Why doesn't American FactFinder display properly in my browser?

Since browsers cache some of the web tier files (*.js; *.css) by name, whenever an updated or new version of AFF is released, the content of these files changes but some browsers do not always detect the change to get a fresh file. Instead, they continue to serve the files from the local cache, creating a confusing and error-prone mix of new and old files. As a result, some American FactFinder User Interface elements (buttons, text boxes, etc.) may not function correctly.

To correct this issue and properly display American FactFinder, you can clear the browser cache as follows:

(Note: IE 8, 9, and 10 users may also need to set the Compatibility View, see instructions below)

In FireFox 10:

Tools -> Advanced -> Network -> Clear Now.

In IE 8 or 9:

Tools -> Delete Browsing History -> Have Temporary Internet Files, Cookies, and History checked -> Deselect Preserve Favorites website data -> Delete.

Compatibility View for IE 8, 9, and 10

If you are using IE 8, 9, or 10, and American FactFinder still does not display properly, you can set your browsers Compatibility View as follows:

The 2006-2010 American Community Survey American Indian Alaska Native Tables (AIANT) provide detailed social, economic, demographic and housing data for up to 950 tribes and tribal groups. Availability of ACS AIANT tables for a specific tribe is limited to geographic areas with at least 50 unweighted sample cases of the chosen tribe or tribal group. This means that tables will not be shown for tribes or tribal groups with less than 50 unweighted sample cases in a specified geographic area.

The 2011 American Community Survey 1-year estimates provide detailed social, economic, demographic, and housing data for areas with populations of 65,000 or more.
