Program Summary

This course is constructed specifically for law enforcement officers. The focus of training is to familiarize the new and seasoned investigator with the various disciplines of “detecting deception”. This is accomplished through learning to read non-verbal body language, neurolinguistics, and by being introduced to the newest form of conducting detailed analysis of verbal and written statements.

Who Should Attend?

Although this program is intended primarily for law enforcement officers (including those investigators handling civil or administrative investigations), others, including attorneys and judges have participated and have provided varying perspectives on the issues being addressed. Thus, this program is open to investigators and attorneys.

Who Is the Faculty?

Gary L. Aschenbach is a 25-year veteran of the Maryland State Police, retiring as a Detective Sergeant in 1998. Mr. Aschenbach has been an instructor for various state and federal agencies, including the National Security Agency, the Federal Law Enforcement Training Center, and Northwestern University's Traffic Institute. He is the founder of Law-Tech Consultants, LLC, which specializes in training, consulting and private investigations. For the past 17 years, Mr. Aschenbach has been an adjunct professor for St. Petersburg College in Florida, where he instructs for the
