Suicide prevention focus during September drill

From the desk of Lt. Gen. Clyde a. Vaughn, Director, Army National Guard

I am concerned for our Army National Guard Soldiers in crisis. Statistics show that almost 50 percent more ARNG Soldiers have committed suicide this year than at the same time last year. Every suicide is a preventable tragedy for Soldiers, family members and communities. We owe it to our Soldiers to ensure they receive the help they need with the compassion and respect they deserve.

I would like all ARNG units to focus on suicide training and awareness during September drill. National Suicide Prevention Week is Sept. 9-15 and World Suicide Prevention Day is Sept. 10. The Department of Defense theme for 2007 is "Suicide Prevention: Moving Forward with Education and Training."

The Army Center for Health Promotion and Preventive Medicine has developed suicide prevention training based on actual Army Suicide Event reports. The training includes vignettes and other interactive lessons. This training must be provided to Soldiers and leaders each September. All Soldiers should know how to get help for themselves, identify others in crises and refer others to the appropriate sources of help.

The term "suicide prevention" encompasses three areas: suicide prevention awareness, suicide intervention actions and "postvention" or grief and bereavement support after an attempted suicide or suicide.

Commanders must emphasize that seeking help is a sign of maturity and strength, not weakness.

Training documents and other suicide prevention resources can be found at <http://virtualarmory.com/wellbeing/suicide.aspx>.

Safety: Poison Ivy facts and fiction

Eastern poison ivy is commonly found growing along roadside thickets, stone walls, fences, railroads, clearcuts and orchards and thrives in both rural and urban areas throughout the eastern United States. Plants are poisonous at all times of the year and at all stages of growth. All parts of the plant, except the pollen, contain urushiol, a toxin that causes irritation and blistering of the skin. To cause injury, urushiol must contact the skin, either directly by touching the plant, or indirectly by touching things that have touched the skin such as clothing, tools, animals or firewood. Although some skin-applied products are marketed that claim to protect against or reduce the severity of dermatitis, the best prevention is to learn to recognize eastern poison ivy and always avoid it.

It is a woody, perennial plant that often grows as a vine, although it can grow as a self-supporting woody shrub, as a thin, trailing vine running along the ground, or as an aerial-rooted vine, growing on shrubs, trees, power poles and fences.

The leaves are arranged in groups of three and arranged alternately along the stem. The leaf edges can be lobed, smooth or toothed. The upper side of the leaf is usually fairly smooth and may be with a dull or glossy green in color. The lower surface is light green and slightly hairy.

Common myths associated with eastern poison ivy include:

Fiction: You can become immune to the effects of eastern poison ivy by eating the leaves.

Fact: Immunity is not conferred by eating any plant part; ingestion can cause serious gastric disturbance.

Fiction: The rash for eastern poison ivy is contagious; breaking the blisters will spread the rash.

Fact: Blisters only contain body fluids; they cannot spread the rash on the skin or to other people.

Fiction: You can develop a rash from eastern poison ivy simply by being near the plants.

Fact: Rash results only if urushiol touches the skin; airborne contact possible if burning/mowing plants.

Fiction: It is safe to handle dead plants or dormant plants during the wintertime.

Fact: Plants are poisonous year-round; urushiol stays active on surfaces and in dead plants for two years.

Fiction: If you don't develop a rash after touching eastern poison ivy once, then you must be immune.

Fact: first exposure seldom produces rash; sensitivity can change with age and repeated exposure.

New TSP account numbers being issued to make accounts more secure

From the office of J1-HRO

Be on the lookout in late fall for a mailing from the Thrift Savings Plan (TSP) with your new TSP account number. This account number will replace your Social Security number as your primary ID for your TSP account. You will need to use your account number when filling in TSP forms. You will use it with your TSP password when entering the Account Access section of the TSP Web site. You will use it with your TSP Personal Identification Number (PIN) to gain access to your account through the ThriftLine. If you send the TSP loan payments from your own funds, you will need to include your account number on the loan coupon that accompanies your check or provide it to your on-line bill-paying service if you have one. Substituting this randomly selected account number for your Social Security number will make your TSP transactions more secure. We at the TSP are doing all we can to protect the security of your personal information. The rest is up to you. Be careful about giving out your account number, and don't write it down where it can be seen by others who should not have access to it.

Enlisted Association of NGNJ slated for Oct. 5-6

The 34th annual conference of the Enlisted Association of the National Guard of New Jersey will be held at the Radisson Hotel, Valley Forge, Penn., Oct. 5-6.

Proceeds from this weekend event are spent directly on our membership. It is a nice feeling to know that for every 50/50 ticket and Chinese Auction ticket you buy helps fund the scholarship program, allows junior enlisted to attend the National Conference and supports legislative actions for benefits and so much more.

Friday night features "The American Game Show Challenge," which is a series of fun trivia contests and physical challenges.

Saturday is back to business for a bit, with a business meeting and elections for the executive counsel. The new Junior Enlisted Team is sponsoring the Chinese Auction. Local attractions are abundant; register for trips to Valley Forge and/or Longwood Gardens. Saturday Night wraps up our conference with our customary formal Military Ball.

There are several package plans to fit your particular needs. If you have any questions, call retired Sgt. Maj. Jerome Zebrowski at 609-214-6959 or e-mail at jcptfalc@aol.com or Co-Chairman retired Sgt. Maj.
