BIOGRAPHY OF JOHN J. HUGHES AND THE NJ JUSTICE SYSTEM

The presentation will focus on the role of the governors of New Jersey with the Justices of the New Jersey Supreme Court with special emphasis on the creation of the modern New Jersey Supreme Court in the 1947 Constitution and the issues concerning Judicial Independence. The presentation will also focus on the power that Mayor Hague had over the Courts through his control over many governors and the very different approach of Governors Driscoll and Hughes. John B. Wefing, the Distinguished Professor of New Jersey Law & History, has recently authored a biography of Richard J. Hughes, the only person to serve as both Governor and Chief Justice of New Jersey. The book was chosen as a 2010 Honor Book by the New Jersey Council for the Humanities. In April of 2011, the Governor of New Jersey appointed Professor Wefing to the Governor's Council on Higher Education. Professor Wefing specializes in federal and state constitutional law with particular emphasis on criminal issues. (9:40 a.m. to 11:20 a.m.)

John B. Wefing has been a Professor of Law at Seton Hall University School of Law for the past 44 years. He has taught numerous courses including courses dealing with the New Jersey Constitution and the New Jersey Court System. He has written many law review articles. During his tenure at Seton Hall he has served as associate dean and acting dean. He has received many awards including the Young Lawyer of the Year from the New Jersey State Bar Association, the McQuade Medal presented for outstanding contributions to Seton Hall University and the Thomas More Medal for his devotion to the law and the Catholic Church. He was twice selected as "Professor of the Year" by the student body. In 2012, he was selected "Teacher of the Year" by the New Jersey Academic Studies Alliance. Professor Wefing has been appointed by governors of New Jersey to state commissions. He was inducted into the Hall of Fame of Mount Saint Dominic Academy for his work on its board. He is "of counsel" to the firm of Waters McPherson McNeill in Secaucus, N.J. He is a graduate of St. Peter's Prep and College and received his law degree from Catholic University. He holds a masters degree in law from New York University. He is married to the Honorable Dorothea O'C Wefing, who recently retired from her position, Presiding Judge for Administration of the Appellate Division, temporarily assigned to the New Jersey Supreme Court. They have three children, John, Paul and Dorry.

CONSUMER PRIVACY

Consumer privacy and data security are growing issues that affect our everyday lives: from the websites we visit online, to the apps we use to play games on our phones, to the customer loyalty card forms we fill out at the grocery store. This course will begin with the basic statutory framework that State enforcers rely on to protect the privacy and data security of consumers. We will then discuss specific cases and situations where State and Federal enforcers have applied privacy and data security laws. Finally, we will look at mobile applications that we use on an everyday basis to examine the types of information our apps are collecting about us and where that information is going. (1:40 p.m. to 2:40 p.m.)

Jah-Juin "Jared" Ho is a Deputy Attorney General with the Consumer Fraud Prosecution Section in the Affirmative Civil Enforcement practice group. Jared represents the Division of Consumer Affairs on privacy and data security matters. Last year, Jared brought the first action by any State Attorneys' General Office against a mobile application developer for violations of the Children's Online Privacy Protection Act. In addition to his duties as Deputy Attorney General, Jared is a visiting fellow at Princeton University's Center for Information Technology Policy. As a fellow Jared researches legal issues on privacy and data security.

HOT TOPICS IN LEGAL ETHICS FOR HEALTH CARE ATTORNEYS

This program will explore the distinct but overlapping demands of ethics, morality, and the law as well as some of the key responsibilities of lawyers involved in the health law arena. Attorney advice generally is thought of as immune from discovery. But some protection has eroded in recent years. While communications between a corporate client and outside litigation counsel are cloaked with a presumption of privilege, communications between in-house counsel and corporate clients are not. In addition, some courts have applied the crime-fraud exception to the attorney-client privilege rather broadly. The government's increased reliance on the responsible corporate officer doctrine in enforcement prosecutions also challenges attorneys to maintain their duty of loyalty to their clients when they could face criminal charges for their client's wrongdoing. The session also will explore how the ethical rules apply in emerging practice and care delivery contexts. Corresponding with expert witnesses using cloud computing and smart phones, collaborating with doctors and other professionals in medical-legal partnerships, medical homes, and accountable care organizations, and accepting expert credentials in LinkedIn, for example, all implicate the ethical rules that govern health care attorneys. (1:40 p.m. to 2:40 p.m.)

Tara Adams Ragone joined the Center for Health & Pharmaceutical Law & Policy at Seton Hall University School of Law as a Research Fellow and Lecturer in Law in 2011. Her research and writing for the Center focus on implementation of health care reform, accountable care organizations, health care access, prescription drug abuse, and issues related to the representation of health care professionals. Ms. Ragone also developed and teaches a health law skills course that explores substantive law and skills specific to three common health law practice settings. She also advises the health law moot court team and regularly contributes to Seton Hall Law's Health Reform Watch blog. Ms. Ragone came to Seton Hall Law from the State of New Jersey, Office of the Attorney General, Division of Law, where she served as Deputy Attorney General in the Professional Boards Prosecution Section. She primarily prosecuted licensing actions before the State Board of Medical Examiners and the Office of Administrative Law and represented the State in federal civil rights actions brought by licensees. Ms. Ragone also twice appeared before the Supreme Court of New Jersey in a case of first impression involving a commercial speech challenge to the Court's Rule of Professional Conduct governing attorney firm names. Ms. Ragone received her B.A. in Government and Philosophy, summa cum laude, from the College of William and Mary, where she was a member of Phi Beta Kappa. After college, she worked on a variety of domestic policy issues, including campaign finance reform, as a research assistant and verifier at the Brookings Institution in Washington, D.C. Ms. Ragone graduated magna cum laude from New York University School of Law in 2001, where she was a Root-Tilden-Kern Public Service Scholar, was elected to the Order of the Coif, and served as Senior Articles Editor for the New York University Annual Survey of American Law. At graduation, she received the Vanderbilt Medal and the Samuel A. Levy Memorial Award. Before joining the New Jersey Attorney General's Office, Ms. Ragone served as a law clerk to the Honorable Allyne R. Ross of the U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of New York and the Honorable Robert A. Katzmann of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit.

