Veterans' Preference now includes Operation Iraqi Freedom

The Defense Authorization Act for FY 2006 expanded the federal government's definition of "veteran," changing eligibility requirements for veterans' preference. It was announced last week that the Act included two provisions that broaden the definition of veteran.

"This is good news. These provisions recognize veterans for their service during a critical time in U.S. history. As a result more eligible veterans who served on active duty during the designated period will be entitled to veterans' preference," said Linda Springer, Director of the Office of Personnel Management.

The first provision gives preference to those who served on active duty during the period beginning September 11, 2001 and ending at the close of Operation Iraqi Freedom, provided they meet other conditions. The provision also expands the number of individuals who may be entitled to Veterans' Preference. Operation Enduring Freedom participants would be eligible for veterans' preference (assuming they meet all other criteria).

The second provision clarifies Veterans' Preference eligibility for federal hiring. Individuals "who are discharged or released from active duty service" provided they meet other applicable veterans' preference requirements, are now eligible. The new language replaces "individuals separated from the Armed Forces."

This means that anyone who served on active duty for a period of more than 180 consecutive days, any part of which occurred during this period of time, regardless of location, is entitled to veterans' preference if otherwise eligible. This applies not only to candidates seeking employment, but to federal employees that are qualifying veterans who may be affected by reduction in force as well.

Occupational Safety and Health Competency Assessment and Management Program (OSHCAMP) inspection at 108th Air Refueling Wing

An Occupational Safety and Health Competency Assessment and Management Program team inspected the 108th Air Refueling Wing on February 14-16, 2006.

The team, contracted out by the National Guard Bureau to conduct the tri-annual inspection this year, inspected the entire wing to make sure everything was within regulations. Typically, an Environmental, Safety, Occupational and Health Competency Assessment and Management Program inspection is conducted tri annually, but the environmental aspect of it was taken care of in 2005, making this inspection an OSHCAMP instead.

"This is an opportunity for everyone to learn," said MAJ Kirk Phillips, the OSHCAMP team chief. The OSHCAMP team took note of the "outstanding" quality of the training and safety programs implemented here. "The forklift training program is outstanding. You also have an excellent on- and off-duty safety awareness program. It's an awesome deal," said Tom tucker, the ground safety inspector.

The Safety Office's program was specifically noted in the OSHCAMP inspection team's report. Chief Master Sergeant Denis A. Dzurinko, the chief of ground safety here, felt the inspection was a good experience for the unit. "I thought it went really well," Chief Dzurinko said.

The next EOSHCAMP is expected to take place sometime in 2009.

Thrift Savings Plan reports e-mail scam

Some Thrift Savings Plan (TSP) participants have received an e-mail purporting to be from the TSP. The e-mail asks for confirmation that the participant has added an e-mail address to their TSP account. The link in this e-mail takes the person to a bogus version of the TSP account access screen where it asks for your Social Security Number and PIN. It then takes you to another screen where it asks for credit card and banking information.

PLEASE BE ADVISED THAT THIS IS NOT AN OFFICIAL THRIFT SAVINGS PLAN COMMUNICATION!

You should never give any personal, credit, or banking information in response to unsolicited e-mails; the TSP would never ask for this information via an e-mail. If you did provide this information, contact your credit card company/bank immediately and seek guidance. In addition, call the TSP and ask to have you account access blocked (1-877-968-3778).

Do not try to access the TSP Website by clicking on links in this or any other e-mail. They are trying to steal your personal information (always access your account by opening a new Browser window and typing http://www.tsp.gov into the Address/URL field.)

The TSP is actively investigating this matter. In the meantime, it has temporarily suspended the Account Transactions portion of Account Access.

Peter Engelhardt, of Summit, served in Vietnam from October 1968 through August 1969 with the 101st Airborne Division's 2nd Brigade, which operated out of Landing Zone (LZ) "Sally," near the ancient imperial city of Hue, and Fire Support Base (FSB) "Whip" in the Ashau Valley near the Laotian border in northern South Vietnam. Engelhardt was a college graduate who then attended Army Officer Candidate School at Fort Benning, Georgia. As an officer in Vietnam, he worked primarily behind the scenes dealing with operations planning and coordination, intelligence assessment, and psychological warfare exercises. He holds a deep admiration and respect for the airborne infantry "line" officers and their men, whose primary duty was combat. It is in their honor that he retells the story of his group of "Screaming Eagles," the nickname for members of the U.S. Army's 101st Airborne Division.

Fitness Corner - Ernest Razzano, Certified Fitness Trainer, ISSA

Sweating

Working out at the gym will most likely make you sweat. It's both natural and healthy to sweat under these conditions. In fact, when you're exercising strenuously, you may lose several quarts of fluid in perspiration. A pea-sized bead of sweat can cool nearly 1 liter (about 1 quart) of blood 1 degree Fahrenheit.

For some people who seat excessively (hyperhidrosis), the answer may be simple: an over-the-counter antiperspirant. Antiperspirants block your sweat ducts with aluminum salts (aluminum chloride, aluminum chlorohydrate, and/or aluminum zirconium), thereby reducing the amount of perspiration that reaches your skin. Deodorants eliminate odor, but not perspiration. They turn your skin acidic, which makes it less attractive to bacteria, which ultimately prevents smell. Antiperspirants can cause irritation or even contact dermatitis. In fact, antiperspirants are the cosmetic product most associated with skin irritation. Deodorants, especially herbal or crystal deodorants may be less irritating for most people.

If over-the-counter products aren't strong enough, your doctor may suggest a prescription antiperspirant. For more severe problems with sweating, he or she may recommend other treatments, including:

Iontophoresis. In this procedure, a dermatologist uses a battery-powered device to deliver a low current of electricity to the affected area.

Bolulinum toxin (Botox). This is the same product that helps smooth facial wrinkles by paralyzing certain muscles. Researchers have discovered that Botox injections are also an effective 3way to treat severe hyperhidrosis by blocking the nerves that trigger the sweat glands. In addition, although Botox stops sweating, it doesn't prevent body odor.

Surgery. In rare cases surgery may be an option. If excess sweating occurs just in your armpits, removing the sweat glands might help.

Anticholinergic drugs. If you have generalized sweating, your doctor may prescribe an anticholinergic drug. Anticholinergics work by blocking the actions of acetylcholine, a chemical messenger in your body that helps to stimulate your sweat glands.

Tax Assistance is available for Service Members & Families

Free Turbo Tax online filing program is provided at no cost by the Department of Defense for active duty, Guard and Reserve (regardless of activation status) and their families. Visit Military Onesource at www.militaryonesource.com for details and additional information.

Also, almost every military installation offers a tax center for military, retired military and family members: the Volunteer Income Tax Assistance (VITA) office. VITA volunteers are trained by the IRS and military legal office and can provide advice or assistance in filing taxes. Returns filed through the tax center are sent electronically, and people will received their refunds within 7-10 days. Each installation determines its tax center's operating hours and whether people need an appointment to come in. Contact the Legal Assistance Office at the facility nearest you.
