Introduction

The New Jersey Victims of Crime Compensation Office assists innocent individuals whose lives have been tragically altered as a result of victimization from violent crimes by providing compensation for some expenses they suffer as a result of the crime. In carrying out its mission, the VCCO is mindful of the special needs of those victimized by crime and their right to be treated with fairness, compassion and respect. The VCCO was moved from the Department of Treasury to the Department of Law and Public Safety in July 2008. As of February 5, 2009, the Attorney General appointed Marsetta Lee as the new Director of the VCCO.

The VCCO was established by the Criminal Injury Compensation Act of 1971 to help victims recover from the effects of violent crimes by providing financial assistance to victims, their families, and victim service providers to help alleviate the economic and emotional burdens of victimization. Going forward, the VCCO will continue to look for more efficient and effective ways to compassionately serve New Jersey crime victims. Plans include the use of new technology and organizational streamlining to provide greater service to those on the road to recovery. We have developed a training program for staff that provides extensive training on all aspects of victim services and the legal system, including domestic violence, cultural competence, prosecution of cases, family court and compassion fatigue.

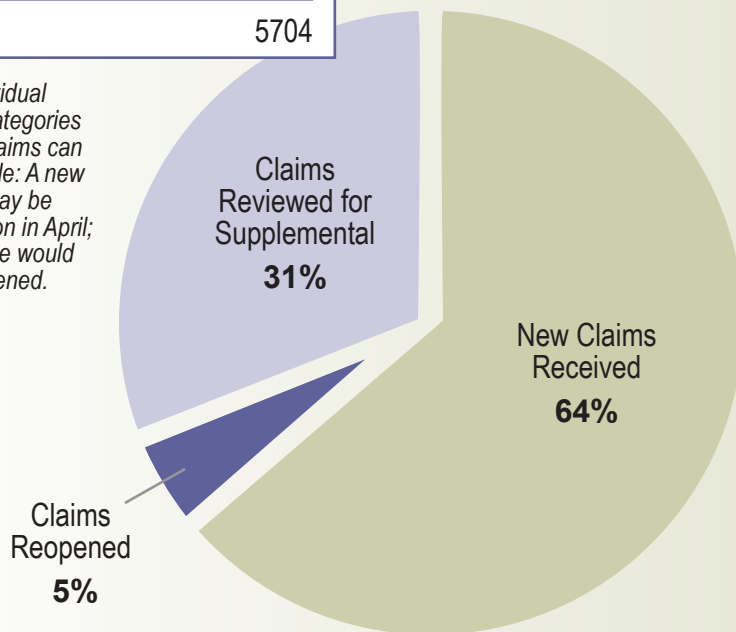

We are also excited about our initiative to revive outreach and training programs. Our goal is to educate and re-educate those on the front line such as first responders to victims, including local police, EMT's, SANE staff and hospital personnel. Equally important is the need to re-familiarize the staff in each county prosecutor's office, judges, service providers, youth groups, the faith-based community and the public at large with the VCCO statutes, rules and policies.

Finally, we are pleased to present our 2009 Annual Report which provides an overview of the Office's activities for the past fiscal year July 2008 to June 2009. This report captures the funding sources and the types of expenditures incurred. The claim data not only show the amounts that were paid, but the specific services rendered to the victims. Additional information shows the demographics of the victims served, including age, race and gender. Various charts and graphs illustrate the steps followed by the various units in processing the claims. More importantly, the VCCO's incredible staff is listed, and it is due to their dedication and commitment that the Office has and will continue to provide services to thousands of victims of crime on an annual basis.

Claims Processing

VCCO

Intake Phase:

Claims are processed in the chronological order in which they are received by the Office. Upon receipt of an application, the claim is opened, given a claim number, an acknowledgment of receipt is sent to the applicant, and if needed, additional information is requested. All requests for emergency assistance are reviewed immediately.

Bill Review:

Bills are screened for the proper name and address, federal tax I.D. number, CPT (Current Procedural Terminology) codes & date of service. Any missing information and collection notices are returned to the provider/claimant with a letter requesting an itemized bill, where applicable. Once all the information is gathered, bills are input into the Claims Processing System. The bills are then forwarded to the appropriate unit for processing of the claim.

Eligibility Phase:

After a police report is received, the assigned investigator will review all the circumstances surrounding the incident, by conversing with police and prosecutorial personnel and securing related information from the courts. The investigator will make a recommendation to accept the claim as eligible for compensation or to deny compensation because there has been a failure to comply with the eligibility criteria.