HOW TO BE PROFESSIONAL WHEN DEALING WITH YOUR ADVERSARY

The demands of litigation are seemingly never ending. Despite the pressures of these demands attorneys are both ethically and professionally obligated to treat other members of the Bar with whom they deal with courtesy and respect. This presentation will focus on what is expected of attorneys in terms of civility when dealing with their peers and will discuss strategies for doing so in those difficult situations where an adversary may not be acting in a confrontational or inappropriate manner. (9:40 a.m. to 11:20 a.m.)

DAG Jim Harris has served as a Deputy Attorney General in the New Jersey Department of Law and Public Safety for more than 25 years. During that time, he has worked in criminal justice, juvenile justice, and civil law. DAG Harris is currently Chief of the DYFS South section. In the past, he has litigated cases for clients that include the State Police, the New Jersey Judiciary, the Department of Corrections, the Division of Youth and Family Services and the Bureau of Parole. He has had numerous jury and non-jury trials involving civil rights, employment discrimination, whistle blowers, child abuse and parental termination. He has successfully argued numerous cases before the New Jersey Supreme Court and the Third Circuit Court of Appeals. He is a graduate of Rutgers University of Law, Camden, where he was Managing Editor of the Law Journal. DAG Harris also has an LL.M from Columbia School of Law in New York City.

Debra Marcus received her B.S. from Boston University, College of Communication, in 1985. She received her J.D. from Benjamin N. Cardozo School of Law in 1988, where she served on the Moot Court Board and was a Legal Writing Teaching Assistant. Ms. Marcus is admitted to practice in New Jersey and the United States District Courts for the District of New Jersey. She is a member of the New Jersey State Bar Association and the Union County Bar Association and is a graduate of the Richard J. Hughes Inn of Court. Ms. Marcus has had significant litigation and trial experience in insurance defense. Her practice currently has an emphasis in representing dental professionals in the defense of malpractice claims and investigations before the State Board of Dentistry. In the beginning of her career practicing law in New Jersey, Ms. Marcus defended doctors and nurses employed by UMDNJ as well as insurance companies involved in environmental litigation. She initially worked with Stephen Schechner representing nurses, doctors, dentists and hospitals as well as defending drivers of commercial vehicles. Ms. Marcus was Senior Trial Attorney for house counsel of CGU insurance company where she defended claims involving construction site accidents, premises liability, wrongful death claims and liquor liability. More recently she was a Senior Associate in the New Jersey office of a national law firm where she concentrated in insurance defense and coverage litigation including flood, mold, fire loss, toxic tort, asbestos and premises liability. Ms. Marcus rejoined Stephen Schechner to continue representing health care practitioners in all facets of their practice needs including licensing matters, defense of malpractice claims and purchase and sales of practices.

RECENT DEVELOPMENTS IN E-DISCOVERY

This is a presentation by the Division of Law's E-Discovery Task Force. This presentation will discuss electronic obligations in discovery, the use of various e-discovery tools and techniques to help manage your review and how to practically approach electronic information. The goal is to highlight some basic concepts and terminology so you know some basic questions to ask and who in the office can potentially help you. Offensive and defensive discovery techniques are changing with the prevalence of electronic data in our lives. Desktops, laptops, networks, thumb drives, Blackberries, tablets, smart phones, text messages, entertainment systems, photo copiers, Twitter, Facebook, social media, cloud computing and digital cameras are just a few sources of information that may or may not be relevant and responsive to ongoing litigation. As important as knowing where to look to request this information in discovery is, knowing how to ask your client for information responsive to discovery requests is also crucial. E-discovery has sometimes resulted in cases being burdened with massive amounts of potentially relevant information - much of which has not historically made its way for you the deputy to review or produce. SCHOOL BULLYING AS A VIOLATION OF THE LAW AGAINST DISCRIMINATION

This presentation will discuss how the courts have addressed the issue of school bullying as unlawful discrimination, contrasting the approaches taken by Federal and State courts. There will be a particular focus on the NJ Supreme Court case of LW v. Toms River BOE, and the elements of a cause of action in a bullying case. This presentation will also touch upon the Anti-Bullying Bill of Rights, and how it impacts claims under the Law Against Discrimination. (1:40 p.m. to 2:40 p.m.)

James Michael currently serves as a Deputy Attorney General and Section Chief of the Civil Rights section of the Division of Law, where he supervises the prosecution of discrimination complaints related to employment, public accommodations and housing on behalf of the Division of Civil Rights. Jim has also worked on a series of initiatives aimed at improving access for people with disabilities in places of public accommodation, including schools, shopping malls, hospitals and polling places. He handled the litigation and appeals in L.W. v. Toms River Regional Schools Board of Education, the first case to address the issue of peer student harassment under the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination. In addition to his time in the Civil Rights section, Jim worked in the Affirmative Litigation section, focusing on a range of issues, such as mortgage fraud, pharmaceutical marketing and abusive debt collection practices. Prior to joining the Division of Law, Jim served as a Deputy Attorney General and Governor's Fellow with the Division of Gaming Enforcement. Jim is a graduate of Rutgers Law School in Camden, New Jersey and Franklin and Marshall College. He also holds a Masters Degree in Public Policy from the Eagleton Institute of Politics at Rutgers.
