Challenge Cadets visit with Donald Trump.

On January 25, 2006, four cadets from the New Jersey Youth ChalleNGe Academy mingled with Donald Trump at Apprentice 2 winner, Kelly Perdew's book launch event at the Trump World Tower in New York. The cadets, Monique Pacheco, Thomas McDougald, Megan Criscione, and Anthony Pinapfel, attended the launch as guests of Mr. Perdew, a National Guard Youth ChalleNGe Academy national spokesperson since March of 2004. Perdew highlighted the program in his new book, Take Command: 10 Leadership Principles I Learned in the Military and Put to Work for Donald Trump and included his volunteer work with the NG Youth ChalleNGe Academy in the book's "Selfless Service" chapter. In addition to meeting "The Donald" and George Ross, also of The Apprentice, two of the cadets joined Perdew on the FOX News Channel's Fox & Friends earlier that morning for a five-minute segment about the program.

Department of Defense plans African American History Month observance.

The Association for the Study of African American Life and History, founded by Dr. Carter G. Woodson in 1926, annually develops a national observance theme for African American History Month. The theme for 2006 is "A Tribute to Black Fraternal, Social & Civic Organizations."

In concert with emphasizing quality education and in support of Presidential Executive Order 13256 "...to advance the development of the Nation's full potential and to advance equal opportunity in higher education...", the Department of Defense (DoD) observance of African American History Month will be held, in conjunction with outreach activities, at Huston-Tillotson University, in Austin Texas, February 24-25, 2006. The DoD theme for 2006 African American History Month observance and outreach events is, "Reaching Out to Youth: A Strategy for Excellence." DoD organizations and agencies are encouraged to conduct similar observances and activities in February 2006 observing National African American History Month.

2006 National Guard Association of the U.S. (NGAUS) Individual Award Nominees Sought.

Do you work with someone with a record of outstanding military service? Has your elected representative been a strong Guard supporter? Do you know a Guardsman who has performed a life-saving act? If so, that Guardsman is a potential candidate for NGAUS recognition. The association is seeking nominations for the 2006 NGAUS Individual Awards Program. Nominees should have demonstrated acts of heroism or have contributed significantly to Guard effectiveness. There are 10 separate individual awards.

The Award program basics are available on the NGAUS website: www.ngaus.org/index.asp?bid+97. Nominations must be submitted by May 15 and many must have an Adjutant General endorsement. The only exception is submissions directly from the state associations. Recipients will be announced in late July. Awards will be presented during business sessions of the 128th NGAUS Conference September 16-18, in New Mexico.

The Center for World War II Studies and Conflict Resolution at Brookdale Community College has announced the subject of their Spring 2006 World War II Stores Series will be the "Originals." The "Originals" were the first 28 women pilots accepted into the Army Air Force World War II Air Transport Command. Assigned to the Ferrying Division, these women flew military fighters, trainers, and bombers around the nation during the war from factories to air bases and handed them over to combat crews. Flying in all weather, the WAFS displayed heroism and sacrifice to get the job done. The "Originals" inspired over 1000 women pilots to volunteer for flying service, 38 of whom lost their lives in crashes. Hear their amazing story told by Honey Fulton Parker, sister of one of the first WAFS, Dorothy Fulton, now honored in the Women in Military Service Memorial, Washington, D.C.

Ms. Parker will speak at the Brookdale Community College, 765 Newman Springs Road, Lincroft, NJ, on Tuesday, February 28, at 7:30 p.m. in the Warner Student Life Center. Cost is $10 for adults, $5 for students.

Groundhog’s Day Report

In the event you missed the news out of Punxsutawney, PA, yesterday, The world’s best-known groundhog, “Punxsutawney Phil,” came out of his burrow to the delight of the large crowds gathered at Gobbler’s Knob and saw his shadow.

This means we are in store for six more weeks of winter.

The groundhog tradition stems from the Christian holiday of Candlemas, and the belief that if a hibernating animal sees its shadow, winter will last another six weeks. If there is no shadow, spring will come early.

Free Weights vs. Machines

There has been an ongoing debate regarding free weights vs. machines for strength training. While each can help you build strength, there are definite pros and cons for each. The following can help you determine what form of strength equipment is best for your needs.

Machines

The most important component in any strength-training program is safety. If you are new to strength training or if you are working out alone, variable resistance machines are the best bet. While machines can be a viable option for serious weight training, they are best for novice, senior, and recreational athletes.

the opportunity.”

- Lewis Grizzard, 1946-1994

For rehabilitating injured athletes, variable resistance machines are preferred. They provide a more controlled motion and specifically isolate certain muscle groups. Machines also allow you to track progress and provide objective feedback while increasing the protective participation of the healthy limb or muscle group.

Free Weights

Research has shown us that free weights promote quicker strength gains and they require more balance and coordination than do the weight machines. Free weights recruit more muscle groups than variable resistance machines, which tend to only isolate specific muscles.

Free weights are also more versatile than machines because they allow for more variations in range of motion. Free weights require balance, and they tend to promote more activity of the joint stabilizer muscles. Finally, they are considerably less expensive than most of the machines on the market. You can perform a complete strength training routine with a few dumbbells and a little imagination.

However, free weights require the help of a spotter, and result in more injuries than machines. Careful instruction and training is necessary to master the art of free weight lifting.

An ideal training program may incorporate both free weights and machines on alternating training days. In order to get the most from both muscle strength gains and joint stability, you can focus on free weights for some exercises and machines for others. The bottom line is that you should use the strength training equipment that suits your training needs, is safe, and is convenient. However, if you are comfortable using free weights, you may see greater strength gains here than with machines.
