TAG POLICY LETTER 02-4

26 April 2002

ARMORY

1. Since the 1600s, the traditional home for America's military militia has been the Armory. The Armory has been the center of the community. It was the rallying point for the common defense of a town, a village, and a dedicated place for organizing and training the Militia and National Guard. It was also the heart of community, cultural, and social life.
2. These traditions continue today in the 54 States, Territories, and the District of Columbia. The New Jersey Army National Guard rallies, organizes, and trains in our Armories. We host civic and cultural events and sponsor educational and youth programs for the benefit of the local citizens in our Armories.
3. The term Armory will be used to identify the location where units or programs reside or occur. The use of the term Interactive Community Resource Center (ICRC) will be discontinued.
