Research indicates that young adults who identify as lesbian, gay, bisexual or queer/questioning have 1.3 times the odds of heavy alcohol use, 1.6 times the odds of marijuana use, 2.9 times the odds of injection drug use, and 3.3 times the odds of cocaine use than their non-LGBTQ peers.¹ Identifying as LGBTQ affects girls' substance use risk more dramatically than boys', though boys are more likely to use drugs and alcohol overall. There is some evidence that bisexual youth are particularly likely to use alcohol and other drugs.² DMHAS seeks applications for prevention programs and non-clinical services for LGBTQ youth that are comprehensive and that employ prevention strategies
