December 29, 2021

The Honorable Philip D. Murphy
Governor, State of New Jersey
New Jersey State House
125 W. State St., Trenton, NJ 08608

Dear Governor Murphy:

I am pleased to submit to you the New Jersey State Parole Board FY 2021 Annual Report. Last year, I conveyed to you that the agency was undergoing a defining period of change—along with our state, nation, and world. This year, I report that while the coronavirus pandemic continues to impact our lives, the State Parole Board has successfully accomplished a great deal.

Navigating an uncharted and difficult landscape has been far from easy. In spite of that, the more than 600 employees of the State Parole Board have met and exceeded the agency's goals during such a time of crisis and uncertainty. The State Parole Board remains committed to our multiple missions—promoting public safety and fostering the successful rehabilitation of offenders through the implementation of policies that result in effective parole case management. We recognize that fewer individuals who remain incarcerated translates into an increase in our supervision caseloads and we remain fully prepared to meet these challenges.

We worked diligently to effectuate changes following the implementation of Executive Order 124 and legislation regarding the provision of "Public Health Emergency" credits (N.J.S.A. 30:4-123.100 and N.J.S.A. 30:4-123.55f). The State Parole Board also continues to adopt and adhere to the "Earn Your Way Out" legislation. Additionally, the Division of Parole proactively notifies those under parole supervision about the newly established law that grants them the opportunity to vote in federal, state, and local elections.

The State Parole Board continues to partner with law enforcement departments as well as other relevant agencies in an effort to help ensure public safety. We also continue working to maximize the use of technology in the implementation of nationally recognized best practices in the area of community supervision. As the State Parole Board makes a conscious effort to balance public safety, legal mandates, and public health expeditiously and faithfully, we are ready to embrace new challenges that may face us up ahead.

Respectfully submitted,

Samuel J. Plumeri, Jr., Chairman
New Jersey State Parole Board

MISSION

The New Jersey State Parole Board is committed to promoting public safety and fostering the rehabilitation of offenders by implementing policies that result in effective parole case management.

VISION

To improve the safety of the public and the quality of life in New Jersey by administering an innovative parole system that addresses the needs of the community, victims, and offenders through a responsible decision-making process that provides every available opportunity for successful offender reintegration.

CHAIRMAN'S MESSAGE

The New Jersey State Parole Board promotes and advances public safety measures throughout the State of New Jersey utilizing innovative, proven, and effective methods to help offenders achieve successful, sustainable community reintegration into society. As an agency, we have had to acclimate to the ever-changing landscape that has been forever altered by the coronavirus pandemic.

The more than 600 employees of the State Parole Board remain committed to helping reduce the state's recidivism rate while addressing the needs of crime victims. The members of the Parole Board review several thousand cases per year and are often tasked with making difficult decisions. These determinations can be impactful for not only the offender, but for victims of crime, families, and the general public in communities throughout New Jersey.

Over the past fiscal year, the State Parole Board has quickly adapted—learning how to handle the adjustment to our operations while meeting our mission. The State Parole Board has implemented changes following the enactment of the “Earn Your Way Out Act,” including the establishment of an administrative parole release process and awarding of parole compliance credits. We have learned a great deal more than we ever thought possible, and we are proactively infusing this information to improve our standards, goals, and outcomes. Criminal Justice in New Jersey continues to change and we will adapt as needed.

The one constant throughout this changeable environment that I am very proud of is the members of the New Jersey State Parole Board who are committed to excellence. From parole counselor to parole officer, hearing officer to board member, and every other position in between—our employees collectively define the professionalism, courage, and determination that make up the agency's DNA.

We are also proud of our low recidivism rate and cognizant that fewer individuals who remain incarcerated will translate into substantial increased supervision caseloads. I feel confident in saying that we are ready to embrace the many challenges and opportunities ahead.

Sincerely,

New Jersey State Parole Board

DIVISION OF RELEASE

The New Jersey Parole Act of 1979 (N.J.S.A. 30:4-123.45, et seq.) places with the State Parole Board the authority and responsibility of deciding which state and county inmates shall be granted release on parole and the conditions of parole that will be imposed.

The Division of Release has offices in each state correctional facility and serves to evaluate and assess incarcerated adult offenders and determine their eligibility and appropriateness for parole release. The Division prepares each case for consideration for the members of the Board by securing professional reports concerning an inmate's criminal history, including his/her current offense; their social, physical, educational, psychological progress to date; and their objective social and psychological risk and needs assessment.

