Model Rules and Regulations
2nd Edition

November 1992

INTRODUCTION

This edition of the Model Rules and Regulations represents a major revision from the previous version. Over the years, the scope of department rules and regulations has been narrowly focused. It was once thought the rules and regulations should contain everything a police officer needed to know to do his job. It is now recognized that the rules and regulations should provide broad guidance for police officer behavior. Specifics of day-to-day police operations properly belong in department policies and procedures. In addition, the adoption of rules and regulations is not the responsibility of the chief of police, but instead it is the responsibility of the Appropriate Authority within the municipality. Issuing policies and procedures, orders and directives that govern the day-to-day operation of the police department is, however, the responsibility of the chief.

Authority for Rules and Regulations

Before the establishment of any rules and regulations, municipal police departments must have a current and valid municipal ordinance. N.J.S.A. 40A:14-118 states, in part:

Any such ordinance shall, in a manner consistent with the form of government adopted by the municipality and with general law, provide for a line of authority relating to the police function and for the adopting and promulgation by the appropriate authority of rules and regulations for the government of the force and the discipline of its members. [Emphasis added]

Only when the municipal ordinance identifies the appropriate authority can valid rules and regulations be adopted and promulgated. In order for rules and regulations to be valid, each municipality must comply with the sequence of events described in the statute. The municipal ordinance is the essential foundation upon which rules and regulations rest.

Below are a number of model provisions for municipalities' consideration in implementing police ordinances. A municipality's use of these model provisions will to a degree be dependant upon the municipality's form of government. Furthermore, depending upon individual municipalities' particular circumstances, the model provisions may not be all-inclusive for purposes of implementing a police ordinance. Every police executive should always consult with his or her municipal attorney to determine the validity of a municipality's current police ordinance and to ascertain whether amendments are necessary.

The recommended model ordinance provisions are as follows:

§ There is hereby created in and for the <<MUNICIPALITY>> a Police Department which shall consist of a Chief of Police and such members and officers as shall be deemed necessary by the <<GOVERNING BODY OF THE MUNICIPALITY>> which shall, from time to time, determine the number of persons, including temporary officers and members in an emergency, to be appointed to these positions together with their compensation. (N.J.S.A. 40A:14-118)

§ The Police Department shall:

Preserve the public peace; protect life and property; detect, arrest and prosecute offenders of the laws of New Jersey and the ordinances of the <<MUNICIPALITY>>; direct and control traffic; provide attendance and protection during emergencies; provide appearances in court; cooperate with all other law enforcement agencies; and provide training for the efficiency of its members and officers. (N.J.S.A. 40A:14-152)

§ The <<PROPER DESIGNEE OF GOVERNING BODY>> shall be designated as the Appropriate Authority as provided in the New Jersey Statutes. The Appropriate Authority shall be responsible for the overall performance of the Police Department. The Appropriate Authority shall adopt and promulgate Rules and Regulations for the government of the Police Department and for the discipline of its members. (N.J.S.A. 40A:14-118)

§ The Chief of Police¹ shall be the head of the Police Department and shall be directly responsible to the Appropriate Authority for its efficiency and day to day operations. Pursuant to policies established by the Appropriate Authority, the Chief of Police shall:

Administer and enforce the Rules and Regulations of the Police Department and any special emergency directive for the disposition and discipline of the Department and its members and offers;

Have, exercise and discharge the functions, powers and duties of the Police Department;

Prescribe the duties and assignments of all members and officers;

Delegate such authority as may be deemed necessary for the efficient operation of the Police Department to be exercised under the ¹ If the position of chief of police is established, a section should be included in the ordinance similar to this model.

Chief's direction and control; and

Report at least monthly to the Appropriate Authority in such form as shall be prescribed on the operation of the Police Department during the preceding month and make such other reports as may be requested by the Appropriate Authority. (N.J.S.A. 40A:14-118)

§ No member or officer of the Police Department shall be suspended, removed, fined or reduced in rank for any cause other than for incapacity, misconduct or disobedience as provided in the New Jersey Statutes and the Police Department's Rules and Regulations. (N.J.S.A. 40A:14-147)

§ No person shall be appointed to the Police Department who is not qualified as provided in the New Jersey Statutes. The Appropriate Authority may also require that an applicant for appointment to the Police Department shall successfully complete a physical, mental and psychological examination. (N.J.S.A. 40A:14-122 and N.J.S.A. 40A:14-127)

§ The <<GOVERNING BODY OF THE MUNICIPALITY>> may appoint from time to time special law enforcement officers in accordance with New Jersey Statutes for terms not exceeding one year. They shall possess and exercise all the powers and duties provided by said statutes during their term in office, but shall not be continued as regular members of the Police Department and shall not be entitled to tenure. The Chief of Police may authorize special law enforcement officers when on duty to exercise the same powers and authority as regular members of the Police Department including the carrying of firearms and the power of arrest. (N.J.S.A. 40A:14-146.8 et seq.)

For other New Jersey law enforcement agencies, the source of the authority for rules and regulations is not specifically addressed by statute. In the cases of county prosecutors and sheriffs, the authority to promulgate rules and regulations rests with the prosecutor or sheriff, respectively. In county police departments and county park police, the authority to issue rules and regulations may rest with the agency head, the governing body, or some other authority. For those agencies which operate under a commission, such as multi-state bridge police, the authority for promulgating rules and regulations may rest with the commission itself. In these cases, the law enforcement agency should consult with its own legal counsel, county prosecutor or the Division of Criminal Justice Police Bureau to determine who has the authority to issue rules and regulations.

