wrong. As women expanded into different roles in the U.S. Army, it was clear that the heart of a warrior was not limited to one gender. When America went through the Civil War and the world wars of the 20th century, women continued to show their patriotism and their fighting spirit even though they did not receive equal treatment or recognition. Throughout the U.S. Army's history, women have proven that when freedom is threatened, they are equal to any task...and when their country calls, they respond — not in gender-hyphenated roles — but as U.S. Army Soldiers.

Women have served in the United States Army since 1775. They nursed the ill and wounded, laundered and mended clothing, and cooked for the troops in camp; services that did not exist among the uniformed personnel within the Army until the twentieth century. Women are an invaluable and essential part of the Army. Currently, women serve in 91 percent of all Army occupations and make up about 14 percent of the active Army. Women continue to have a crucial role in the War on Terrorism and their sacrifices in this noble effort underscore their dedication and willingness to share great sacrifices.

As we celebrate the second week of Women's History Month, we continue to recognize major accomplishments by women in the military and their contributions to military service. This week we celebrate some Women profiles in history:

Lt. Col. Mary A. Hallaren - The Women's Auxiliary Army Corps was established in May 1942. Mary Hallaren was a member of the first officer training class. Shortly after the first class graduated, U.S. field commanders were calling for a female battalion to help overseas. Hallaren became the battalion's commander. After arriving in England, Hallaren began touring the posts and facilities where her WAACs would be working. The commandant at the first post she visited welcomed the female soldiers, but not the regulations that accompanied them. In 1948, Hallaren helped work on the legislation to make the Women's Army Corps a permanent part of the regular Army and Reserves. The legislation finally passed, but with limitations.

Col. Oveta Culp Hobby - From 1942 to 1945, Oveta Culp Hobby served as Director of the Women's Army Corps, and as a result of the success she achieved at this position, was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal. Following World War II, Hobby returned to Houston to help her husband run the Houston Post, and a newly acquired television station. In 1953, President Dwight D. Eisenhower named her head of the Federal Security Agency and later that year she was elevated to a Cabinet position in the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare as its first Secretary, a position she held until 1955 when she resigned and returned to Houston to take care of her ailing husband.

Brig. Gen. Anna Mae Hays - Anna Mae Hays received a commission in the Army Nurse Corps in May 1942. Her overseas assignments included service in India, Korea, and Japan. On June 11, 1970, she became the first woman and the first nurse in American military history to attain general officer rank. During her tenure as Chief she continued to deal with the imposing challenges of recruitment and retention as the Vietnam War reached its height. She received the Distinguished Service Medal, Legion of Merit with Oak Leaf Cluster, and the Army Commendation Medal among her awards and commendations.

Brig. Gen. Elizabeth P. Hoisington - Elizabeth Hoisington advanced through the ranks of the WAC. She served as the Director of the Women's Army Corps from 1966 until 1971. Hoisington was the second woman and first WAC officer to be promoted to the rank of general officer in 1970. Hoisington was promoted on the same day as Hays, simply later in the day.

Col. Debra Lewis - Debra Lewis is a member of the first class with women to graduate from West Point. She also was the U.S. Military Academy's first woman captain of its highly successful intercollegiate equestrian team and was named the 1980 Academy Equestrian of the Year.

Capt. Linda Bray - In 1989 over 700 women went to Panama in support of Operation Just Cause. Capt. Bray led 30 soldiers of the 988th Military Police Company into combat to seize an enemy objective near Panama City. Her role ignited the debate over the role of women in the Army.

Lt. Gen. Claudia Kennedy - Claudia Kennedy was the first woman to achieve and hold the rank of Lieutenant General. Her promotion also led to her being named the Army Deputy Chief of Staff Intelligence.

Brig. Gen. Coral Pietsch - Coral Pietsch was the first-ever woman general officer in the Judge Advocate General Corps. Brigadier General Pietsch was also the first woman Asian-American general officer in the U.S. Army.

Sgt. Leigh Ann Hester - During an ambush of her convoy in Iraq, Sergeant Hester and her squad repelled at least 30 insurgents. The actions of Sergeant Hester and her comrades earned them great praise for their tactics and actions. Leigh Ann Hester became the first woman to earn the Silver Star Medal for exceptional valor since World War II.

VSO Voice

Here is a collection of recent accomplishments from the Veterans Service Offices throughout the state -

Since December 2006, the New Brunswick office has worked on contacting more than 150 veterans and their dependents for state medals.

Donald McNamara or the Monmouth office talked to the Home Care Association of New Jersey Social Work Committee about VA Services. He gave them information on the Improved Pension/Housebound/Aid and attendance programs for housebound vets and gave out Vet Guides and Journals.

From the Salem/Cumberland office comes a note that a POW from World War II had his claim for individual unemployability – which is when a veteran has a number of service-connected disabilities severe enough to prevent the veteran from pursuing meaningful employment – approved with retroactive compensation.

Guy Wiener retiring after 27 years with state

Guy Wiener, Veterans Service Officer at the Thorofare (Camden County) VSO office will be retiring April 1. After more than 27 years of service to the State of New Jersey, Guy will be handing the baton off to Bill McDonnell as the new chief VSO at the Southern N.J. office. Guy's leadership as VSO and his support of the state's veterans' community has been outstanding. His presence will be missed by all those who know him. We want to thank Guy for his service. His legacy will live on as part of the office he served with such dedication. Happy Retirement to Guy Wiener!

N.J. National Guard museums looking for members, volunteers

The National Guard Museum of New Jersey is looking to expand its membership. While the organization finds the hard-working staff, the dedicated volunteers and the support of the membership to be its strength, the Museum's Board of Trustees would like to make the organization stronger. Expanding the membership and increasing the volunteer corps are crucial components to the future goals the board has set for the museum.

As New Jersey's largest military museum, with three locations – in Sea Girt, Lawrenceville and the War Memorial Building in Trenton, along with a traveling mobile museum – its staff is known for their knowledge and expertise when someone has a question about New Jersey's military history.

Consider becoming a member today; membership applications are available on the museum's Web site: <http://www.nj.gov/military/museum/index.html>. Cost is just $10 a year. If interested in becoming a volunteer, contact the Sea Girt museum at 732-974-5966 or Lawrenceville at 609-530-6802.

Scholarship, Education News

Bill Extends Education Eligibility

A bill which extends eligibility for higher education tuition assistance to certain former members of New Jersey National Guard and increases the number of tuition-free credits available to National Guard members and their dependents was signed into law by Governor Jon. S. Corzine on Jan. 24.

The legislation would allow National Guard members who are called into active duty to utilize state tuition assistance credits after their enlistment expires.

Under the old law, active members of the New Jersey National Guard may receive up to 15 credits per semester tuition free from public institutions of higher education in the State. Similarly, the child or surviving spouse of a National Guard member killed in the performance of his duties may also receive this benefit.

This bill, A-2542, amended the law to extend eligibility for this higher education tuition benefit to members of the New Jersey National Guard whose use of the free tuition benefit is interrupted by a deployment to active duty. The change would permit these soldiers to receive their earned educational benefits should their enlistment expire, or should they be medically discharged, prior to completing their studies.

The new law will also increase the number of credits eligible for funding under this program from 15 to 16 per semester.

Scholarship information on BBB Military Line

There are many scholarships available to military family members. The Better Business Bureau (BBB) Military Line suggests that you not pay someone to find scholarships for you. Why? Because these researchers will use the same sources on the internet that you will use, so why pay them to do so? For suggestions on where to find scholarships for which you might be eligible, visit: www.enebuilder.net/cbbbmilitary/e_article-000694547.cfm?x=b8r7v3.