An assigned hearing officer conducts the initial parole consideration hearing and a Board Panel renders the final decision.

DIVISION OF RELEASE

Victim Input

The Victim Input Unit is committed to the privacy, safety, and well-being of crime victims and encourages their participation within the parole release process.

Effective July 11, 1984, county prosecutor offices must notify the victim of a first or second degree crime, or the nearest relative of a murder/manslaughter victim, that they have the right to provide information to the State Parole Board before an offender's parole consideration. This written notification includes the completion of a registration form, which the victim can use to express their interest to the State Parole Board. Regardless of the degree of the crime, all victims have the opportunity to participate in the parole process through the Victim Input Unit.

When a victim registers with the Victim Input Unit, parole board staff will confirm the registration and monitor the offender's parole eligibility. Prior to the time an offender becomes eligible for parole consideration, the victim will be contacted and invited to either submit a written statement, a videotaped statement, or appear in person to provide a statement to the two-member Board Panel. Most victim input hearings take place at the State Parole Board's Central Office located in Trenton, but in certain situations - such as if the victim is physically disabled - the hearing may be conducted elsewhere, or via video teleconference.

LEGAL SUPPORT UNIT

The Legal Support Unit ensures that all State Parole Board actions are compliant with state statutes and that board members and agency staff function in accordance with statutory provisions and administrative regulations.

The Legal Support Unit also assists the State Parole Board by establishing and implementing policies; the development and promulgation of amendments to the agency's administrative code; pursuit of clarification of sentencing matters that have an impact on the parole board's functions; the review and processing of complex cases; the review of the imposition of special conditions in the cases of certain offenders; the presentation of said cases to board members for review; and providing assistance to counsel assigned by the Department of Law and Public Safety - Division of Law to represent the State Parole Board in legal matters.

Director Dina Rogers, Esq. (center) discusses a case with staff members of the Legal Support Unit.

Appeals

An offender may appeal any decision by a State Parole Board panel member, hearing officer, or division of the agency. The Legal Support Unit processes administrative appeals and ensures that the appeal submitted by an offender is presented to and reviewed by a Board panel or the full Board.

REVOCAATION HEARING UNIT

The Revocation Hearing Unit is responsible for conducting probable cause and final parole revocation hearings to determine if an offender has violated a condition of their supervision status.

The Revocation Hearing Unit hearing officers make formal findings of fact regarding whether a violation of a condition of supervision has occurred, and make recommendations to members of the Parole Board. These recommendations include whether or not an offender should have their supervision status revoked and be returned to prison, or if the conditions of their supervision should be modified.

DIVISION OF PAROLE

The Division of Parole is one of the largest law enforcement agencies in the State of New Jersey. The community supervision of offenders is the responsibility of more than 400 sworn officers and commanders. These highly trained professionals monitor the whereabouts of offenders and hold them accountable to the conditions of their supervision, work closely with family members, employers, and treatment providers in order to encourage long-term positive behavioral change, help ensure public safety, and help reduce the state's recidivism rate.

Parole officers are visible within the community and collaborate with a multitude of local, state, and federal law enforcement agencies and participate in a variety of partnerships throughout the state. Parole Officers serve as members on the FBI Joint Terrorism Task Force and/or the U.S. Marshals Service New York/New Jersey Regional Fugitive Task Force. All parole officers assist with state and local police agencies as needed. At the end of FY 2021, there were 15,590 offenders supervised by the Division of Parole. These included:

- * Offenders released at the discretion of the State Parole Board;*
- * Court-ordered offenders released to serve mandatory supervision under the “No Early Release Act;”*
- * Sex offenders sentenced to lifetime supervision;*
- * Court ordered conditional discharge cases released from the Special Treatment Unit; and*
- * Tier III sex offenders subject to mandatory Global Positioning System (GPS) monitoring.*

The State Parole Board utilizes a variety of evidence-based supervision strategies in an effort to meet the diverse needs of parolees. After the offender completes the appropriate risk/needs assessments, the parole officer develops a Case Plan Agreement (CPA) with each offender to set short and long-term goals, which are divided into manageable tasks. Areas identified in the CPA address education, employment, substance abuse problems, mental health, housing/social assistance, and social adjustment. Offenders' supervision levels and service needs are based on their risk needs.