Compensation Phase:

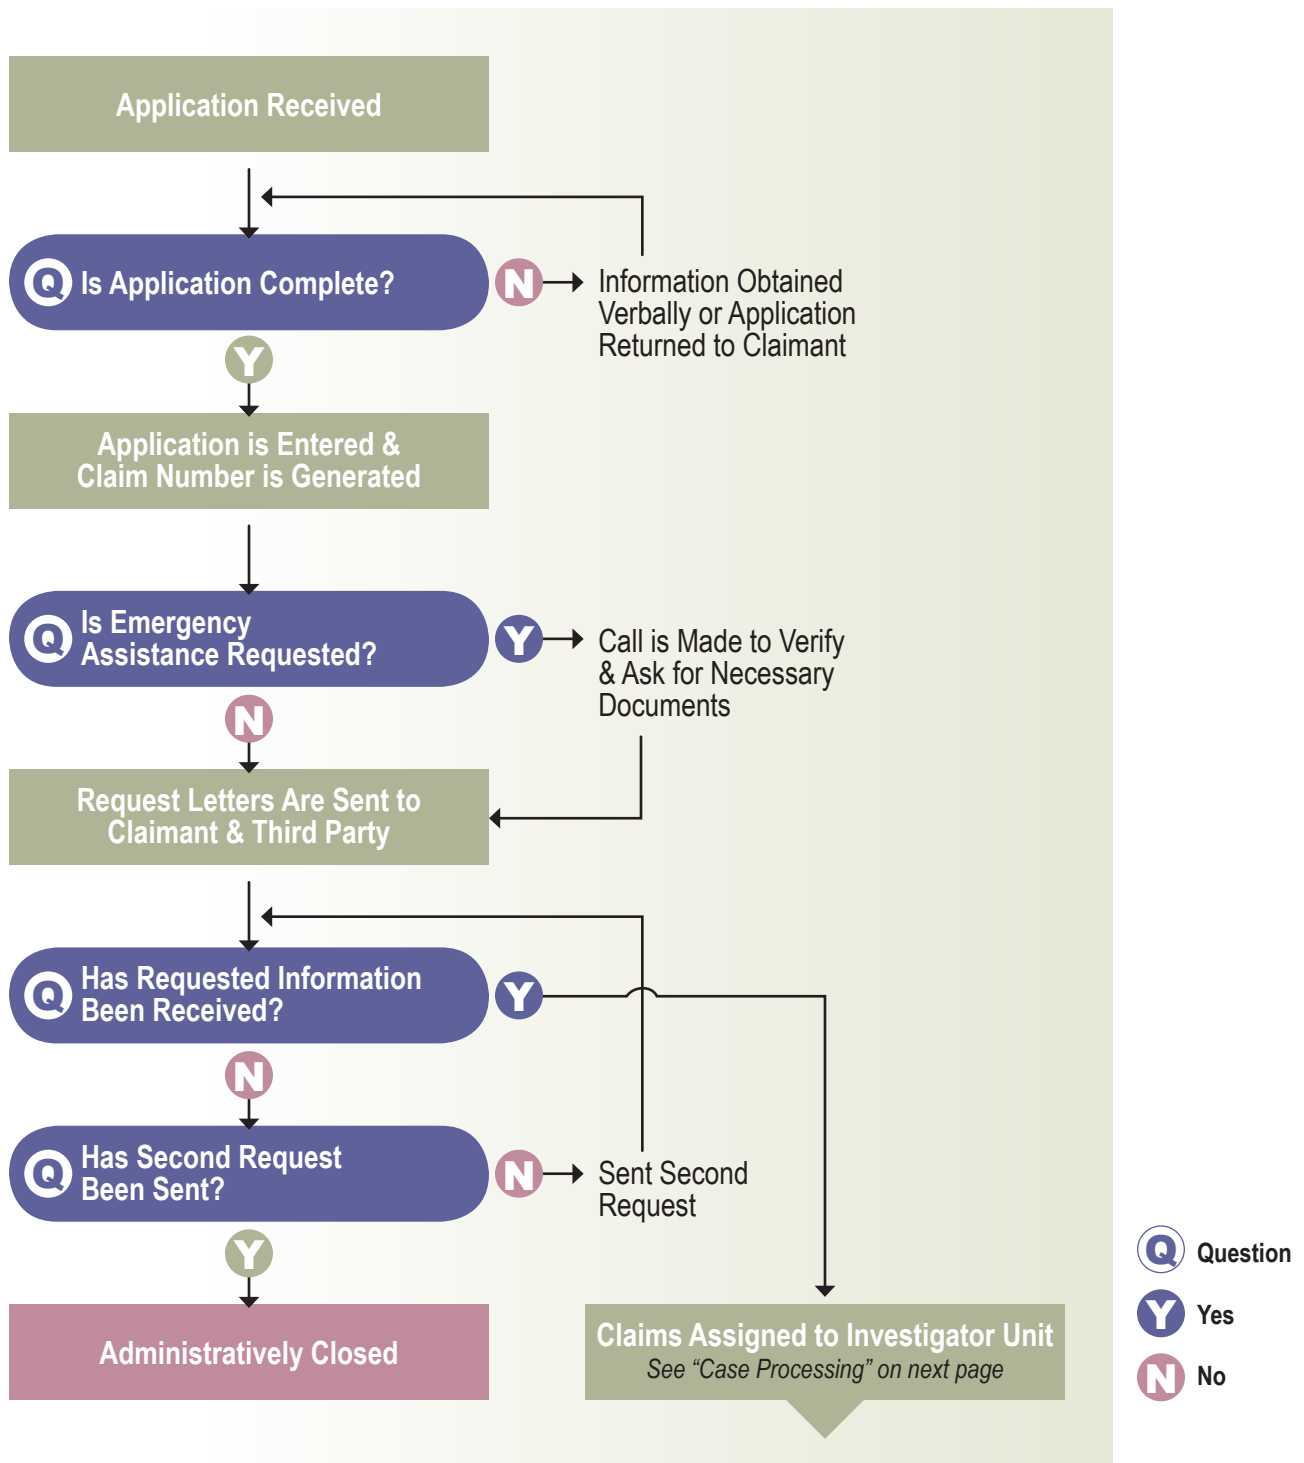

Once determined eligible for compensation, the claim enters the compensation phase. The investigator will verify losses by communicating directly with providers of medical services, securing insurance benefit statements, and gathering loss of earnings and disability payment information.

Payment Processing:

