Program Summary

The jury address is the most important moment in any litigator's career. The jury address marks the culmination of months or years of preparation, and it is the lawyer's best chance to win, or lose, the case. In this presentation, Director Honig draws on his own experience -- including conducting 15 jury trials to verdict in cases involving racketeering, murder, public corruption, human trafficking, robbery, fraud, and other charges -- to teach on effective jury presentation methods and tactics. Among other things, Director Honig stresses the importance of preparation, of being clear and credible, and of finding your own voice in the courtroom.

Who Should Attend?