The Division of Parole is managed by a command staff consisting of a Director, Captains, Lieutenants, and Sergeants. Newly appointed supervisors participate in training programs designed to enhance their leadership competencies, provide them with the skills necessary to be effective managers, and how to properly lead a diverse workforce. These supervisors ensure that the mission of the State Parole Board is achieved with a high degree of professionalism.

DIVISION OF PAROLE

The Division of Parole has 18 operational units statewide, 10 of which are District Parole Offices. The remaining operational units include: the Community Programs Supervision Unit, the Electronic Monitoring Unit, the Office of Interstate Services, the Special Operations Group, the Community Supervision for Life Unit, the Office of Administrative Services, the Law Enforcement Training and Recruitment Unit. The Law Enforcement Training and Recruitment Unit oversees a formal and coordinated law enforcement training program to maintain skills in all areas of required expertise.

Parole Officer Marquis Barron speaks with parole officer recruits.

The Investigation Management Office (IMO), under the direction of the Office of Administrative Services, is responsible for processing new criminal charges filed by the State Parole Board's law enforcement staff. The processing includes maintaining and forwarding as discovery the official investigation reports. In addition to processing new charges, IMO handles the evidence control functions for any criminal related evidence. This includes, but is not limited to, the transport of evidence to the New Jersey State Police Laboratory and conducting forensic searches of computers and other electronic data storage/transmittal devices. Lastly, IMO staff act as the coordinators of all fingerprint livescan machines.

The State Parole Board is an accredited police agency through the New Jersey State Association of Chiefs of Police (NJSACOP) Law Enforcement Accreditation Program (LEAP). During Fiscal Year 2021, the State Parole Board was granted re-accreditation.

According to the NJSACOP: Accreditation is a progress and time-proven method of assisting law enforcement agencies to calculate and improve their overall performance. Accredited status represents a significant professional achievement. Accreditation acknowledges the implementation of policies and procedures that are conceptually sound and operationally effective.

DIVISION OF PAROLE

Parole Officer Recruit Training

At the end of 2011, the State Parole Board Executive Staff made the decision to initiate a new comprehensive hiring process for all new parole officer recruits. A major factor in this new process was to have all future recruit classes attend the New Jersey Division of Criminal Justice (DCJ) Training Academy's Basic Course for Investigators in Sea Girt.

The DCJ Training Academy is a New Jersey Police Training Commission certified academy that conducts a wide-range of in-service and pre-service training programs for the state's law enforcement and criminal justice communities, including state and county investigators, deputy attorney generals, assistant prosecutors, municipal and county police, police executives, arson investigators, parole, and corrections personnel.

The basic course for investigators covers general topics such as investigative procedures, apprehension, and the prosecution of criminals. Firearms training and physical conditioning are also conducted during the rigorous 20-week training academy course.

The State Parole Board is unique in that all applicants for the Parole Officer Recruit position must possess a four-year college degree.

During FY 2021, 41 parole recruits graduated from academy classes, and four former law enforcement officers were also hired by the agency.

DIVISION OF COMMUNITY PROGRAMS

The Division of Community Programs oversees State Parole Board contracted community partners who, under existing contract agreements, provide residential and non-residential transitional rehabilitative programs to individuals under supervision. These programs include:

- * Stages to Enhance Parolee Success (STEPS) Program
- * Reentry Substance Abuse Program (RESAP)
- * Community Resource Center (CRC) Program
- * Mutual Agreement Program (MAP)
- * Program for Returning Offenders with Mental Illness Safely and Effective (PROMISE)
- * Parolee Aftercare and Transitional Housing (PATH) Program.

These programs are designed to promote public safety, reduce recidivism, and support the sustainable reintegration of parolees into society.

Parolee Volunteer Initiative

Regardless of current economic conditions, seeking entry into the employment marketplace can be a daunting task for individuals with a criminal background. Recognizing these realities, in 2011, the New Jersey State Parole Board established the Parolee Volunteer Initiative. Under this program, State Parole Board supervised individuals volunteer their time in a variety of pro-social activities within their communities.

Upon the successful completion of volunteer activities, a certificate is provided to each volunteer. Many supervised individuals have advised that verifying the completion of a volunteer services program to a prospective employer serves as evidence of pro-social engagement. As a result, this program leads to the securing of gainful employment for the individual. Over 1,300 offenders have successfully volunteered their time to worthwhile endeavors.

