scientists specializing in environmental health issues from the University of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey/Rutgers Environmental and Occupational Health Sciences Institute (EOHSI) and the Pediatric Environmental Health Specialty Unit (PEHSU) from the Mt. Sinai School of Medicine in New York City will participate in a public forum to address health concerns related to possible exposures from the DuPont site.

If you are unable to attend this session but have health concerns, please feel free to contact Christa Fontecchio at the NJDHSS at (609) 826-4920.