In any case, the practical approach to the promulgation of rules and regulations is one in which the police department management prepares a draft of proposed rules and regulations. This draft must take into consideration the needs of the police department, the impact of collective bargaining agreements, local ordinances and personnel rules, State and Federal law. The properly designated authority, as well as the municipal attorney, should review the draft rules and regulations and modify them as necessary. The appropriate authority can then issue the rules and regulations in their final version.

Policies and Procedures

Rules and regulations cannot stand by themselves in guiding the operations of the police department. It is essential that the rules are part of a comprehensive policy management system. In this Second Edition of Chapter 2, many long sections have been removed and often replaced with a short rule containing the phrase "...pursuant to department policies and procedures..." The content of these sections, such as Use of Force, are critical to police operations. However, this information does not belong in department rules and regulations, but belongs instead in department policies and procedures.

Information on how to accomplish specific job related tasks should be contained in policies and procedures. For example, a rule might require officers to be in proper uniform when so assigned. However, the specific features of the clothing and the equipment that comprise "proper uniform" must be spelled out in policies and procedures. Similarly, the detailed procedures for processing prisoners or using department equipment should be found in policies and procedures, not in rules and regulations.

In general, rules and regulations are guidelines outlining the acceptable and unacceptable behavior of personnel and are typically broad in nature. Policies, on the other hand, are detailed statements of procedures covering various aspects of day-to-day police operations. Rules and regulations provide the framework for the effective management of a police department; policies and procedures flesh out the details for all manner of police operations. In adopting new rules and regulations, a police department should completely review its policy system as well to insure that all relevant areas of police operations are adequately covered.

6.1.1 Disciplinary Action. Employees, regardless of rank, shall be subject to disciplinary action, according to the nature or aggravation of the offense, for:

- a. committing an offense punishable under the laws or statutes of the United States, the State of New Jersey or any other State, or municipal ordinances;

MODEL RULES AND REGULATIONS

- c. violation of any rule, policy, procedure, or directive of the department; or
- d. failure to obey any lawful instruction, order, or command of a supervisor.

6.1.2 Repeated Violations. Repeated violations of the rules of conduct shall be indicative of employees' disregard for their duty and may be cause for dismissal. This shall apply regardless of the type or severity of the offenses.

6.2 Disciplinary Procedure

The specific disciplinary procedures and penalties for the law enforcement agency should be included at this point.

Procedures. The disciplinary procedures must be in accordance with the laws of the State of New Jersey, municipal ordinance, case law, collective bargaining agreements, administrative regulations, Department of Personnel rules (if applicable) and municipal personnel department rules. These procedures should include details on charging, hearings, and appeals.

Penalties. A system of progressive discipline must be instituted within the department's rules and regulations. Progressive discipline serves an important role in the process by which the department deals with minor complaints of misconduct. In providing a range of penalties, the department can use the disciplinary process to achieve the basic goals of instruction and addressing inappropriate behavior before minor problems escalate into major problems. At the same time, the accused officer is made aware that repeated violations of department rules will lead to ever increasing penalties.

A progressive discipline scale can include:

1. Counseling
2. Oral reprimand or performance notice
3. Letter of reprimand
4. Loss of vacation time²
5. Imposition of extra duty¹
6. Monetary fine³
7. Transfer/reassignment

² Penalties not available to agencies covered by New Jersey Department of Personnel regulations.

³ Agencies operating under the Department of Personnel statutes (N.J.S.A. 11A:2-20) and regulations may only assess a fine in lieu of a suspension where loss of the officer from duty would be "detrimental to the public health, safety or welfare" or if the assessment is restitution or is agreed to by the employee.

MODEL RULES AND REGULATIONS

- 8. Suspension without pay
- 9. Loss of promotion opportunity¹
- 10. Demotion
- 11. Dismissal

The possible penalties an officer might receive when an allegation of misconduct is substantiated should be included in the rules. It is suggested that the agency set different levels of penalty based on the seriousness of the violation. For instance, four "classes" of violations could be used in which Class A violations represent only the most serious infractions, Class D violations are relatively minor rule violations, and Class B and Class C are in between. For each class, presumptive minimum and maximum penalties should be specified. This does not limit the hearing authority from imposing a penalty outside of the established classes. If the hearing authority should impose a penalty outside of the set range, this action must be clearly justified in the hearing documentation.

Penalties must be imposed on a case by case basis. In each case, the hearing officer should consider all the aggravating and mitigating circumstances surrounding the accused officer's behavior.

Examples of penalty classification might be:

Class	Violation	Minimum / Maximum Penalty
A	Soliciting, accepting, or agreeing to accept, directly or indirectly, any benefit not allowed by law to influence the performance of their official duties.	Suspension to Dismissal
B	Reporting for duty under the influence of an alcoholic beverage.	Written reprimand to Demotion
C	Knowingly issuing an order which is in violation of any department rule, policy, or procedure.	Oral reprimand to Suspension
D	Transporting citizens in department vehicles not in conformance with department policy.	Oral reprimand to Suspension

These are examples only. Each police department must develop its own scale of penalties based on State law, case law, municipal ordinance, collective bargaining agreements, and Department of Personnel or local personnel regulations.
