Program Summary

Over the past year, the Supreme Court and the Appellate Division issued a remarkably large number of important OPRA opinions, resulting in significant changes to many areas of OPRA law. These cases cover a wide variety of OPRA topics, including access to various law enforcement records, how to handle requests for electronic records, confidentiality of student records, privacy issues, the imposition of penalties on officials, draft public meeting minutes and attorney fee awards. This presentation will discuss the major OPRA cases decided in 2017-18 and provide insight into their legal and practical impact.

Who Should Attend?

This presentation will be of special interest to agency records custodians, but is open to all government attorneys, space allowing.

Who Is the Faculty?

Lewis Scheindlin worked for over 30 years at the Division of Law, serving in a number of capacities, including Chief of the Education, Labor and Commerce Section, Assistant Attorney General for Agency Advice and Assistant Attorney General for Appeals. In addition, beginning with the enactment of OPRA in 2001 until his retirement from State service at the end of 2014, he oversaw all OPRA legal advice and litigation for all State agencies. He counseled record custodians and other officials in OPRA matters on a daily basis and worked with the Government Records Council in establishing its policies and procedures. In addition to supervising the State's OPRA litigation, he directly handled many significant OPRA cases in the Supreme Court, Appellate Division and trial courts. Lew also frequently presented training programs on OPRA matters for the Attorney General's Advocacy Institute.

Lew currently provides OPRA consulting and training to public bodies, and publishes the New Jersey OPRA Law Reporter. He is also an Adjunct Professor of Business Law at The College of New Jersey. Lew is a graduate of Rutgers Law School and the Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania.