DIVISION OF COMMUNITY PROGRAMS

Office of Gender Responsive Services

The New Jersey State Parole Board has a longstanding commitment to meet the unique needs of the female offender population. Initiatives, programs, and services exist within the Division of Community Programs to assist females under State Parole Board supervision. Staff follow new and innovative trends that help develop policies and programs that may maximize the success of women reentering the community. In order to support these initiatives, and continue to respond to the needs of the growing LGBTQ+ justice-involved population, the New Jersey State Parole Board created the Office of Gender Responsive Services within the Division of Community Programs.

This office develops and conducts ongoing training for staff and decision-makers to ensure that all people are treated with dignity, respect, in accordance with the full protections of the law. The Office of Gender Responsive Services identifies community resources to address the unique needs and challenges experienced by supervised women and the LGBTQ+ population including safe and secure housing, employment assistance, child care, health care, mental health services, and community support organizations.

The Office of Gender Responsive Services collected feminine care and basic needs items to give to women under supervision to help them as they navigate reentry. Soaps, shampoos, and other items were placed in pink tote bags for the women.

RESEARCH AND GRANTS UNIT

The Research and Grants Unit is responsible for conducting in-house research for the New Jersey State Parole Board and facilitating or supporting the research projects of outside researchers. Members of the Research and Grants Unit routinely visit District Parole Offices, Community Resource Center programs, and residential community programs to survey and interview supervised offenders. The unit is also responsible for the review, selection, and orientation of interns.

Highlights

- * The Swift, Certain, and Fair grant program was successfully completed, and the Unit is pursuing efforts to continue to assist supervised offenders with substance use and opioid use disorders through additional grant funds (Comprehensive Opioid, Stimulant, and Substance Abuse Program – COSSAP).
- * In addition to the COSSAP grant, the Unit recently submitted a grant application under Smart Probation: Innovations in Supervision Initiative for a Family Violence Prevention Initiative (FVPI) program to assist supervised offenders in Burlington and Camden counties with a history of violence against partners, documented or self-reported spousal assault by the perpetrator or victim, suspected spousal assault, and/or a pattern of non-physical abuse.
- * The Unit is currently conducting an in-house research project that involves examining the quality of relationships between supervised offenders and CRC program case managers, and supervised offender outcomes including employment, stable housing, and psychological well-being.
- * The Unit has met with a number of outside scholars to discuss potential research collaborations.
- * The New Jersey State Parole Board Internship Program was suspended during the height of the COVID-19 pandemic and has resumed in Fall 2021.
- * The Research and Grants Unit has built new and strengthened relationships with NJ Universities and their respective internship coordinators, including those at Fairleigh Dickinson University, Monmouth University, Rowan University, Rutgers University, Saint Peter’s University, and The College of New Jersey.

LOOKING FORWARD

As the New Jersey State Parole Board continues to embrace change, we welcome new technology in a variety of different ways to assist us in our daily efforts to make New Jersey communities safe. We are also implementing innovative initiatives that help offenders re-assimilate into society through effective parole case management. Technology is also playing an important role in our collection, coordination, and preparation of critical data that ultimately assists the New Jersey State Parole Board Members in rendering parole decisions.

While the New Jersey State Parole Board adapts to change and continues to provide its sworn parole officers with the tools and training they need to help them achieve their important tasks, continued training and the addition of new parole officer recruits assists us in accomplishing our reentry goals. The utilization of evidence-based supervision strategies, as well as growing technology and life-saving equipment such as NAR-CAN, are keys to the success of the agency's critical mission.

The New Jersey State Parole Board's Division of Community Programs remains dedicated to developing, coordinating, and managing the provision of quality treatment and services to individuals under parole supervision. Some of these initiatives for the offender include quality community-based programs, partnerships, grants, and other special programs and projects to support effective supervision while working to promote pro-social behavior.

Additionally, in an effort to support existing programs and initiatives for female offenders, as well as continue to respond to the needs of the LGBTQ+ justice-involved population, the New Jersey State Parole Board created the Office of Gender Responsive Services. The aim of this office is to help identify resources to address the unique needs and challenges experienced by women and the LGBTQ+ population, including housing, employment, and health care.

Working to fully promote a positive rehabilitative model for individuals under parole supervision, strengthen safety measures in our communities, and serve as an inclusive and transparent agency, the New Jersey State Parole Board is mindful that we must continue to welcome challenges as well as change. As we adapt to the shifting landscape within the area of the New Jersey Criminal Justice system, we must continue to be cognizant of our mission.
