

New Jersey State Industrial Safety Committee (NJSISC)

Member Spotlight: James Clancy, CIH

The NJSISC Member Spotlight program highlights individual members, their experiences, and how they have benefited from NJSISC membership.

James Clancy, CIH
NJM Insurance Group
Member Since: 2009

Biography: James A. Clancy is a Manager with the NJM Insurance Group. He has been employed by NJM for over 29 years and is currently responsible for their Engineering Department. Mr. Clancy received his MS degree in Industrial Hygiene from Temple University and his BA degree from Rutgers University. He is a certified industrial hygienist (CIH) from the American Board of Industrial Hygiene. He is also a member of the Philadelphia Chapter of the American Industrial Hygiene Association, the Penn Jersey Chapter of the American Society of Safety Engineers (ASSE) and is currently the Strategic Planner of the New Jersey State Industrial Safety Committee.

Why did you join NJSISC? NJM has had a representative on the NJSISC for many years and I was asked to sit on the committee by my former colleague Bob DeFlesco.

How has membership in NJSISC been of value to you and your career? NJSISC is a great resource of talented safety professionals and I have made many friends during my time on the committee.

Please complete this sentence: NJSISC is ... A diverse group of committed and driven safety professionals that work to keep the employees of NJ safe on the job.

Why did you choose the field of environmental health and safety? Early in my career I met an industrial hygienist and he sparked an interest in working in the safety and health field.

Please list a few of your most recent accomplishments: Most recently I have been helping with the criteria for the Governor's Awards and was able to attend the award ceremony.

Contact James: jclancy@njm.com, 609-883-1300