Excerpt from a Deceptive Article Appearing on PrescribeResponsibly.com:

Conclusion To date, no agents have fully replaced opioid analgesics for the treatment of moderate to severe pain. While many patients and physicians have concerns about the use of opioid analgesics, which often prevent their use, it would appear that, with appropriate dosing and titration, they can be effective and