Manufacturer Insulin Assistance Programs

Free or low-cost programs run by major insulin companies to help patients afford their insulin.

Patient Assistance Programs (PAP)

A PAP provides prescribed medication for low cost or free to patients who meet the manufacturer's financial, residency, insurance, and other eligibility requirements.

Copay Assistance Cards

A copay savings card is a manufacturer-sponsored program that lowers what an eligible patient pays out of pocket for insulin at the pharmacy.

Cash Pay Assistance

A cash-pay/affordability program is a manufacturer-sponsored program that allows eligible patients to purchase insulin at a reduced, predetermined price without billing the prescription to their health insurance.

Discount Card Program

A prescription discount card program is a savings tool that allows patients to pay a lower cash price for certain prescription medications at participating pharmacies.
