With great weather forecasted for this holiday weekend National Guard recruiters could be very busy at the Guard Fit stand on the boardwalk in Seaside Heights. The colorful stand was recently opened with recruiters showing off their physical fitness skills to entice beach goers and sun bathers to test how many sit ups or pushups their can do to win a Guard Fit prize. Certainly it is more challenging than trying to knock down the milk bottles with a softball. Photo by Kryn P. Westhoven, DMAVA PAO.

It has been a decade since the idea was proposed to putting shovels in the ground for the construction of a multi-purpose room for the Paramus Veterans Memorial Home. On June 28 construction was started. For the ground breaking Maj. Gen. Glenn K. Rieth, The Adjutant General, second from right, was joined by Congressman Scott Garrett, third from right; Doris Neibart-CEO, Paramus VMH; and John Piccirilli-Engineer in Charge of Maintenance, Paramus VMH, far right. On the left side of the sign are Robert McCoobery, Carter Contracting, Roger Stine, Nadaskay-Kopelson, project architects and Raymond Zawacki, Deputy Commissioner for Veterans Affairs. The size of the addition is nearly 8,000 square feet and will be capable to have more than 700 people for entertainment and holiday events at the home. Photo by Kryn P. Westhoven, DMAVA PAO.

Phillip Sardinha over his shoulder during injury evacuation training on June 26 for the Recruit Sustainment Program at Sea Girt. Odah, an Iraqi citizen, worked for American forces in Iraq and overcame long odds to receive a visa to come to the United States. One of Odah's first moves was to enlist. He is due to ship to basic training in September. He wants to be a cavalry scout. Photo by Sgt. Wayne Woolley, DMAVA PAO.

DMAVA Green

By Tech. Sgt. Barb Harbison, NJDMAVA Public Affairs Specialist

We toss many things in the trash or throw them in the garbage disposal, thinking what use can that little thing be? Well, here are a number of ways to keep eggshells out the waste system.

Gardening: crushed eggshells in the holes in the bottom of plant pots; the shells give calcium to the plant roots. Or use for starting plants from seed; when they sprout you can plant the whole thing into the ground. Or soak them in a container of water and use to water your garden, giving you more lush plants. Or place them around your garden on top of the soil to deter slugs, snails and cutworms. It also irritates cat's paws and keep them from using your garden as a litter box.

At the bird feeder: add some crushed shells in a dish nearby. Female birds need extra calcium, particularly those who are nearing time to lay eggs or have recently completed laying.

In the kitchen: crush shells as fine as you can and let them sit in your drain basket. As water runs through the basket, pieces of shell will fall through and get into your drain pipes acting as an abrasive to get rid of hair and grease buildup. Or put crushed shells in a damp tea pot or thermos stained with tea; let sit overnight; add a little water, swish and empty. Or place a washed shell to the coffee grounds in your filter and brew; the calcium removes the bitter taste in the coffee.

Crafting: grind about six clean, dried shells into a fine powder. Mix with a teaspoon of hot water and a teaspoon of flour; roll paste mixture into a stick shape and wrap in a paper towel; let dry for several days, unwrap and you have chalk for the sidewalk or driveway.

Skin care: dissolve one eggshell in small jar of apple cider vinegar – takes about two days – then use the mixture to treat minor skin irritations and itchy skin.

Always rinse your shells before use. Of course you can always add the shells to your compost pile.

Keep Green!

Workshop to become an outdoors woman opens

Registrations are now being accepted for the NJDEP's Division of Fish and Wildlife "Becoming an Outdoors-Woman" (BOW) Coastal workshop. Slated for September 10 - 12, 2010, the workshop is an opportunity to spend three value-packed days and two nights in beautiful Avalon when the crowds are gone and the weather and water are usually superb.

The low fee of $395 includes lodging at the oceanfront Golden Inn (<http://www.goldeninn.com/>), seven meals and free instruction and use of equipment needed for the various wildlife and outdoor skill classes. A limited number of $235 scholarships are available for first-time participants.

Although oriented towards women, this workshop is open to anyone who is at least 18 years of age who would like to learn about wildlife and outdoor skills on the Jersey coast. Snorkeling, fishing, geocaching, shooting, kayaking, archery, falconry, boating, crabbing and bird watching are just a few of the 23 hands-on learning sessions being offered. No prior knowledge or skills are required – just a willingness to learn from experienced and talented instructors.

This workshop has been a life changing experience for many women who discovered the joy of the outdoors and enriched their lives with the skills and confidence they acquired. It can do the same for you or someone you care about.

Don't miss out on this unique value and wonderful opportunity and experience. Register early to secure your spot for this great learning opportunity. Visit <http://www.njfishandwildlife.com/bowhome.htm> today to view and print the workshop brochure and registration form.

Vietnam Veterans Memorial Foundation hosting film screening, discussion July 17

On July 17, at 1 p.m., the New Jersey Vietnam Veterans' Memorial Foundation will host a film screening and panel discussion about the 1st Cavalry Division in Vietnam. The film, We Were Heroes: The 1st Cavalry Division in Vietnam will feature the story of the "First Team" in Vietnam including the famous battles and operations in Plei Me, LZ X-Ray, LZ Albany, Bong Son, Khe Sanh and A Shau Valley. This program will be held at the Vietnam Era Museum and Educational Center in Holmdel. Teachers who attend this program will receive professional development credit hours. Light refreshments will be served.

We Were Heroes: Vietnam is a compilation of DVDs that tells the story of the 1st Cavalry Division (Airmobile) in Vietnam. U.S. Army cameramen filmed the footage right in the thick of battle. Following the screening of the film, Vietnam Veterans who served in the 1st Cavalry Division will speak about their experiences and answer questions. The Vietnam Veteran panelists from New Jersey will include Bill McClung, Little Silver, and John Minor, Manchester.

McClung and Minor were both drafted into the U.S. Army and after basic training and advanced training ended up in the 1st Cavalry in Vietnam. Bill "Doc" McClung served as a combat medic for a reconnaissance platoon in 1969 and John "JJ" Minor served in the 1/7 Cav in Vietnam in 1967 as an infantry soldier.

Lecture attendees are asked to call 732-335-0033 to RSVP. Regular admission applies: free for veterans and active-duty military personnel; adult admission is $4; student and senior citizen admission is $2; and children under 10 are admitted free. The museum and educational center is located adjacent to the New Jersey Vietnam Veterans' Memorial, exit 116, Garden State Parkway.

ROK looks to honor living veterans of Korean War

From the President of the Republic of Korea

On the occasion of the 60th Anniversary of the Korean War, the Republic of Korea 60th Anniversary of the Korean War Commemoration Committee has various plans to thank, honor and remember Korean War Veterans and their achievements.

One of the meaningful projects is to send letters of appreciation from the President of the Republic of Korea to as many living Korean War Veterans as possible to express tribute and profound gratitude for their service and sacrifice that laid the foundations of peace and freedom that we enjoy today.

We strongly recommend that Korean War Veteran who wants to receive the letter should fill out and submit an online application form for an appreciation letter from the Republic of Korea President.

A Korean War Veteran not able to submit an online application form can download, print and mail a form to the U.S. Branch of Republic of Korea 60th Anniversary of the Korean War Commemoration Committee.

By Internet: visit <http://eng.koreanwar60.go.kr/apply.asp>. Or type <http://mpva.sendmall.co.kr/apply/Applicaiton%form.doc> to get a downloadable application form. Complete and mail to:
