1. Would you please advise as to the categories included in the RFQ Application for Special Counsel for Medical Malpractice Litigation?

Please see the RFQ and exhibits thereto.

2. For questions with text boxes, is there a character limit/size limit to those responses?

No.

3. Will there be an opportunity at the end of the application process to review all answers for final revision before submission and save a final copy of the response for our records?

Draft responses may be saved and/or emailed to the drafter at any point, and applicants may navigate forward and backward through the online form to edit various parts of their applications at any point in time prior to submission.

4. D. Affirmative Action Supplement – does the RFQ require applying for a new Certificate of Employee Information Report or is it sufficient to provide a current certificate?

Applicants who possess currently valid certificates need not apply for a new one. However, all applicants with existing certificates are expected to renew such certificates at the appropriate time.