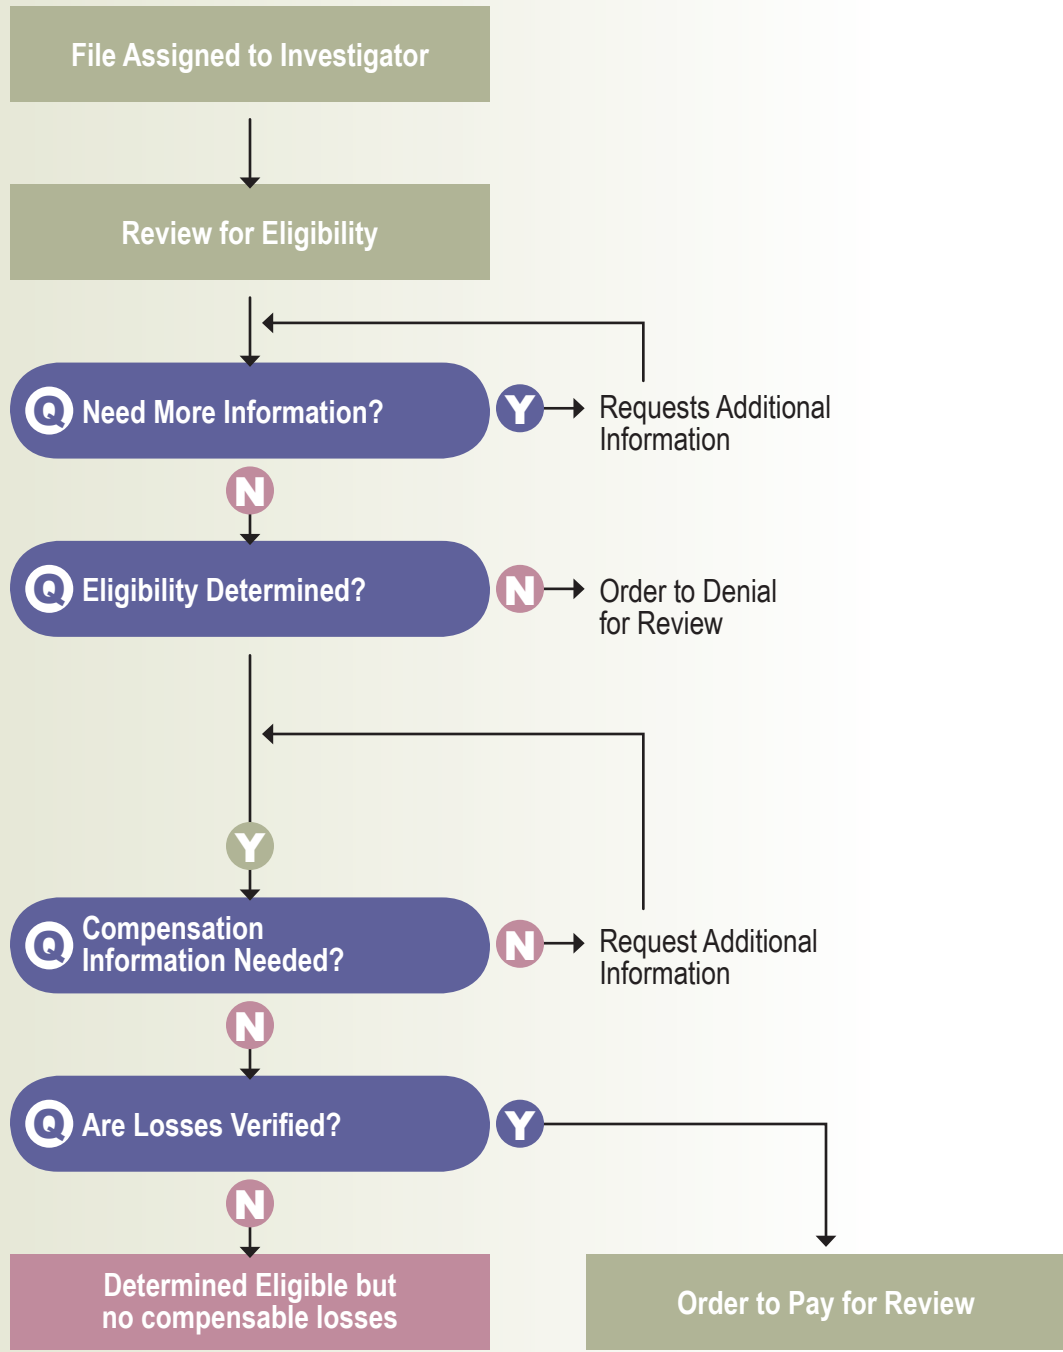

After the Order of Payment is written and approved the case is received in Accounting. The voucher is reconciled to the order and mailed to the provider. Upon receipt of a signed voucher, the Accounting Unit processes the payment and submit to OAG administration for approval in New Jersey Comprehensive Financial System.

Claimants do not receive a voucher; their payments are processed the day after the Order is signed.

Eligibility

Eligibility Criteria

- An application for compensation may be filed by (1) the victim; (2) a dependent of a deceased victim; (3) an authorized person acting on behalf of the victim; or (4) any other person who has demonstrated an eligible expense for which they have become responsible for due to the victimization.
- The claim must be filed within two years of the crime, but may be considered after two years if the VCCO determines that good cause existed for the delayed filing.
- The victim suffered bodily injury or death as a result of the criminal actions of another or the victim needs mental health counseling because of emotional trauma resulting from a violent crime.
- The crime must be reported to the police within three months after it occurs, but may be considered if reported to the police after three months if the VCCO determines that good cause existed for the delay.

- The claimant was not the offender or an accomplice of the offender. An award may not be made to another person if the award would unjustly benefit the offender or accomplice.
- The victim must be an "innocent victim" of a crime, which means that the VCCO must consider whether the victim's conduct contributed to the injuries suffered.

Transition Notes

In 2008, the VCCO was transferred to the Department of Law and Public Safety, which assigned numerous professional staff, including attorneys, managers and accountants, to the VCCO to review its policies and procedures. The transition team identified several areas where the VCCO's operations required improvement to ensure that the Office was operating effectively and in full compliance with governing statutes and regulations. These areas included compliance with filing deadlines, restrictions on the crimes eligible for VCCO compensation, limitations on the amount and duration of VCCO compensation, and mandates on obtaining police reports and required documentation to support VCCO compensation.

To address these deficiencies, the VCCO has taken a series of steps. The VCCO has implemented new standard operating procedures to ensure staff clearly understands governing legal mandates; imposed internal controls to ensure uniform implementation of policy; instituted a claims-review process consisting of at least three levels of review; and provided comprehensive training to all staff.

In addition to addressing these deficiencies in VCCO's operations, the VCCO is also implementing a series of new initiatives, which include an outreach program in which VCCO investigators will directly engage under-served communities; an Education Initiative in which the VCCO will train and re-educate providers, law enforcement and other constituents on the rules, policies, and procedures governing VCCO compensation; and even more in-depth staff training involving, among other areas, instruction on victim sensitivity; domestic violence; bullying and bias crime; and engagement with family, municipal and criminal courts.
